G. O. P. CAMPAIGN IN STATE OPENS WITH AN ATTACK AGAINST SMITH

Patterson, Caulfield and Others Seek to Convince Democratic Voters Their Party Has Deserted Cause

ESPECIAL APPEAL MADE TO WOMEN

Senatorial Candidate, in Speech at Springfield, Clearly Indicates Plan to Line Up With Regulars.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 15.—The Republican campaign in Missouri this year is to be waged against Gov. Smith, not against the Democratic party. The strategy is to attempt to convince the Democratic voters that their party has departed from its old Democratic principles, and that they are under no obligations of party loyalty to support its candidate for the presidency.

This was clearly shown here at the formal opening of the Republican campaign today. Not a word of serious criticism of the Democratic party was uttered by the speakers. On the contrary, there was a touch of tribute to those who had "remained true to the principles of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Woodrow Wilson" the poison was directed toward Smith. There was an attendance of approximately 2000 at the evening meeting.

Appeal to Democratic Women.

Obviously, the Republican plan is to make a strong appeal for the votes of Democratic women, who the Republican leaders believe are in a mood to reject Smith. There is little indication of any public attempt to hold in line Republicans who are away from the camp on the prohibition question. A Republican who will not vote the Republican ticket on the tariff or because he always has been a Republican is being counted among the lost, and the party organization is not going to lose much time looking for him.

From the standpoint of practical politics, it may not be bad strategy the Republicans have adopted. It is claimed by Republicans and admitted by Democrats that there is an enormous defection among Democratic women throughout the State. Many, if not most of them, are members of old Democratic families, reared under Democratic party traditions.

So Smith is reviled and the Democratic party faintly praised.

The system followed by the speakers here was to tell the women and the dry voters of the country that the Democratic platform in effect stood for prohibition, but that Smith had repudiated it and that the Democratic convention under leadership of the Smith forces, had abandoned the old Democratic principles of opposition to a protective tariff; that the party platform favored the immigration laws of the country, but that Smith repudiated it.

The idea they attempted to get across was that the Democratic party organization, in an effort to elect a wet President, had abandoned the principles under which its party members had been bound to allegiance for nearly 100 years.

General Attack Upon Smith.

The speakers went far in their denunciation of Smith, particularly Roscoe C. Patterson, the Republican nominee for United States Senator.

Speaking at a women's luncheon at the Kentwood Arms Hotel at noon and at a mass meeting at the Shrine Mosque in the evening, Patterson assailed Smith as the product of Tammany Hall, which he said was "the most corrupt political organization in the history of the world." At the luncheon he said that "all the evil influences of the country will be found supporting Smith, and the good people, who believe in law and order and the constitution will be supporting Hoover and the Republican ticket.

The speakers at the evening meeting were Patterson, Henry S. Caulfield, nominee for Governor, and former Gov. Harding of Iowa, who was sent by the Republican National Committee.

Patterson With the Regulars.

Patterson's speech put him quite definitely in with the regular machine group in the Senate, nothing he said tending in the slightest to indicate that he ever would be found in the group of Progressive Senators, if he should be elected. It was an orthodox, stand-pat Republican speech.

Caulfield touched very lightly on national affairs, devoting him-

Prince's Superior Officer Disavows His Visit to U. S.

Reports as to King George's Youngest Son Going to Hollywood Unauthorized Says Captain of Ship.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—Capt. Colridge of H. M. S. Durban today set the stamp of official disapproval on all newspaper stories regarding Prince George's visits to Santa Barbara and Hollywood during the battleship's sojourn in the former harbor.

In reply to a wireless message from the Associated Press asking his confirmation or denial of reports that the youngest son of Britain's monarch had been disciplined for slipping away to Hollywood when he was supposed to be attending a house party in Santa Barbara, Colridge sent the following radio:

"I should be obliged if you would note that all press reports concerning H. R. H. Prince George during the visit of H. M. S. Durban to Santa Barbara are without foundation and are unauthorized."

Prince George spent two days in and about Hollywood, dancing with Lily Damita, film actress; dining with Douglas Fairbanks and Mark Pickford, taking tea with Gloria Swanson and meeting a number of other celebrities of filmdom.

PRISON FOREMAN HELD FOR SMUGGLING DRUGS

E. L. Rice, Fired From Penitentiary Factory Job, Denies the Charge.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 15.—Elva L. Rice, foreman of one of the shirt factories at the State Penitentiary here, was arrested last night, charged with smuggling narcotics into the prison where dope peddlers have operated at intervals for many years. At a preliminary hearing today he was held for the Federal grand jury under $2500 bond.

According to Federal Narcotics Agent A. P. Sanderson of Kansas City, who has been investigating here, an "under cover" agent arranged with Rice to deliver a package containing 60 grains of morphine to a man in the prison who is suspected of being a peddler. Sanderson said he witnessed the delivery to Rice and arrested him with the package in his possession.

Rice's arrest was not made known until he was brought before the United States Commissioner today. On learning of the case, the Prison Board today dismissed him from the prison service. Rice refused to make any statement beyond denying that he knew what the package contained.

ANOTHER DU PONT DAUGHTER WEDS FOR LOVE, NOT WEALTH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 15.—A childhood romance culminated in the village of Christiania Hundred, near here today when Miss Esther du Pont, daughter of Lammot du Pont, president of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., became the bride of Campbell Weir, son of Mrs. Henderson Weir, also of Wilmington.

The wedding took place in the old du Pont family church built by Senator Henry D. du Pont so the du Pont daughters might have a place of their own in which to be married.

Weir was formerly employed as a clerk by the du Pont company, following his graduation from the honeymoon he will be a clerk with the Bellanca Air Corporation at Newcastle, Del.

The bride is thus following in the tradition of the other daughters of the family, who in the quaint old church married for love and not for money.

WAGE CUT RATIFIED BY ILLINOIS MINERS

Large Unions in Southern Part of State Save Agreement From Defeat.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 15.—Miners of Illinois have ratified the new wage agreement by a vote of 26,838 to 25,497, it was announced at headquarters of the miners' union this afternoon.

Immediately after anouncing the result President Fishwick issued the following statement:

"We are sincerely glad that our members have approved the wage scale negotiated in Chicago by the district scale committee. This has been done in spite of worst campaign of villification, abuse and misrepresentation that has ever occurred in the history of the mine workers' union. Many of our members have been misled by the propaganda that has emanated from the element that is trying to destroy us.

"We believe that by the adoption of the new wage scale many of our idle workers will have a chance to return to work and make a living for themselves and those dependant upon them.

A large percentage of the State's 90,000 miner population will be ready to descend into the coal pits again Monday morning. For many of them it will be their first work since April 1.

Effective Monday, Sept. 16, the new wage scale is in force for four years. It represents a decrease in wages of from 16 to 19 per cent. The new wage scale is 91 cents for tonnage and $6.10 for day workers, compared to the old rate of $1.08 for tonnage workers and $7.10 for day men.

The vote of Southern Illinois miners alone saved the issue from defeat, it was unofficially said by the Executive Board members here. In several subdistricts, especially Taylorville, Springfield, Danville and Canton, ratification was voted down, but a favorable vote was polled in Williamson and Franklin counties. The unfavorable vote, it was generally believed, came from miners who were working under the temporary scale, who did not desire to take a cut in wages. Approximately 36,000 miners have been employed.

ATTORNEY KILLS YOUTH WHO HOLDS HIM UP, AND IS SLAIN

Evansville (Ind.) Man Found in Auto Near Home Five Miles From Scene of Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 15.—Deaths of two men, one a prominent Evansville attorney, were explained tonight with the confession of Frank Paisley, 26 years old, of Essex, Mo., that both were shot in an attempted holdup on a lonely road near here.

W. O. Bohannon, whose wife found him in his automobile in front of their house last night and to whom he muttered he had been shot by robbers, died in a hospital tonight. The body of Frank Mills, 19, of Springfield, Ill., was found this morning in a field.

Paisley admitted to police that he and Mills attempted to hold up Bohannon, whose automobile was parked at the side of the road. An argument ensued and Mills shot the attorney twice. Bohannon returned the fire, instantly killing his assailant, Paisley said.

Until Mills' body was discovered police doubted Bohannon's statement.

The shooting occurred five miles from the Bohannon home and police are inclined to believe that his machine may have been driven to his home by a woman who, Paisley said, was with Bohannon.

Six Injured at Fire in Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 15.—Four firemen were overcome by smoke and two were injured by falling debris late today in a fire that caused damage estimated at $50,000 to the Zahner Manufacturing Co. building here. The cause of the fire was not determined.

HURRICANE SUCKS WIND AWAY FROM BYRD'S FLAGSHIP

Becalmed, the Barque Escapes From Path of Storm by Using Its Auxiliary Engines.

VESSEL RIDES OUT HEAVY SEAS EASILY

Dr. Cowan Tells, by Wireless, of Preparations for Shore Leave as Ship Approaches Panama.

By DR. FRANCIS D. COWAN,

ON BOARD THE AMERICAN BARQUE CITY OF NEW YORK, flagship of Commander Byrd's Antarctic Expedition, Sept. 15.—The destructive tropical hurricane now sweeping the islands of the North Caribbean has had an opposite effect on us aboard the Barque City of New York.

At the first sign of the hurricane our good driving wind was sucked away and we were becalmed in a glassy sea with the air like an oven.

Although we were already 100 miles in advance of the hurricane's probable path, the loss of wind from such a widespread surrounding area was an occurrence typical of such disturbances. Fortunately, we could call on our auxiliary engine, so that today we are off the coast of Panama well out of the path of the storm.

Harpoon a Porpoise.

The lookout at sunrise this morning sighting a school of porpoises off the lee bow, McGuinness, our first mate, prepared to furnish us with fresh fish for breakfast. Steadying himself as he knelt on the bowsprit, at the crucial moment he hurled an unerring harpoon at a big fellow, and at this moment, there is great activity around the galley.

The ship has been scrubbed and painted from top to bottom and gleams like a yacht, and all the crew are trying on shoes and other strange clothes in preparation for shore leave, if we reach Panama today.

Heavy seas have proved the vessel as easy as an old shoe, with not a creak or a groan as it labors in a sea. During the day all hands are scraping the decks, polishing the brass, working aloft, or performing the thousand and one other little things always to be found on a sailing ship.

A vessel is sighted, the first in three or four days. It comes out of her course to look us over in envy and to salute and wish us bon voyage.

Sharks Hover Around.

In the clear water sharks can be seen hovering around the stern. Capt. Melville shows us how one may be caught and in great excitement it is hoisted aboard and examined. No seafaring man thinks much of a shark hence it is destroyed and thrown back to be devoured by its mates.

Another cast and we bring in a beautiful four-foot dolphin, which is at once prepared for the galley. When it is cooked, however, an old salt insists that a silver half dollar be thrown in the pot. If its luster is unchanged the flesh is good.

All the old tricks have been played on some of us landlubbers. We have been sent to the captain for the morning mail. We have been assigned to help the carpenter box the compass or ordered to fetch the green oil for the starboard light. During the cool of the evening we find time for meditation and reverie. It seems we are living in a new existence, completely detached and cut off from the old grosser existence.

When we had taken stock of what the souvenir hunting visitors had left us and had got over our first 10 days of seasickness and sleep-preventing sunburn, harmonicas were brought out and in the dusk we heard the songs of a far-off land softly played. How strange we feel. The rhythm of motion finally subdues us and we fall to sleep.

Bad Weather Delays Departure of Second Byrd Ship.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Departure of the Eleanor E. Bolling, supply ship of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, was postponed today by Commander Richard E. Byrd because of adverse weather conditions outside of New York harbor. The commander said the ship would sail early tomorrow.

KELLEY FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER OF MRS. MELLUS

Los Angeles Meat Cutter Must Be Hanged for Beating Society Matron to Death.

VERDICT RETURNED IN LESS THAN 3 HOURS

No Recommendation for Leniency in Finding of Seven Men and Five Women.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15.—Leo (Pat) Kelley, tried for killing Mrs. Mrytle L. Mellus, comely society matron, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury in Superior Court today. No recommendation for leniency accompanied the verdict, making the passing of the death sentence mandatory.

The case was given to the jury near the end of the morning session. A verdict in less than three hours, a considerable portion of which was consumed in lunch for the seven men and five women jurors, came as a surprise in the court room. Kelley, a meat cutter, had been on trial for two weeks. He was alleged to have beaten Mrs. Mellus to death after a drinking party in her beautiful home in the exclusive Wilshire section of Los Angeles.

A gulp, a twist of his body and a firmer grip on the arms of his chair were the only signs of emotion shown by Kelley when he heard the verdict. Mrs. Josephine Kelley, his mother, collapsed.

Four Ballots Taken.

In approximately one hour of deliberation the jury reached its verdict. On the first ballot all agreed that Kelley was guilty. Only two of the 12 voted for leniency on the second ballot, and by the fourth ballot the death verdict was unanimous, discovery of voting slips in the jury room disclosed.

"I am surprised; I didn't expect them to bring in a verdict like that," Kelley declared.

"Must do something to stop this kind of crime," were the terse words found penciled on one of the jurors' ballot slips.

Attorney S. S. Hahn, who defended Kelley, vehemently declared that in view of the evidence the jury's decision was a "travesty on justice" and informed the court that he would file a written notice of appeal.

Mrs. Mellus, wife of Frank Mellus, wealthy manufacturer, was slain Aug. 5 last. Her husband found her body when he returned from a fishing trip. She had been beaten over the head, probably with an empty liquor bottle. On her body were numerous bruises and cuts which the prosecution contended were the teeth marks of her assailant.

Kelley Hid in Closet.

Mellus called police and an hour after the first officers arrived Kelley was found hiding in a clothes closet. He admitted he had visited her all during the day, had drunk with her, quarreled with her and had "beaten her terribly."

Kelley told of a five-year illicit love affair with the clubwoman. In the investigation that followed names of a prominent architect and the wife of a West Side department store owner went into the police records as those of persons who had attended parties at the Mellus home in the absence of Mellus.

The defense maintained that someone who entered the home after Kelley hid in the closet did the killing.

Sentence will be pronounced next Thursday.

LINDBERGH FLIES 1910 PLANE AT LOS ANGELES AIR RACES

Amelia Earhart, woman pilot, soloed in her British plane, and Art Goebel, first to finish the New York-to-Los Angeles non-stop race in spite of a forced landing, participated in the Detroit News Air Transport Trophy race.

Robert W. Cantwell, winner of the class C transcontinental race, added new laurels today by defeating Goebel and winning the air transport trophy in a race restricted to ships carrying a load of at least 1000 pounds. Cantwell, who piloted a Lockheed plane powered by a wasp motor, finished the 50-mile race in 21 minutes and 22.96 seconds, beating Goebel over the finish line by 4 seconds. The race carried a prize of $3000.

STRANGE STORY OF FOUR MURDERS ON FARM TOLD BY BOY

California Police Begin to Doubt Tale of Torture of Youths by Missing Man, However.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 15.—Officials tonight began to express doubt as to the veracity of the story of 15-year-old Sanford Clark, who, when brought to Juvenile Court from the Pomona chicken ranch of George Cyrus Northcott, accused Mrs. Northcott and her 21-year-old son, Stuart, of kidnaping, torturing and killing with an ax four boys.

Young Clark declared the murdered boys were Louis and Nelson Winslow, 12 and 10 years old, respectively, who disappeared from their Pomona homes; Walter Collins, 9, who disappeared from Glendale last spring, and an unidentified Mexican youth. Clark said he was forced to help kill one of the Winslow boys, and also aid in burying the bodies in shallow graves filled with lime to dispose of them.

Meanwhile, Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott, were being sought. The father, Cyrus George Northcott, 57, was held.

Young Northcott and his mother, who left the ranch several weeks ago, were thought by authorities to have gone to Canada. The elder Northcott was arrested in Los Angeles, where he came when the family abandoned the farm.

Young Clark, who said he was kidnaped by Northcott in Saskatchewan two years ago, declared Northcott had forced him to kill one of the Winslow boys with an ax.

The Northcotts deserted their ranch after Clark had been taken into custody by immigration officers investigating his entry into this country.

Tonight N. H. Winslow of Pomona, father of two of the alleged victims of young Northcott, stated to investigators he believed that reports made to him of his two sons having been apprehended in Texas were true.

Another doubt on young Clark's tale was cast by juvenile authorities and the police who asserted their belief that Walter Collins was the boy who now is at his mother's home in Glendale. Young Collins was located in Illinois several weeks ago and returned to his

Poor Mill Worker, British War Veteran, Gives Answers in Prize Contest.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Tom Hartley, a poor loom sweeper in a Blackburn cotton mill, today is possessor of a $100,000 prize, jointly offered by four publications for correctly guessing the results of 24 of the football matches played here last Saturday.

Hartley has been poverty-stricken since his return from the World War, several times having to live on the Government's unemployment dole. His wife was working in the mill with him.

His winning coupon is worth to him approximately $100 a week, less income tax.

Hartley visited London today, bought his wife a wrist watch and did some sightseeing. He has decided to retire, but is undecided as whether to continue to live in Blackburn or to come to London.

"I regard myself now as a $5000 a year man," he explained, "not a comparative millionaire. One can be comfortable on $100 a week, but you can't be riotous."

In the last three weeks the three papers offering football prizes have paid out $165,000 to winners, but this is the first time any contestant has won the first prize.

WEALTHY DETROIT CONTRACTOR AND WIFE SHOT TO DEATH

Police Theory of Double Murder Supplants First Report of Suicide.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 15.—The bodies of Burr Hart, wealthy Detroit contractor and apartment house owner, and his wife were found at midnight tonight in their apartment here. Both had been shot to death.

First reports were that Hart had shot and killed his wife and then had ended his own life but police said, following a hurried investigation, that there was a possibility they were victims of a double murder.

CORRUPTION IN COUNTY LAID TO 3 OFFICIALS

Prosecutor Mueller, Sheriff Wilmas and Constable Roth Assailed in Report of Special Grand Jury.

BOPP AND SCHMID ALSO UNDER FIRE

Special Group Recommends Third Circuit Judge, and Police System for Unincorporated Districts.

Responsibility for lawless conditions existing in St. Louis County was placed upon Prosecuting Attorney Mueller, Sheriff Wilmas and Constable Roth of Central Township, because of lax enforcement of the law and loose administration, by the special grand jury in its final report yesterday to Circuit Judge Mulloy at Clayton, who impaneled the jury June 12 to "clean up the county."

The report also criticised County Recorder Schmid for charging illegal fees; condemned the fee system viciously applied by some magistrates and Deputy Constables in preying on motorists, and also denounced the methods of Coroner Bopp in taking for his private undertaking business a monopoly of bodies that come to his attention as Coroner.

The grand jury concluded from the congested criminal docket, which has more than 200 cases undisposed of, that "there is and has been for some time a lack of real efficiency or determination to prosecute, or perhaps both" in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Mueller, which, the jury found, is frequented by "fixers" and "frontiers."

Calls Sheriff Ineffective.

"As a police official the Sheriff, Albert A. Wilmas, has failed," the report said, "and there is not now and has not been in some time past any effective police work on the part of this official." In this connection the grand jury recommends a police department under a board to supersede the Sheriff in police work in the unincorporated towns of the county.

The jury also found that Constable Roth of Central Township appointed 231 deputies, which was 200 more than were needed, the report said, this authority giving such men the right to carry weapons, which, according to the report, "facilitates their infraction of the laws."

From an investigation of open slot-machine gambling, the jury concluded, "there are material reasons which have induced our law enforcement officials to maintain a hands-off policy in reference to this particular form of gambling."

In reporting on liquor law violations, the grand jury concluded that some liquor confiscated in raids found its way back into the channels of trade. "In fact," said the report, "there is evidence in some cases where the officers charged with the enforcement of the law have been the agents supplying the bootleg liquor to the retailer."

Third Circuit Judge Urged.

In advocating strict law enforcement, appointment of a third Circuit Judge to expedite criminal justice, and impaneling of a new grand jury to continue the investigation into county conditions, the grand jury said:

It would seem, in view of the open, flagrant, persistent and undisturbed violations of the law mentioned in this report, that there must be a direct connection or relation between organized crime on the one hand and law enforcement officials on the other, purely mercenary in its origin.

The grand jury was in session 12 weeks, held 43 daily sessions, heard 275 witnesses and returned 63 true bills, 20 of which were returned yesterday with the filing of the report, but withheld pending service.

What Grand Jury Report Says About Officials.

Excerpts from the Grand Jury report, dealing with county officials under adverse criticism, follow:

Prosecuting Attorney, Fred E. Mueller: "No office in the county calls for a greater amount of legal skill, good sound judgment and abundant tact, not to speak of moral courage, than does that of Prosecuting Attorney. The number of criminal cases pending in our courts at this time undisposed of, (more than 200,) is evidence to us of at least two things in particular.

"First, that there is and has been for some time, a lack of real

HURRICANE BOUND TOWARD BAHAMAS

TOLL OF HURRICANE.

San Juan, Porto Rico—Seventy per cent of the beautiful capital's homes and 30 per cent of its business buildings thought to be destroyed.

Ponce, Porto Rico—Ten dead, 700 homeless. Extensive damage, although Ponce apparently not so hard hit as San Juan.

Humacao, Porto Rico—Thirty dead; widespread damage.

Nassau—Shipping ordered to anchorages in expectation that falling barometer forecasts arrival of the big wind.

St. Croix, Virgin Islands—Hundreds homeless.

Puerta Plata, San Domingo—Bull Line freighter Lillian driven ashore.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—With its task growing hourly as additional appeals for aid were sent in from the storm-swept West Indies, the American Red Cross today issued an appeal to the American people for funds and set aside $50,000 of its own money for relief and rehabilitation.

The mobilization of resources was determined at a conference between President Coolidge, who is president of the Red Cross, and John Barton Payne, chairman of the organization. Messages from Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands added to the serious complexion of the catastrophe as pictured yesterday by the Chancellor of the University of Porto Rico in the first word received from the stricken island.

The naval destroyer Gilmer left Charleston early this afternoon for Porto Rico carrying Henry M. Baker, national disaster relief director, and four associates. Relief work already has been started there, Manuel Mendia, acting chairman of the island chapter, cabled national headquarters, but it is "impossible as yet to obtain data of extent of disaster."

St. Thomas Cut Off.

The Red Cross was informed by cable from its Virgin Island chapter workers at St. Croix that there was no communication with St. Thomas, the capital and largest city, that hundreds were homeless and that clothes and money were needed. The navy has radio transmitters at these two points and at St. Johns, but had received no information of conditions on the island.

As reports of the northward movement of the storm arrived the Red Cross planned to extend aid to other islands. Assistance was offered to the British Government through the Embassy in Washington for sufferers on Grand Turks Island of the Bahamas group.

Two thousand dollars was cabled to the Virgin Island chapter in response to its appeal for aid.

Payne sent the following telegram to the 3500 chapters:

"West Indies hurricane has destroyed thousands of homes in Porto Rico and other islands, also devastating crops. Immediate need for food, shelter, medical supplies and emergency relief. Red Cross takes charge at request President Coolidge. Need for large relief fund imperative."

The services of the organization also were offered to Gov. Len Small of Illinois following the disaster in Rockford, Ill. All large Red Cross chapters in the State were asked to give such assistance as might be required.

Red Cross chapters in Nebraska, South and North Dakota already have organized and have the situation in Nebraska well in hand, advices said. National headquarters has notified each chapter in the stricken communities that it will give all assistance that may be necessary.

The National Education Association joined in the movement to extend help to the sufferers. J. W. Crabtree, secretary, instructed the heads of public instruction in the stricken areas to "give all possible organized assistance to the Red Cross in making relief effective."

Thirty Reported Killed Near San Juan, Porto Rico.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 15.—Reports to El Tiempo from Humacao, on the East Coast of Porto Rico, about 40 miles from San Juan, say that 30 persons were killed by Thursday's hurricane. Extensive damage, particularly to the sugar crop, is reported.

Storm Now Bound Toward Bahamas and Florida Coast.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 15.—The Tropical hurricane was raking the Bahamas today and was due, unless it should change its course or blow itself out, to strike the Florida coast tomorrow.

The Weather Bureaus expected that such a change of course, in either direction, might occur today when the storm was due to reach Nassau. A swing to the West would send the hurricane hurtling between Cuba and the southern tip of Florida with possible damage to the Gulf States, and a curve eastward would point it upward toward the Virginia Capes or out into the Atlantic where it would menace the crowded maritime traffic to the Panama Canal.

Richard W. Gray, chief of the local Weather Bureau, said Nassau appeared to be threatened seriously with destructive winds Sunday forenoon. Miami-Nassau ship sailings were canceled today.

A Key West dispatch to the Miami Daily News says the wrecking tug Warbler has received a wireless message that a ship is in distress off Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, but is standing by awaiting more definite information before proceeding to her assistance. The ship's name could not be learned. Puerto Plata is reported to have been in the path of the hurricane that swept over Turks Island last night.

GOV. SMITH EXPECTED TO SPEAK HERE OCT. 16

Despite Other Cities' Claims, Missouri Address Is Scheduled for St. Louis.

Gov. Smith probably will make his Missouri campaign speech at the Coliseum in St. Louis the night of Oct. 16.

Both Columbia and Sedalia had been clamoring for the big Smith meeting, Columbia particularly pushing its claim to be the scene of the presidential nominee's appearance because of the seating capacity of the new Missouri University stadium as well as of its accessibility from all parts of the State.

Only an unexpected circumstance, however, now can move the Smith managers to change their decision to hold the meeting in St. Louis, and tentative arrangements have been made with the Coliseum management to hold the hall ready for Oct. 16.

AID SOUGHT FOR PORTO RICANS

The St. Louis Chapter, American Red Cross, would receive contributions for the victims of the Porto Rico hurricane, on advice from the National Red Cross headquarters in Washington, it was announced yesterday by P. H. Byrns, executive secretary of the chapter. Contributions may be sent to the Red Cross, 2221 Locust street, St. Louis.

Byrns stated that at the request of President Coolidge, the American Red Cross had assumed full charge of the relief work in Porto Rico, $50,000 had been appropriated by the National Red Cross, and trained workers had been sent to the affected district.

Great need of food, clothing medical attendants and shelter was reported, and funds given the Red Cross will be used for these purposes.

CANDY SHOP HELD UP AGAIN

An armed man entered the Mavrakos Candy Shop at 4709 Delmar boulevard about 8:30 o'clock last night, held up Miss Margaret Freels, the cashier, and escaped with $35 from the cash register.

Miss Freels told police the robber resembled the man who held up the shop Aug. 27, escaping with $37.

mother, who declared: "That is not my son." The mother, Mrs. Christine Collins, who yesterday was missing from her home, tonight was located in the psychopathic ward of the county hospital where she is under observation for mental troubles.

Bones which investigators today dug up on the Northcott ranch, and many of which had been burned, were declared by officials as likely to be bones of chickens and other butchered animals as of humans. One bone, they said, might have been part of a human skull, but they were not positive.

MISSOURI DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE NAMED

C. M. Howell Approves Selections of Stephen B. Hunter, the Chairman.

The executive committee to direct the Democratic campaign in Missouri was announced yesterday following a conference between Charles M. Howell, chairman of the State Committee, and Stephen B. Hunter, chairman of the executive committee.

Hunter's selections for his committee, as approved by Chairman Howell, are Mrs. Halph P. Swofford of Kansas City, vice chairman; W. Frank Carter and Fred L. Williams of St. Louis; Howard Cook, Jefferson City; Mrs. C. M. Sneed, Columbia; Dan M. Nee, Springfield; Mrs. Kate S. Morrow, Warrensburg, and William L. Igoe, who is also chairman of the St. Louis campaign committee.

Organization plans for the campaign, it was announced, will be in charge of M. A. Romjue of Macon, Congressman from the First District, and Scott R. Timmons of Carrolton, a member of the 1926 organization department, will be its chairman this year under Romjue. Heads of the five divisions in the State will be announced later.

Sam O. Hargus of Kansas City and State Senator Frank Hollingsworth of Mexico will have charge of the speakers' divisions. Mrs. Morrow, Mrs. Swofford, Mrs. Blanche Lewis of Mountain Grove, vice chairman of the State Committee, and Mrs. C. B. Faris, national committeewoman, will have charge of women's activities.

The national campaign work of the Democratic regional headquarters will be outlined tomorrow night by Senator Hawes, regional head, at a meeting of the Jefferson Club at 1630 Locust street. Other local Democratic leaders also will be speakers.

Grand Jury Report Assails County Officials

efficiency or determination to prosecute, or perhaps both, in this office.

"Second, that there is urgent need for a third division of the Circuit Court, where criminal case should be given preference in trial, over the civil docket. The continued presence of criminal cases on the docket from term to term, undisposed of, means unnecessary expense to the taxpayer, complainants and witnesses, oppression and injustice to prisoners confined in jail unable to furnish bond, and virtual immunity from punishment for the professional criminal who is able to be at liberty on bond.

Only One Active Assistant.

"The force of assistants to this official is adequate, providing that they, or at least two of them, are capable of taking actual charge of the trial of cases in the Circuit Court and the remainder devote their time to the performance of their duties. For several years, it appears that Charles Noble, the First Assistant, has been the only representative of the Prosecuting Attorney engaged in the trial of Circuit Court cases. For this reason, we urge upon the next Prosecuting Attorney the selection of the most competent and efficient assistants.

"Another undesirable situation brought to the attention of this jury concerning the office of Fred E. Mueller is the frequent visits or presence of known professional 'fixers' or 'fronters as they are sometimes called. The presence of such around the office of the Prosecuting Attorney should be discouraged."

Prosecuting Attorney Mueller, as has been told, was indicted by this grand jury on charges of accepting a bribe in connection with the protection of slot machine gambling devices. He was defeated by Judge Mulloy in the August primary for the Republican nomination for Circuit Judge.

Says Wilmas Has Failed.

Sheriff, Albert A. Wilmas: "As a police official the Sheriff, Albert A. Wilmas, has failed. The continued and frequent law violations of lesser character, together with the homicides, gang killings, bombings and other criminal activities in the county, indicate that there is not onw and has not been in some time past any effective police work on the part of this official.

"The force of 20 special Deputy Sheriffs provided by law, and paid for by the county, is ineffective and should be dispensed with. We believe the solution of effective police work in the unincorporated territory is to confine the Sheriff and his deputies to the service and execution of civil process, as that official now operates in St. Louis; and the delegation of the police work to a board or body whose sole duty wuld be to deal with the enforcement of the criminal laws, similar to the Police Board in St. Louis.

Qualifications for Deputies.

"The qualifications of men for this office should be a knowledge of police work together with a reputation for honesty and effectiveness in that respect, rather than the ability of the man to get votes, or gain the favor of political manipulators. This official should be of a type comparable to that of the Chief of Police in St. Louis, since our situation in reference to dealing with crime is analagous.

"Lack of police experience, antiquated methods, and timidity in dealing with crime and criminals have rendered this office without force or effectiveness in the apprehension of criminals, the solution of crime problems, jail breaks, the proper care of prisoners, and the collection and preservation of evidence."

Sheriff Wilmas early this year, as has been told, was forced by the Government to pay tax and civil penalty of $900 on a $30,000 secret income from mysterious sources which he would not disclose. This exposure put an end to plans of his friends to run him for the Republican nomination for County Assessor.

Constables Abuse Power.

Constables, George J. Roth, Central Township: "These officials have abused their power to appoint special deputies. We find that George J. Roth, Constable of Central Township, for instance, appointed 231 Deputy Constables. This is at least 200 more than is necessary to perform the functions in the township. This privilege to so great a number is but the official sanction to such men to carry weapons, and facilitates their infraction of the laws. It is suggested that in the future Constables keep a closer check on the operation of some of these special deputies who devote their time to their own interests."

Roth's term expires this year. His chief deputy, Charles H. Boenecke, was defeated in the primary for the Republican nomination to succeed Roth.

Recorder of Deeds, Arthur W. Schmid: "The practice in this office of charging an extra fee of 25 cents for placing instrument of record 'immediate' is illegal. Although a plain violation of law, this jury has felt that the incumbent should not be penalized for indulging in a practice originating prior to his incumbency. However, we suggest that if it be not discontinued at once, prosecution be instituted. The law requires that instruments filed for record be spread upon the record in the order of their filing.

Condemns Campaign Funds.

"We also seriously question the legality of the charges made for recording plats, but for want of sufficient time could not complete our investigation on this question.

"We also wish to condemn the practice of soliciting or accepting campaign contributions among or from the employes of this or any other office in the courthouse, whether such contributions be voluntary or otherwise. There is some evidence that such contributions in this office were later used in the purchase of an automobile for the Recorder, a practice not to be commended."

Schmid, at the August primary, was nominated for Sheriff on the Republican ticket to succeed Sheriff Wilmas.

Coroner: "Our investigation of the office of the Coroner, Louis H. Bopp, afforded evidence of considerable abuse of official power. The practice of removing dead bodies to the undertaking establishment of the Coroner, irrespective of the place where the body is found, is not to be commended. No matter how excellent the facilities may be at such establishment, the law certainly contemplates the holding of the inquest as near as possible to the place where the body is found. The removal as indicated, adds an extra burden upon those who mourn the deceased at a time when every effort should be made to spare them. Charges for embalming bodies on which inquests are held is unwarranted by law, unless the persons against whom the charge is made have directed that such service be performed. We cannot too strongly condemn the commingling of the duties of a Coroner with that of an undertaker. Perhaps a good solution would be a provision of law, making an undertaker ineligible to the office of Coroner."

Bopp formerly was Sheriff. His son, Rolland H. Bopp, won the Republican nomination for Coroner at the August primary.

As a result of its investigation, the grand jury reported it was convinced that "the Sheriff, Prosecuting Attorney and Coroner were individually affected by the matters before us, so far as law enforcement in our county is concerned, and it appears that these same officials are likely to be similarly affected by the inquiry of a subsequent grand jury concerning these matters. It was for these reasons that we were unable to seek or secure the assistance of these officials in our investigation."

Link With Bootleggers Cited.

The grand jury found no evidence of sincere or determined effort by officers to deal with liquor law violations.

"In fact," said the report, "there is evidence in some cases where the officers charged with the enforcement of the law have been the agents supplying the bootleg liquor to the retailer. The records of our courts indicate an overwhelming percentage of the liquor cases where the charge is simple 'possession,' rather than 'sale.' The former charge carries an easier means of escape and lighter punishment; usually the payment of a fine, payment of costs, or outright dismissal. This amounts to a veritable license.

"Frequently search warrants have been issued by the Justices of the Peace and placed in the hands of the Constables, raids made and liquor confiscated, but no arrest followed, and no return has been made by the officers on the search warrant. This jury has reason to believe that some of the liquors so confiscated again found its way into the channels of the 'trade.' This extremely lax or indifferent attitude of the officials in the face of such widespread and persistent liquor violation is a strong indication of a material interest on the part of officials in its continued operation."

Deputy Constables George Kingslan and A. H. Firman, under Constable Flood of St. Ferdinand Township, were indicted by the grand jury for assault to kill in an alleged attempt to kill a gangster who charged they did so because he knew too much of their alleged dealings in liquor.

Charges of Fee Grabbing.

One of the most pointed accusations in the report deals with fee grabbing by some magistrates and deputy constables who are not named in the report.

"Arrests for traffic violations and alleged misconduct on our roads and highways have been most frequent, and in most instances without provocation or justification," the grand jury reported. "The evidence indicates that persons from other parts of our own State and particularly persons from other states traveling upon our roads have been the victims of this propensity.

"These unfortunate persons have been dragged into some of the Justice courts at unseemly hours of the night, and, under threats of jail, or excessive fines, or vile charges, have paid money and pleaded guilty to offenses without any foundation in fact, in order to escape. We do not claim that all of the Constables or Justices have been a party to these shameful proceedings, but this condition has been particularly prevalent in St. Ferdinand Township, and along the St. Charles Rock road.

"Complaints from the victims of these fee grabbers to the officials charged with the duty of suppressing it have met with no encouragement. The solution, we believe, would be the abolishment of the fee system and the reduction of the number of these petty officials and placing them on a salary basis."

Slot Machines Condemned.

Slot machine gambling was condemned, the report stating that profits to operators of those devices ran into thousands of dollars a week.

"These machines have operated in plain view of our law enforcement officers," the grand jury found. "Not only have the officers neglected to disturb them, but in some instances Deputy Constables have assisted in their distribution; set them up, and profited through their operation. So perfect has been the system that there existed a regular schedule of rates to govern their unmolested operation. While we have not completed our investigation of the protection afforded the operators of these machines, we are strongly of the opinion that there are material reasons which have induced our law enforcement officials to maintain a 'hands off' policy in reference to this particular form of gambling."

Tony Foley's "Los Angeles Club," on the Manchester road, and his other gambling house at 6128 Easton avenue, were pointed out in the report as flagrant examples of continuous and persistent contempt for the law, both places having been "operated openly as gambling resorts by professional gamblers, the employes being recruited largely from the ranks of gangsters and ex-convicts, who solicit the patronage of bank clerks and others in trusted positions, which sometimes leads to forgery, embezzlement, murder and suicide."

Foley, as is known, was indicted by this grand jury on charges of conducting gambling resorts.

Old Jail Called a Disgrace.

The old section of the County jail at Clayton was described in the report as a "building of horrors and a disgrace to any civilized community." "It is overcrowded to add to its unfitness," said the report. "There has been provided in recent years a new section, modern in facilities and more commodious, but for some reason the Sheriff has not seen fit to utilize these modern facilities, except, we understand, to accommodate some favored prisoners."

The grand jury recommended that the space now occupied by the offices of Constable Roth, Justice Werremeyer and Justice Stecker in the Courthouse, rent free, be vacated and used for county offices. Other recommendations were a budget system for the county, appointment of a third Circuit Judge to relieve the congested criminal docket, and the examination of prisoners by a physician before the prisoners are confined.

On account of the close of the May term of court, under which this grand jury was authorized, there was no time to go thoroughly into election frauds, fee grabbing, taxing of costs in criminal cases by magistrates, abuse of prisoners and numerous complaints bearing on some connection between organized crime and certain enforcement officials.

No Evidence From Mueller.

Pointing out that it was handicapped in the work of investigation by lack of funds to employ investigators and limited time, the report said Prosecuting Attorney Mueller offered the grand jury no evidence of any law violations.

In closing, the report expressed appreciation for aid given by Assistant Attorney-General Lieutellus Cunningham; John A. Nolan, special prosecutor; William Pfeiffer, elisor; Walter Miller, County Clerk, and Oscar H. Jacobsmeyer, Circuit Clerk.

Sheriff Away, Other Officials Reply to Criticisms.

Prosecuting Attorney Mueller said, regarding the grand jury's criticism of his office:

"I have only two assistants and a clerk. The work in the office is so heavy, because of the 21 Justice of the Peace courts which must be visited once each week, the Juvenile Court, the weekly sessions of which must be attended, and numerous Coroner's inquests which require a representative from my office. These take all the time of my second assistant and of my clerk, who is also an attorney.

"My time is taken up in the capacity of warrant officer, listening to the many complaints which daily come to my office.

"I and my assistants were disqualified from directing this grand jury, and a special prosecutor appointed. Inferences were cast at my office, and I felt that I was not expected, and that it would not be proper for me to take any part in this investigation unless requested to do so."

Schmid Denies Soliciting Funds.

Recorder of Deeds Schmid said: "Any campaign contribution which I received from employes was made voluntarily, and was not solicited by me. As for the objection to the practice of charging 25 cents for having a deed recorded immediately, this did not originate with me, but was the custom with Recorders many years before I was elected. The same custom is followed in St. Louis where the charge is higher. This is not a fee, but is more like a tip for extra service. I receive none of this money myself, but at Christmas time divide it equally among all copyists and employes, just as is done in the Recorder's office in St. Louis.

"Three years ago, when I announced that I was going to discontinue this practice, I was called upon by a committee of three from the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, and they insisted that I should continue to give immediate service when immediate recording of a deed was desired. I am quite willing to discontinue this custom now, as far as I am personally concerned."

Bopp Says He Acts If Needed.

Coroner Bopp said:

"I would not think of allowing a body to remain where it is found, and with the facilities of my own, none of which is provided by the county, I give the best service that I know how. It would be inhumane to allow bodies of unidentified persons to decompose, and for this reason I go ahead and properly prepare them for burial. I may have violated the letter of the statutes, but not their spirit, and have tried to use horse sense in the administration of my office."

Sheriff Wilmas is absent from the county on a vacation outing. Chief Deputy Mark Dodd said he would make no statement in the Sheriff's behalf, in reply to the criticisms of that official.

EIGHT DEAD AND SEVEN MISSING IN ROCKFORD STORM

More Than 20 Seriously Injured — Rescue Workers Continue to Search Chair Factory Ruins.

MILITIA AND STATE POLICE ON DUTY

Damage Estimated at Nearly $2,000,000—Tornado Struck Sections of City Three Miles Apart.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKFORD, Ill. Sept. 15.—The dead in Rockford's tornado stood tonight at eight, with more than 20 seriously injured in hospitals and seven others are missing. About 80 persons suffered minor injuries.

It is feared the injured are buried beneath the brick, timber and machinery of the wrecked chair factory "B," from which 50 men escaped when the twister struck Friday afternoon, doing damage estimated at $2,000,000.

Gov. Small at Springfield ordered Company K of the 129th Infantry, Illinois National Guard, to report here for duty. A detail of 50 highway police also was assigned. A large part of their task will be to keep crowds of curious from the ruins of the chair factory, in which three of the eight fatalities occurred. The three floors of the long building crumbled before the wind, dumping tons of machinery and lumber into a pile. Firemen and volunteers worked all day, but at nightfall still were far from completing their search.

Nearly Sandpile Undisturbed.

A hundred yards from the chair factory stood a huge pile of fine sand, with not even a furrow in its sides to show there had been any wind at all.

The two sections of the city that suffered most were approximately three miles apart, with blocks in between that escaped the storm. Both hard-hit sections were devoted mostly to industries—the "B" factory of the Rockford Chair and Furniture Co. on the one hand, the Elco Tool Co. on the other. Destruction was wrought to six other industries in lesser degree, particularly to the Union Furniture Co. and the Mechanics Machinery Co.

Relief was quick in organization—subscriptions to meet emergency needs of hundreds made homeless and jobless. Plans also were formulated to rebuild at once many of the factories destroyed. Many of those thrown out of employment by destruction of factories were to be given work in reconstruction.

The Dead and Injured.

The death list, as it stood tonight:

Everitt Cornmusser, 16 years old; Virgil Cornmusser, 17; Bernard Cornmusser, 14; George Fagerberger, 51; Tony Martinkas, 50; John Drunski, 44; Swan Swenson, 40; Axel Ahlgren.

Swenson and Ahlgren died today in hospitals. They were furniture factory workers caught beneath falling walls.

The injured:

At the Rockford Hospital: Neal Bennett, 66, shock and bruises; Carl Strom, 38, fractured pelvis; S. G. Allender, Chair factory B, shoulder fractured; Alvin Hansman, chair factory B, sprained back; Louis Blizneck, bruises; Charles Beckstrom, severe bruises.

At St. Anthony Hospital: Mrs. Joseph Muters, 35, seriously cut and bruised; Mrs. E. C. Gustafson, 23, severely bruised; Axel Peterson, Love Park, spinal injury; Edward Smith, 49, left leg and forehead severely lacerated; R. Otto, chair factory B, crushed about head and body; Mrs. Emily Deschepper, 57, severe bruises; Henning Johnson, 26, fractured leg and severe cuts; Mrs. Victor Van Landegan, 26, severe body bruises.

Civilian Flyer Killed in Crash.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA ANA, Cal., Sept. 15.—One civilian flyer was killed and one seriously injured in an airplane crash at the Orange County public golf links, near here, today. Guy Fanscher, 36 years old, of Pasadena, died on the way to the hospital. Calvin Hansted, Long Beach, was badly hurt.

Veiled Prophet Parade Oct. 2 to Depict History Of the Ancient World

Twenty Floats Will Give Elaborate and Accurate Pictures of Famous Episodes of Olden Times.

HISTORICAL and legendary landmarks of the ancient world from the Beginning to the birth of Christ will pass in pageant through the streets of St. Louis Tuesday evening, Oct. 2, when the Veiled Prophet observes the golden anniversary of his first coming to this city.

The civilizations of Egypt, Babylon, Greece, Rome, Assyria and Persia will be pictured in all their buried grandeur. Bible stories, such as those of the Deluge and Noahs Ark, the Tower of Babel, Abraham in Ur of the Chaldees, the Journey of the Three Wise Men, will be portrayed. The legendary wanderings of Ulysses, the Siege of Troy, and the Adventures of the Caliph of Bagdad will be interpreted.

"Through the Centuries is the broad subject under which the Veiled Prophet will lead his forty-ninth parade over the customary route. As usual, he will be seated on his golden throne on the first float, surveying the hundreds of thousands of men, women and children of St. Louis through the impenetrable veil which hides his identity.

Floats Faithful to History.

Through his messengers, the Prophet has announced that every effort has been made to produce floats which are beautiful and artistic and at the same time faithful to recorded history and tradition. He has promised to make the grown-ups forget about street cars and automobiles and airplanes, skyscrapers, radio and telephones, and to give the youngsters something of genuine educational value.

The Prophet's annual ball will be held the following evening, Wednesday, Oct. 3, at the Coliseum, where an effort will be made to reproduce the famous "Fete d'or," or Golden Ball, which King Louis XIV of France gave in honor of the Dauphin. Thousands of yards of cloth-of-gold will be used in the decorations.

Descriptions of the 20 floats in the parade have been embodied in a folder, which will be distributed to schools and other organizations within the next few days. The descriptions follow:

The Veiled Prophet—Float No. 1: Preceding this colorful cavalcade of the ancients is the caleche of the Most Worthy Grand Oracle, the Veiled Prophet himself, raised on a prominent dais, gorgeously appareled in the purple robes of royalty and carrying the time-honored baton of ceremony. About him in glittering gold are the emblems of his sovereignty, and surrounding him the august personages of his court, the First and Second High Priests, the Herald and the Almoner." The brilliancy of this float in its yellow glow of the golden year is but an embellished promise of the flashing cortege to follow.

The Title Float—Float No. 2: The ancient bards and historians, Homer, Virgil, Herodotus, Sophocles, Solomon, Omar Khayyam, Milton and Shakspeare, who preserve in immortal prose and verse the epics of distant ages, immemorial incidents of the bygone high lights of all times that will be depicted in the 20 floats of the street pageant under the title, "Through the Centuries."

Noah and the Ark—Float No. 3: The Bible tells us that God sent a flood to destroy the earth. It rained 40 days and 40 nights. God provided that some should be saved from the deluge so that there still would be people and animals on the earth. God commanded Noah to build an ark, and to stock it with food and then to take into it his wife and his daughters, and his sons and his sons' wives, and two of every living creature of the earth. This Noah did, and he and his three sons — Shem, Ham and Japheth — sailed the ark through the deluge and finally brought it to rest on Mount Ararat. Finally, to test the conditions, he sent out a dove to find a spot on which he might land.

Assyria—Float No. 4: Assyria was one of the early Eastern civilizations. The first library in the world was in an Assyrian temple, consisting of tablets of clay inscribed with cuneiform writing. Reproductions of these cuneiform tablets, from which much of the history of this area is now being gleaned, as found in ancient ruins, are shown at the front of the float. The high priests of the temple were the first librarians. Hence you see several of them gathered round the entrance to an Assyrian temple, flanked by the mythical human-headed sacred bulls of Assyria that tradition says guarded the footsteps of the King.

Babylon—Float No. 5: The name "Babylon" brings to mind many things—the hanging gardens, a series of colossal terraces so constructed that great trees and temples were supported on the underlying masonry; the great wall of Babylon—the Bible stories of Daniel in the lion's den, Balshazzar's feast, and Nebuchadnezzar. Babylon was the site where the earth became repopulated after the Deluge. It was there the people built the tower of Babel which they intended to make high enough to escape all floods. While the people were building it they began quarreling. In consequence God caused the different factions to speak different languages. The scene depicted shows King Nebuchadnezzar seated on his throne. Behind him are the Hanging Gardens, and before him are the remains of the tower of Babel — built, however, several centuries before his time.

Egypt—Float No. 6: The advancement of the early arts is best exemplified in ancient Egypt. The Pyramids of Egypt have endured more than 4000 years. The Sphinx near the great Pyramids wears eternally the enigmatic smile which has given rise to the story of the "Riddle of the Sphinx." The float which represents Egypt of the Pharoahs shows both the Pyramids and the Sphinx, while in the rear stands another colossus, the famous statue of Memnon at ancient Thebes. This statue for centuries uttered a peculiar sound when touched by the rays of the rising sun. To add a touch of beauty to the grim monuments of ancient grandeur, Queen Cleopatra is seen reclining majestically in their midst.

Palestine—Float No. 7: Abraham dwelt in Ur of the Chaldees (Chaldea is another name for Assyria). God promised that he should found a race of people whose numbers "should be as the sands of the sea." Abraham obeyed God and removed all his possessions to the land of Canaan and there the Hebrew race came into being. In those days the richer the man, the more herds he possessed. The float shows Abraham with his flocks in the new land, while the seven golden candlesticks beside the temple symbolize the permanent settlement of that land later by his descendants after the Exodus from Egypt.

Persia—Float No. 8: After the Israelites had been many years in Canaan, their enemies attacked them, taking them into captivity to Babylon. Cyrus the Great of Persia, one of the greatest warriors and statesmen of the ancient world, laid siege to Babylon while the Israelites were in captivity. Finally Cyrus diverted the course of the Euphrates River, making it flow round the city instead of under the great walls, and in the huge gap thus made he and his entire army marched into Babylon. One of Cyrus' first acts after he conquered Babylon was to free the Israelites and return to the high priests the gold and silver vessels which the Babylonians had taken from the tabernacle. The scene shows Cyrus returning the vessels.

Crete—Float No. 9: The island of Crete lies in the Mediterranean Sea, off the coast of Greece, and was the seat of ancient Mycenean culture. The Cretans were famous sailors and marauders of the sea. The Cretans also were learned in scientific lore and were noted physicians and surgeons. The first surgeon whose name is mentioned in history, however, was Hippocrates, a Greek, who is known as "The father of medicine." Aesculapius, the god of medicine, was worshiped by the sick. A wounded Cretan warrior is shown on the float being treated by the early surgeons, of which Crete possessed the first in history.

Phoenicia—Float No. 10: The Phoenicians were the world's first mariners who sailed the seas for commerce and exploration rather than for conquest. They also were the first sailors to venture upon the sea at night. They learned to guide their course by the North Star. Later they invented a sort of compass. The cities of Tyre and Sidon were the commercial ports of Phoenicia, and for a time were the principal trade marts of the world. A purple dye, known as Tyrian purple, could be obtained only there. The Phoenician mariners were the first to sail beyond the Mediterranean. They passed beyond the Pillars of Hercules—shown in the float—now called the Rock of Gibraltar.

Tyre—Float No. 11: Tyre, the chief city of Phoenicia, was ruled by a benevolent monarch named Hiram, whose name has stood through the ages as that of a great and good king. Hiram was of great assistance to Solomon in the building of the Temple. Hiram's workmen brought wood from the forests of Lebanon and stone from the quarries on the outskirts of Tyre. To Hiram, also, is credited the invention of the alphabet, a mode of writing which took the place of the old cuneiform writing.

Arabia—Float No. 12: Medina, a city of Arabia, made famous as the burial place of Mohammed, is the objective of thousands of Mohammedan pilgrims. Mahomet's tomb is shown behind the pilgrims. All good Mohammedans journey at least once during their lifetime to Medina or Mecca, the Prophet's birthplace.

Olympian Games—Float No. 13: The Olympic games was the chief Pan-hellenic festival of five days celebrated in honor of their god, Olympian Zeus. They were held at Elis, in central Greece, every fourth year, and the period between the games was called an Olympiad. For example, the third year of the interval between the first and second Olympic games was called the third year of the first Olympiad, and by this means the Greeks computed calendar time up to A. D. 394. The victorious contestants were crowned with wreaths of laurel.

Athens—Float No. 14: Athens, the chief city in ancient as well as modern Greece, was the center of Attic culture and the seat of government of the Attic Confederation of States. The city is called "The mother of the arts," because sculpture, painting, architecture, the drama, poetry and music originated there. In the great buildings of the Acropolis, particularly the Parthenon, shown as the main theme of the float, was gathered some of the most notable sculpturing of all times.

The Siege of Troy—Float No. 15: The Trojan wars lasted 10 years. During all this time the Grecian warriors besieged Troy. Finally the Greeks resorted to a military strategy now famous. They built a great wooden horse and stood it just outside the gates; then they marched their entire army away as if giving up the siege. The Trojans were overjoyed to find their city no longer beleaguered. As the crowning event of their celebration, they sent out men to drag the wooden horse into the city. Finally they grew tired of the revels, and when all was quiet, Grecian warriors who were inside the wooden horse opened the door of their hiding place, stole to the gates of the city and admitted the entire Grecian army.

Ulysses and Polyphemus—Float No. 16: After the Trojan war, Ulysses, one of the Grecian warriors, set out to return home, but was beset by many dangers, through all of which he passed safely and finally reached his home and his wife, Penelope. One of his adventures was being taken prisoner by Polyphemus, one of the three one-eyed giants known as the Cyclops. Ulysses contrived an escape by causing Polyphemus to drink too much wine. When he had fallen asleep, Ulysses poked out his single eye with a firebrand. While the infuriated giant was groping for the prisoners, they all tied themselves by their garments under the bellies of Polyphemus' sheep and the giant unknowingly sent them all out to freedom.

The Caliph of Bagdad—Float No. 17: Harun-al-Raschid, the most famous of all caliphs of the Arabian city of Bagdad, is reputed to have been the first to use the numerals now in universal use. Whether it was this caliph or another in whose reign originated the tales of Arabian Nights, is a matter of doubt, though they still exist as one of the literary classics. The Caliph had found his favorite wife unfaithful and so he decreed that each new wife should be beheaded the day after he married her. In course of time he found and loved Scheherazade. She beguiled him into extending the time limit from day to day, telling him the stories which we know as the Arabian Nights tales. By contriving to leave each story always incomplete she tricked the Caliph into permitting her to live long enough so the tale could be finished the next night. Thus, after 1001 nights of such entertainment he decided Scheherazade was too amusing to be beheaded.

The Colossus of Rhodes—Float No. 18: The Harbor of Rhodes, in the Aegean Sea, was almost landlocked, and so was a safe haven for ships in time of storm. The Rhodians, as an aid to commerce, built a beacon for mariners, which they lighted every night. This was a torch held in the hand of a statue of a man so large that he bestrode the harbor, and ships sailed in between his legs. No trace of this statue, known as the Colossus of Rhodes, and one of the Seven Wonders of the World, ever has been found, and many historians now believe it never existed. Others say the Colossus was destroyed by an earthquake about 200 B. C., and that later the fragments were sold by the conquering Saracens.

Rome—Float No. 19: The great Colosseum of Rome, where the Roman Emperors entertained the populace, and where many of the early Christians were martyred by being thrown to the wild beasts, was in its heyday in the reign of the Emperor Maximius. The expressions "slaughtered to make a Roman holiday" and "thumbs down" both originated in this great circus. The chariot races were always the principal features of the circus, being run for the greatest stakes, and the horses often being driven by the highest nobles of the empire. The chariot race feature of the famous book, "Ben Hur," was taken from this era.

The Three Wise Men—Float No. 20: Guided by a brilliant star which apeared suddenly in the heavens, three wise men, or magi, journeyed hundreds of miles over the sand of the desert to Bethlehem to see the new-born Christ Child. These men were Balthazar, an Egyptian; Gaspar, a Greek, and Melchior, a Hindu, and they met in the desert and proceeded together, following the star, to the stable where the Infant Jesus lay in a manger. Having found Him, they presented precious gifts, gold, frankincense and myrrh, paid devout homage, and then departed to their own lands.

TWO MEN AND BOY, HIT BY AUTOMOBILES, DIE

Child, 3, Run Down by Truck —One of Older Victims Only Recently Out of Navy.

Two men and a 3-year-old boy died yesterday of injuries suffered when they were struck by automobiles.

Ray Hourart, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hourart, of 1526 Menard street, playing in the street Friday with Anna Keen, 5, of 1522 Menard street, was hit by a truck driven by Ben Barth, 39, of 808 Geyer avenue. He died at 7 p. m. at the City Hospital.

Knocked down by a truck while crossing Olive street at Boyle avenue at 9 a. m. yesterday, Omar Armstrong 40 years old, of 4212A Olive, died of a fractured skull at City Hospital five hours later.

The driver of the truck was Edward Ringer, 25, of 1918 La Salle street, a chauffeur for the Swift Packing Co. Armstrong recently was discharged from the navy.

Henry Gendsberg, 60, of 900 Morgan street, who suffered a fractured skull when struck by an automobile at Tenth and Biddle streets on Aug. 27, died at Alexian Brothers' Hospital yesterday. The driver of the car was Mrs. F. L. McPherson, 28, of Alton.

As he sat on the curb at the southeast corner of Prairie and Garfield avenues last night, Wheeler Clark, a laborer, of 1901A Prairie avenue, was struck and injured critically by an automobile driven by Mrs. May O'Brien of 4049 Washington boulevard. He suffered possible skull fracture and internal injuries.

East St. Louis Woman Killed In Leaping From Auto.

Frightened by backfire of the engine, Mrs. Harry Carriker, of 122 North Fourth street, East St. Louis, leaped from the automobile in which she and her husband a railroad switchman, were returning from a vacation trip to Memphis, to the concrete highway 10 miles north of Bonne Terre, Mo., yesterday afternoon. Her head struck the pavement and she was killed.

S. L. VAUCLAIN AND OTTO KAHN WILL VOTE FOR HOOVER

Head of Baldwin Locomotive Works Says Prohibition Issue Is a Delusion.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Republican National Headquarters issued statements today announcing that Samuel L. Vauclain of Philadelphia, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, and Otto H. Kahn, New York banker, have declared for Herbert Hoover.

Vauclain declared that prohibition as a campaign issues was "a snare and delusion," and said it was more important to put in the White House a man like Hoover, who could deal with "the more important matters pertaining to the continuation of our present position among the nations of the world."

Kahn, whose announcement was made in a letter to Vice President Dawes, said: "I shall vote for Mr. Hoover and do my best to support him, even though on the subject of prohibition and the Volstead act I find myself more in accord with the expressed views of Gov. Smith."

J. HARVEY HURST, FORMER ST. LOUISAN, SLASHES THROAT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 15.—J. Harvey Hurst, 38 years old, who moved here from St. Louis nine years ago following separation from his wife, is in critical condition at the Atlantic City Hospital, having slashed his throat, wrists and abdomen with a razor and an ice pick in his room in a hotel. Police said he had been on a protracted drinking spree.

Hurst is the son of James H. Hurst, hotel owner, who died in 1912, at his home, 5649 Von Versen avenue. He bequeathed $20,000 to his son to be held in trust until he was 30 years old.

AUTO DRIVER ARRESTED AFTER CHASE, ACCUSED OF TIRE THEFT

Paul Silvey, 19 years old, a laborer, of 2031 Park avenue, was arrested at Tenth and Spruce streets last night after his automobile had been pursued for many blocks by James Crowell, 4032 Delmar boulevard, who told police he caught Silvey in the act of stealing a tire from Crowell's automobile as it was parked at Seventeenth and Walnut streets.

Woman Embezzler Keeps Out of Prison

She Admits Theft, Promises Restitution, Gets Another Job and Repeats Offense, as a Bookeeper.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The arrest of Winifred Douglas on a charge of embezzling $1400 brought to light yesterday a strange case of ability to obtain positions of trust, steal money and yet keep out of prison. It was learned that, in addition to the $1400 charge, her record included three others for a total of $1894. Each time she admitted the embezzlement, promised restitution, got another job and repeated the offense.

The woman is 34 years old, but looks younger. She is attractive. She dresses in the fashion, reads good books and talks well about them. Her high-school education, obtained at Watertown, Mass., she supplemented during three years with courses at New York University. She is a competent bookkeeper.

Yesterday her employers were expecting her at the office of Probation Officer Edwin J. Cooley to make her first payment in restitution of $1600 she stole two years ago from Jay Thorpe, Inc., an apparel store.

When she did not appear, it was learned that she had been arrested on a charge of falsifying her books and obtaining $1400 from the Tidewater Roofing Co.

Miss Douglas spent a few days in Jefferson Market prison last month, after she admitted stealing $57 from the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, for which she had been working after quitting her job with the Tidewater Roofing Co. July 13. She was released Aug. 22.

The next day she obtained a position as bookkeeper with Billings, Wark & Co., investment brokers. From her $35 a week she was to begin paying back the $1600.

During the 10 months she worked for the Tidewater company, there had been a bench warrant against her for violating probation and stealing $237.30 from the M. Ewing Fox Co., paint dealers. When she was arrested last month, she said she had been out of the city.

Her system was to take checks from the mail and later substitute them for cash.

She left her family at Cambridge, Mass., seven years ago and came to New York to lead her own life. A marriage soon ended in divorce, and a subsequent series of attachments seemed to have no effect upon her years of office work for a downtown banker, who was astonished when she was arrested two years ago. While she was in his employ, millions of dollars passed through her hands.

YOUTH CAUGHT LEAVING HOUSE ADMITS 20 OTHER BURGLARIES

Bert Williams, 21, Found With Stolen Jewelry; Has Served in Three Reformatories.

Bert Williams, 21 years old, was caught by police yesterday as he ran from the rear doorway of the home of Anthony Menke, a contractor, of 1926 De Soto avenue.

Neighbors had seen the youth break a living-room window and had summoned police. They found on his person several bracelets and other pieces of jewelry, the total valued at about $50. He admitted taking them from the house, police said. The Menke family were not at home.

Williams later confessed, according to police, that he had robbed about 20 other houses since Aug. 17, and had disposed of the loot in pawnshops. Police seized several articles of clothing in the room he rented in East St. Louis, a number of pieces of jewelry and a packet of pawntickets. Today Williams, who has served sentences at Boonville, Mo., at the Arkansas reformatory and at the Ohio reformatory at Mansfield, will be taken on a tour of the city, so he may point out the houses he says he robbed. He was released from Mansfield Aug. 15.

Sermon by Dr. Harrison Published

The current issue of "The Modern View" is a special number devoted to the Jewish holiday period. It contains a review of events of the last year, and special articles by American and European writers. A feature is the last New Year address delivered by the late Rabbi Leon Harrison, entitled "How to Make Your Life Worth Living in This New Year." A poem by Dr. Frances Dean McMurrough is on the theme of Yom Kippur the Day of Atonement. The cover bears a view of Michelangelo's statue of Moses.

TELLS SMITH WHERE BASEBALL POOL MET

Massachusetts Candidate Names Albany Hotel in Controversy With Governor.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—Clarence A. Barnes, candidate for the Republican nomination for Attorney-General of Massachusetts, in a public address today, said that in the week of June 4 "profits of the Albany baseball pool, amounting to approximately $100,000, were divided among the men higher up, in the Hotel Ten Eyck at Albany."

Barnes promised several days ago that in a speech today he would disclose to Gov. Alfred E. Smith, with whom he has been involved in a controversy over operations of the pool, the location of the headquarters. These, he said, were "within two minutes' walk of the New York State Capitol."

The controversy developed when Barnes recently wrote the New York executive asking him what new method of law enforcement he intended to inaugurate as President with regard to the eighteenth amendment that would be "more effective than your handling of the notorious baseball pool." The Governor, in a reply, accused Barnes of playing politics and invited him to come to Albany to assist the District Attorney there in prosecuting the pool.

"In order that Gov. Smith may not leave on his Western trip without knowing where the headquarters of the Albany pool were on the day I wrote him," Barnes said in his speech today, "I now tell him, without any prejudice whatever to one of the most respectable hotels in America, that during the week when he received my letter the profits of the Albany baseball pool, amounting to approximately $100,000, were divided among the men higher up in the Hotel Ten Eyck at Albany. This should be near enough to the Capitol to satisfy the Governor's sense of drama."

Referring to Gov. Smith's invitation to him to come to Albany, he said he would be in the New York State capital next Wednesday "prepared to accept the Governor's invitation and show him how a Massachusetts attorney of experience can get results when he means business and has the enthusiastic support of the decent people of the United States."

G. O. P. CAMPAIGN IN MISSOURI DIRECTED AGAINST GOV. SMITH

self to a discussion of state matters. He was very definite; particularly at the women's luncheon, in his pledge for strict law enforcement. Several times during the morning he had been questioned by women as to his attitude toward the enforcement of prohibition, some of the women evidently having doubts, in view of his statement in the primary campaign, that he did not think prohibition was the best way to handle the liquor problem.

Though giving no indication of his views on the proper theory for the valuation of public utilities, Caufield devoted several minutes to a discussion of the Public Service Commission, advocating sufficient appropriations to enable the Public Service Commission to make valuations speedily.

As a State-wide campaign, the Springfield affair could not be termed a huge success. It was a gathering of Springfield Republicans and Republicans of a few adjoining counties, with a very good attendance of job holders from the Capitol, in Jefferson City. There were few from St. Louis or Kansas City.

Patterson, in his speech, opposed any reduction in the tariff, but on the contrary said that if it appeared present rates on many articles were not sufficient to guard effectively against foreign competition, he favored increasing the rates.

He said he would not favor any amendments to the immigration quota law except where necessary to relieve unreasonable hardships on families, and took a position as a "big navy" man.

No Mention of Power Grab.

There was nothing in the speech touching the power interests' efforts to grab control of sources of water power, nor touching interference by the United States in the internal affairs of Latin-American countries.

While pledging support to every effort tending toward disarmament of the Nations of the world, Patterson said that until such agreements are reached and reasonably effectual, he favored "maintaining a navy second to none in the world, and an army adequate to the preservation of our peace and national security."

He touched briefly on inland waterways, favoring their improvement and their development as transportation routes "where it is possible and feasible."

Tells of Hard Times.

In discussing the subject of prosperity, Patterson argued that hard times followed the reduction of the tariff under a Democratic administration in 1893, and that following tariff reductions in 1913, the country was on the verge of disaster and was saved by the outbreak of the war, which, he said, created an unprecedented demand for American products.

He denied that the Republican administrations had failed to heed the needs of the farmer, saying that 26 laws asked for by agricultural interests had been passed. As among them he mentioned the emergency tariff act, the Capper co-operative marketing bill, the Capper-Tincher bill regulating grain exchanges, the packers' and stockyards' act, and the creation of a revolving fund for farm loan banks, which he said resulted in the bank resuming loans to farmers.

"Though much has been done to relieve the farmer's situation," Patterson said, "still more remains to be done, for there exists today a depression in agriculture which in the interest of all the people, and especially the farmer, must be relieved. The question of relief is a complicated and difficult one.

"I pledge myself, in the event of my election, to support and advocate such measure or measures as promise the greatest relief to agricultural interests. The Republican party has met and solved every great question that has been presented to it during its National existence, and it can be depended upon to solve this perplexing question upon sound and economic lines."

Pointing out the steps necessary to amend the Constitution, Patterson said every well-informed person knew that it was "utterly impossible" to obtain the ratification of a repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Explains Smith Strategy.

"The strategy of his campaign," he said, "is to try to capture the wet vote of the country upon the theory that his election will result in the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Gov. Smith, astute politician that he is, knows that this cannot be done.

"The issue he raises is insincere and raised for the purpose of deceiving that element in our population who are opposed to the eighteenth amendment.

"Never in the history of our country was there more hypocrisy displayed by one seeking the highest office in the gift of the people."

Patterson denied that Hoover was responsible for fixing the price of wheat during the war, and replied to the Democratic campaign propaganda that Hoover is not "an American and not a Republican." Patterson said Hoover had been a Republican his entire life and that he was "so good an American that he refused knighthood in a proud Empire."

Patterson, who is considered a dry, did not state his own position on prohibition.

CAULFIELD STANDS ON PARTY PLATFORM

Henry S. Caufield, Republican nominee for Governor, touched upon national and State issues in his speech tonight. He indorsed President Coolidge by name, but did not mention Gov. Baker. He talked law enforcement without alluding to prohibition, and he suggested means for improving State bank inspection and State regulation of public utilities, but offered no views on methods of valuation or on water power control. He had nothing to say of the State Insurance Department, but he indorsed a budget plan of State expenditures.

Hoover and Curtis, "both native sons of the Middle West," can find a solution for the farm problem, Caufield said. As to the State phases of the farm problem, he promised to be guided by the views of men of experience. He said "the proposal of the Democratic platform to let down the bars on immigration" would harm the farmer, by decreasing the buying power of labor.

Waterway development he discussed as a national matter in which the Governor of the State could co-operate effectively. Speaking of the State highway system, he indorsed the work of the Highway Commission, all of whom, with their predecessors under the present law, were appointed by a Republican Governor.

Education, well advanced in most parts of the State, has suffered in some localities, he said, and he favored "sufficient State aid, intelligently bestowed," as well as adequate support for the institutions of higher learning.

As to law enforcement, Caufield pointed out that the State Constitution charges the Governor with the duty of seeing that the laws are faithfully executed. "This means just what it says," the candidate commented, and he proceeded to pledge himself "by recommending and approving laws to simplify and expedite criminal procedure, by appointment of Police Commissioners in cities, and by arousing all persons in authority to the seriousness of the conflict between criminals and the State," to do all in his power to make crime unpopular and unprofitable.

Praising the service rendered by the Commissioner of Finance and his deputies, Caufield said the State was restricting their work unduly, withholding the number of deputies needed for thorough and effective inspection, although the banks pay the inspection fees. Supervision should be adequate or should be abandoned, he declared.

Likewise, he said, the State Public Service Commission has been hampered in its necessary work of evaluating the public utility properties, as the basis for fair rates. Although the utilities pay for the valuation work, he said, the work must stop when the amount allotted by the Legislature has been reached. He proposed to remedy this condition, with co-operation from the Legislature.

A budgeting system is necessary to increase efficiency and economy in the State Government, Caufield said, but added that Republicans may well be proud of the fiscal management of the State by officials of the party, since the Democrats went out at the beginning of 1921. He cited a reduction of assessed valuation of farm lands, for 1928, of more than $300,000,000 below the 1921 figure. He said the Republicans have reduced the State property tax rate from 15 cents to 5 cents on the $100 valuation, and the income tax rate from 1½ to 1 per cent, but have collected $1,000,000 more income tax annually. "Receipts from income taxes in 1926," he said, "almost doubled the receipts from general property taxes, relieving the farmer and other general property taxpayers to the extent of about $2,000,000 for one year."

In this connection, State Auditor Thompson was commended by name, though Gov. Baker had not been named.

Caulfield cited tables of the Department of Commerce to show that the average of State expenditures was $8.98 per capita, and the Missouri expenditure $6.90 per capita. He said a director of a bureau of research recently declared that "there are only 15 states with a lower per capita cost than Missouri, and of these, 12 are Southern states which are notoriously slow in providing necessary governmental service."

He advocated a longer maturity for drainage bonds, saying that the present 20-year period was too short, imposing undue hardship on some districts, particularly in Southeast Missouri. He said the periods should run to 50 years.

Women, he declared, should be admitted increasingly to participation in State affairs, especially the State's humanitarian activities.

BARRACKS CEMETERY EXPANSION DROPPED

Land to North Too Low, to South Too High in Price, It Is Said.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—A project for enlarging Jefferson Barracks National Military Cemetery at St. Louis has been abandoned because of the impracticability of extending the limits.

Examination of sites proposed showed the land on the north is low and not suitable and land on the south cannot be utilized without expenditure of considerable money.

There are 1450 grave sites available in the present cemetery, which at the prevailing rate of interment will provide space for 10 or 12 years. There are now approximately 14,000 graves in the cemetery. The site comprises 24 acres.

Holdup Man Gets $100 at Grocery

After locking Adam Adamik in the icebox of his store, 820 Lynch avenue, East St. Louis, at 9 o'clock last night, two armed men wearing handkerchief masks looted the cash register of $100 in pay checks and $50 in cash. A customer who came in 10 minutes later released Adamik.

Before you buy investigate the advantages that only Holland Vaporaire Heating can give you

BUYING a heating system is the most important home purchase you ever make. Comfort, health and satisfaction depend on what you buy. Once installed it is a part of your home—not easily changed. More than 75% of our business is the replacement of unsatisfactory heating systems. Think what this means! Before you buy, investigate Holland Vaporaire Heating. Get the facts. See why it is the first choice of experienced home owners everywhere. Prove for yourself that it is the permanent solution of your heating problem—a lifetime investment in comfort and satisfaction. Compare it point by point with any other system. Use this list of vital Holland features as your guide to value. Check every one before you buy—

1 Circulation—The Holland Vaporaire distributes clean, moist, warm air in measured volumes to every room, keeping temperature uniform, floors warm and the air good to breathe. Insist on this feature.

2 Humidity—Be sure the system you buy automatically vaporizes three to 25 gallons of water daily, moistening the air constantly so that a healthful temperature of 68 degrees is ideally comfortable.

3 Cleanliness—Demand leak-proof boltless construction, double-locking tongue and groove joints and one-piece castings. See that grills replace dust-collecting radiators that soil walls. Ashes should be dampened automatically as in a Holland.

4 Economy—Insist on a cone-shaped roller-bearing grate and a special air admitting firepot that thoroughly burns all the fuel. These and other patented features reduce fuel consumption 10% to 30% and practically pay for a Holland.

5 Convenience—Two or three firings daily is all the attention a Holland requires. There is no boiler to drain, no piping to freeze, no radiator to leak. Heating response is quick and direct. Minutes change cold to comfort. It successfully burns all kinds of fuel, including gas and oil. Be sure you get these features.

6 Durability—Make the first cost the last by buying a system built for lifetime service. Original Hollands installed 22 years ago are in perfect condition today. Every Holland casting carries a five-year free replacement guarantee.

7 Installation—A Holland Vaporaire System is planned and installed by experts under direct factory supervision to meet the individual needs of the home it serves. Guesswork is eliminated. Satisfaction is assured. Demand factory installation.

8 Guarantee—Buy only a heating system that carries a factory guarantee of home comfort. Demand undivided responsibility. Every Holland is sold with an ironclad written bond of complete satisfaction signed by the president and backed by our entire resources.

The best heat money can buy costs no more in the beginning and far less in the end. There's a lifetime Holland for every size of home and pocketbook. sweethearts—

It was quite a good toast in its day—"to our sweethearts and wives, may they never meet." But, of course, it fell flat in St. Louis, where all the wives are the sweethearts also.

However, the "good thought" for today is this: Every man's appearance is of interest to some woman—or, if it isn't, he is distinctly out of luck. Therefore, it is every man's duty, and it should be his pleasure, to look as well as the limitations of Nature will permit. And if that doesn't mean clothing made-to-measure-to-fit we miss our guess.

Fifty smart patterns in "MELBOURNE WOOLENS"—a medium weight fabric for Fall. Made of fine, soft, long-staple Australian wool. Tailors beautifully, holds its shape, wears. $60 per suit. (Others $50—$70.)

NYE IS OPTIMISTIC DESPITE 'A LOT OF ANTI-G. O. P. NOISE'

Tells Hoover He Thinks North Dakota Will Go Republican — Longworth Sure of Ohio.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Additional reports on political conditions in Ohio and North Dakota were made to Herbert Hoover today by Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and a delegation headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye.

Longworth, who has just returned from New England, said he had no doubt about the result in Ohio and that his chief interest in his home State was in the fight for seats in the House.

Nye, who recently announced his support for the Republican presidential candidate, was accompanied to headquarters by E. J. Graham, National Committeeman for North Dakota; Mrs. Minnie D. Craig, National Committeewoman, and C. C. Talbott, president of the North Dakita Farmers' Union.

Nye said that the opponents of Hoover were "making a lot of noise in North Dakota," but that he thought the State would support the national Republican ticket.

"The North Dakota farm leaders who went to Cedar Rapids to confer with Hoover about farm relief came back well satisfied with his attitude on the leading issue in our State," Nye said.

"He proved to them his sincerity of purpose and his desire to do something for the farming sections of the country."

Graham said the farmers of North Dakota consider the Hoover program for relief to be not only definite but sound.

"Our principle effort now is to clear away the misrepresentation of Hoover's attitude on the farm question," Graham said, "and to get over to every farmer just what the nominee proposes to do to assist agriculture."

Speaks Monday at Newark.

Hoover closed his desk today preparatory to getting into the active fight for the presidency. He will enter enemy territory Monday to deliver a speech at Newark, N. J., on the very fringe of the home state of his Democratic opponent.

Before setting forth from his campaign headquarters, Hoover also talked over conditions generally with Senator Capper, with Theodore Roosevelt, Hanford MacNider and other former service men with whom he had luncheon at the home of Assistant Attorney-General Donovan.

Capper told the nominee that business men with whom he had talked in New York had told him that, although they had been consistent supporters of Gov. Smith in his campaigns for the governorship, they would not vote for him for President. The Kansas Senator believed that enough of such voters were in hand to cut down Smith's majority in New York City so that the up-state Republican majority would swing New York for Hoover and Curtis.

Will Visit Dozen Towns.

The trip of the candidate to Newark will carry him through a dozen towns in northern New Jersey. Arriving at Newark early in the afternoon, he will make an automobile tour of Orange and Montclair. In the afternoon a call will be paid on Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison at their home at Menlo Park, where Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will spend the night. A reception has been planned at Newark late in the afternoon, after which the nominee will be taken to the First Regiment Armory, where at 9 o'clock, Eastern Daylight-saving time, he will begin his speech.

Tuesday morning Hoover will be driven to the Newark municipal airport to inspect the field. Later he will visit Jersey City, Hoboken and Weehawken, returning to Newark to be the luncheon guest of Senator Walter E. Edge. In the afternoon he will take another automobile trip through Princeton and Elizabeth to Trenton where his party will board the train for Washington.

FUND FOR TEXTILE STRIKERS

Union to Take New Bedford and Kenosha Disputes to A. F. of L.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The executive board of the United Textile Workers of America decided today to bring wage disputes in New Bedford, Mass., and Kenosha, Wis., before the October convention of the American Federation of Labor, in New Orleans.

Textile workers in New Bedford and employes of the Allen-A Hosiery Co. in Kenosha have been on strike for several months. The board also voted to provide a weekly fund to maintain the New Bedford strikers while they were out of work.

Poison Suspected in Women's Death.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 15.—Miss Lucille Jacobs, 22 years old, died in General Hospital early today under mysterious circumstances, and Dr. Glen C. Carbaugh, Deputy Coroner, ordered a chemical examination of the woman's viscera to determine if poison caused the death. An autopsy failed to disclose the cause. Police were seeking George Devasher, 28, who yesterday called an ambulance to take Miss Jacobs to the hospital, saying she was his wife.

FASHION EXPOSITION WEEK AT VANDERVOORT'S

GOV. SMITH RESTS BEFORE STARTING FOR WEST TONIGHT

Having Cleared Desk, Nominee Plays Golf With Son and William H. Todd, Ship Builder.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Priming himself physically for the two-week campaign tour through the West and Northwest he will start tomorrow night, Gov. Smith dismissed official and political cares from his mind today, played some golf and did considerable resting.

The nominee of the Democrats remained away from his office at the Capitol, having cleared his desk of all pressing business, and took it easy in the circle of his family and a few close friends.

After a late breakfast, the Governor, togged out for a round of golf, held his daily conference with newspaper men in the reception room at the Executive Mansion, as he awaited the arrival from New York of two members of a foursome—his son, "Young Al," as he prefers to call him, and his friend, William H. Todd, the ship builder.

Son and Friend on Yacht.

Todd and "Young Al," who is 27 and a practicing attorney in New York, came up the Hudson on the Sealmo, a yacht on which Todd years ago drove rivets and which later, after amassing a fortune, he bought for his own use.

The boat had been delayed, and the first question the Governor asked of his son, as he came into the room as the nominee was chatting with reporters and kissed his father on the cheek, was: "What held you up?"

"A barge got in our way," explained young Smith.

"Why didn't you whistle and make it get out of the way?" the Governor inquired with a grin. He announced he and his friend, James J. Riordan, who had come up from New York yesterday, would match their skill on the links with the newcomers.

Future Speeches in Doubt.

The Governor had little to offer in the way of news to the reporters, who last night had been guests at a motion picture party at the executive mansion. He reiterated that he was not prepared to announce speaking engagements after the trip, which will take him as far west as Denver and Helena, Mont., and keep him out of the State two weeks.

He also remarked he had abandoned a plan to take golf clubs along with the idea of getting exercise at some of the stops. When someone asked how many brown derbies he would take along, the Governor, who has received a number recently as gifts, said:

"I don't know. I have an idea they can be bought en route."

The 11-car special train on which Gov. Smith, his wife, his daughter, Mrs. John A. Warner, and members of his party will travel will leave New York City tomorrow evening. After a stop of a little more than an hour here, it will head westward at midnight.

To Deliver Six Speeches.

The Governor has set a limit of six speeches in as many states on the trip, exclusive of the one he is expected to deliver on his return to the State convention at Rochester, Oct. 1. His schedule calls for addresses in Omaha Tuesday night, then in Oklahoma City, Denver, Helena, St. Paul and Milwaukee.

The Democratic standard bearer has placed a bar on open air speeches and talks from the rear of his train. He advised the reporters who will accompany him that for days at a time while traveling they might find news scarce, as he wouldn't be doing much.

"Your train is scheduled to make 14 stops in Kansas alone," he was reminded.

"Yes, but there won't be much for you to write about that," the Governor came back. "You can say 'the Democratic candidate was hailed with great cheering at all stops,' and that will tell the story for all 14 of them."

MEXICO IS 51ST TO ACCEPT TREATY TO RENOUNCE WAR

Secretary of State Kellogg Notified; 13 Nations Still to Be Heard From.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Mexico today became the fifty-first nation to agree to the general pact for the renunciation of war. Secretary of State Kellogg announced that the Calles Government had informed him of its intention to adhere to the treaty, leaving 13 nations still to be heard from.

Two certified copies of the treaty will be sent out early next week to each of the 64 nations associated with the convention either through original signature or by being invited to adhere.

Russia's two copies will be sent through the French Government.

Bulgaria Gives Land to Poland.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 15.—Out of gratitude for Poland's generous aid during the recent earthquake in Bulgaria, this nation today presented the Polish nation a huge plot of land near Varna, on the Black Sea, as a site for a proposed great Polish sanitarium.

CHINA REPORTED FAVORABLE TO KELLOGG-BRIAND TREATY

Foreign Minister, However, Points Out Menace to World Peace by Armed Forces in Orient.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 15.—Although the text of China's reply to the American invitation to sign the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact has not been disclosed, it is learned that in it the Foreign Minister, Dr. C. T. Wang, has congratulated the United States for its efforts in behalf of world peace and has pledged Chinese support.

It is understood, however, that, in addition, he has called attention to the unsettled conditions prevailing in the Orient, terming the Far East "A danger spot in which it is possible to originate another world conflict due to the presence of foreign armed forces in China."

He also urged greater American interest in Chinese questions.

ARGUMENTS CLOSE IN DISPUTE ABOUT FRANKLIN AV. LOOP

Judge Falkenhainer Begins Study of Evidence and Precedents in Suit to Dismiss Temporary Order.

Circuit Judge Falkenhainer began yesterday to consider his decision on the city's motion to dismiss the temporary restraining order against construction of a trolley loop on a triangular block of ground at Third street and Franklin avenue, in the suit of the Commission Row Protective Association and the Wabash Railway to enjoin the project.

Lawyers for the five parties to the suit finished their closing arguments at noon, following a week's hearing.

Interests Involved in Suit.

Involved in the case are the following interests:

Commission Row, whose houses surround the loop site.

Promoters of a new produce market in another quarter, the Market Development Corporation, who wants to induce Commission Row to move.

Robert Kratky, lawyer for the new market promoters, who is said to have special influence at City Hall since he managed Mayor Miller's election campaign three years ago, and who got his wish this summer of having traffic ordinances stringently enforced on the "row."

The city, which granted the loop franchise as the best means its officials could devise for handling trolley traffic with minimum interference to truck and motor traffic.

The Public Service Co., which wants to reroute important car lines over the loop and because of the suit has had to suspend construction of new double tracks in widened Franklin avenue, between Fourth and Ninth streets, blocking that thoroughfare.

Franklin avenue merchants, who are losing business through the blockade.

The Wabash Railway, which handles the bulk of the produce, fruit and poultry freight, and is building a new $850,000 fruit auction house close to the "row."

The Missouri Pacific Railroad, which would stand to get much of the produce traffic if commission men moved to the proposed $2,000,000 market on its lines at Compton and Chouteau avenues.

In widening Franklin avenue between Third and High streets, the city condemned the triangular block at Third to become part of the general thoroughfare. Within the last few months it was decided to permit the trolley loop to go there, as a legitimate use of the highway. Commission Row argued that the spot had been acquired in order to provide more room for the throng of trucks and automobiles frequenting the district, but that street cars would increase the congestion. The question in the suit is: Did the city have the right to grant the franchise, and, if so, was it granted in legal form?

Need for Prompt Action Urged.

If Judge Falkenhainer thinks the franchise was justified and legal, presumably he will sustain the city's motion to dismiss the restraining order, in effect ending the case, unless means of appeal are available to the plaintiffs. If he overrules the motion, trial of the injunction suit on its merits will follow.

In his argument, Daniel Bartlett, attorney for the Commission Row Protective Association, contended that the loop franchise ordinance, passed last June, was defective and void, because, although its text mentioned a plat of the plan, no plat was filed in Board of Public Service records as required by charter, and because it does not define location of the loop. There is no evidence, the attorney continued, that the board approved an plat. Director of Public Utilities Pritchard, a board member, having testified that the plat on which he based his recommendation of approval of the loop was not the one produced in the hearing by the city.

Denies Plat Was Shown.

Approval of a plat is a condition precedent to passage of a franchise ordinance, Bartlett argued, saying the Board of Aldermen was deceived because the plat mentioned in the bill did not exist. The plat shown in court, according to the lawyer, showed the paving plans and one which Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks has on file is not a part of the record in the case.

Although its clerk reported to the Board of Aldermen that the required publication of the proposed franchise was made in the City Journal and St. Louis Times June 22, Bartlett declared, the publications actually were on June 26, two days before the bill was passed.

Says Court Lacks Jurisdiction.

Glendy B. Arnold, counsel for the intervening Franklin avenue merchants, argued that the Court had no jurisdiction in the case, but would have only if the plaintiffs suffered irreparable damage, different from the damage to the general public. He cited a line of court decisions upholding the right to grant the franchse.

If the ordinance is defective, Arnold went on, that was a matter solely between the city and the Public Service Co., but the fact that a plat could not be found was no proof one had not been filed.

Associate City Counselor Senti discussed law points relative to condemnation proceedings, and argued that the franchise was legal and that hence the plaintiffs had suffered no deprivation of their rights. He declared that the publication given the bill was sufficient compliance with the charter.

Stomach So Bad Milk Turns Sour
"My stomach was so bad even sweet milk fermented and caused gas. Adlerika has brought me real relief."—Mrs. R. Brightwell.
The simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, saline, etc., (known as Adlerika), has a most surprising DOUBLE action. First, it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel (most medicines act on lower bowel only) and removes foul matter that often poisoned the system for months. Second, Adlerika clears all GAS and sourness from stomach and bowels, bringing INSTANT relief from stomach trouble. And in addition, Adlerika removes metabolic poisons which cause neuritis, rheumatism, etc.
Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, writes: Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and bacilli."
Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."
J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated."
It will astonish you the great amounts of poisonous matter Adlerika brings out—matter you would never believe was in your system. In chronic constipation, gas bloating, sour stomach and sick headache, just ONE spoonful Adlerika brings wonderful relief. At leading druggists. Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores and other druggists.

THE NEW DEPARTMENT OF CURTAINS AND DRAPERIES

Will Delight You With Its Host of New Ideas!

"HOW CHARMING"—you will exclaim when you see the new section devoted to Curtains and Draperies on the Sixth Floor. And charming it most certainly is.

We made a coast-to-coast tour of the leading stores and specialty shops in our efforts to make this department one of the finest of its kind in the country.

Then we enlisted the services of a most capable fixture specialist. You'll be delighted with the result. And you'll find a host of decorative suggestions.

80 HOME WINDOW TREATMENTS

We have arranged 80 distinctive types of window treatment, adaptable to every type of modern home, representing the season's newest styles.

SIX DAYLIGHT ROOMS

These spacious rooms flank the windows on the Olive Street side. Here you can contemplate color harmonies in natural light and without interruption.

THE DECORATIVE SCHEME

It is quiet, unobtrusive, specially chosen because it would not distract your eyes from the colorful fabrics which are displayed along every aisle.

A MODERNISTIC NOTE

The influence of modern art adds interest to the handsome walnut fixtures and cases, which are a pleasant match for the luxurious new taupe carpet.

EVERYTHING IS SHOWN

Every scarf, fabric, tapestry, print, shade and rod is shown in an atmosphere as pleasant and as personal as your home.

ALL ACCESSORIES GROUPED

Here is a complete department in itself where you can buy rods, tie-backs, shades, fringes—everything you need, in fact, for making curtains, bedspreads or slip covers.

GREATLY INCREASED SPACE

The new department is considerably larger than its predecessor on the Fifth Floor and is infinitely more convenient in its arrangement. Easier of access, wider aisles, better lighting.

Here indeed, is a department that bids for the interest of every home-loving man and woman in St. Louis. Here you will find exquisite importations from Italy, France, Holland, Belgium, China, Japan and India.

VANDAL WHO RUINED PAINT ON CHURCH WALLS SOUGHT

Nonunion Man Was Employed Because He Had Nine Children, Says Building Superintendent.

Police are seeking the vandals who sprayed creosote and tar on the newly painted exterior of St. Luke's Methodist Church, under construction at Hereford street and Oleatha avenue, causing $300 damage, Friday.

Franklin P. Louis, the building superintendent, said the painting was done by a nonunion man, who received employment because he had nine children to support. Although a business agent of the painters' union objected to the nonunion painter, union workmen doing other jobs on the building made no protest, out of sympathy for the father of nine, Louis said.

Creosote also was sprayed on a newly painted flat at 1934-36 Cherokee street, owned by Theodore Rose. Nonunion men did the painting, police reported. Officers of the painters' union have disclaimed responsibility for such acts of vandalism.

To prevent that "used car" look

You can keep your car from ever having that cheap, "used-car" look with almost effortless ease, and for a cost of about $1.00 a year. You can do this by reason of the simple, common-sense action that is built into Common Sense Auto Cleanser. Which is to remove the dull film from your car without action upon the finish. This scientific, safe principle has now resulted in the adoption of Common Sense by careful car owners and car dealers in every state from coast to coast. If you would like to see how truly beautiful your car can look'... and may be kept.. especially if its finish is pyroxylin lacquer, such as DUCO. Call in person or send $1.00 for a supply; satisfaction or refund guaranteed. Common Sense Mfg. Co., 2118 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

GERMANY READY TO MODIFY DEMAND AS TO RHINELAND

Government's Reply to the Powers to Reiterate Plea for Evacuation, With a Supervisory Commission.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—The German Government's reply to Powers concerned with the occupation of the Rhineland was drafted at a prolonged session of the Cabinet today and will be communicated to them by Chancellor Mueller at Geneva tomorrow.

The official communique will announce briefly the Cabinet's approval of the procedure thus far followed by the German delegation at Geneva. Parliamentary leaders, however, learn that the German Government will reiterate emphatically its previous demand for the immediate evacuation of all Rhineland zones.

As compensation for this concession on the part of the former allies, it is believed Germany would agree to the proposal concerning the establishment of a special "commission of occupation" in the evacuated territory. Her acceptance of this commission would be conditioned on the Powers' agreement to terminate it in 1935.

Separate Debt and Evacuation.

The Cabinet also approved the establishment of a special commission to determine the exact amount of Germany's future reparations payments, on condition that the reparations issue be dealt with independently of evacuation.

In the absence of Chancellor Mueller and Foreign Minister Stresemann, today's Cabinet Council was presided over by the Minister of Defense, Gen. Groener, the oldest ranking Cabinet member. The reports of Mueller from Geneva, in the opinion of Stresemann, who is recuperating at Baden-Baden, constituted the basis of deliberations, however.

The Cabinet's instructions to Mueller reaffirm the German position on evacuation as enunciated by Stresemann in the Reichstag speech Jan. 30. In that speech he declared that the German Government could not purchase liberation of the occupied areas at a price which would impose a system of control extending beyond the letter of the treaty of Versailles and which would be calculated to perpetuate conditions of mistrust between neighboring peoples, thus hindering the progress of pacific reconciliation.

Demand Complete Evacuation.

The Cabinet's decision today, it was learned, demands that complete evacuation of remaining zones shall precede installation of the so-called commission "for establishment of facts and verifications" and that the latter's function shall not extend beyond 1935. This date is that provided in the treaty of Versailles for evacuation of the third Rhineland zone.

In the opinion of the German Government, this commission is to be given the character of a purely transitory agency and shall not transcend in its functions the authority of the League of Nations or the letter of the Locarno pact. This latter proviso, it was indicated, will call for juridical interpretation of Article 4, section 1, of the Locarno pact, which vouchsafes Germany complete freedom of Rhineland control.

The Cabinet's treatment of the reparations angle proved a less difficult issue, and its acceptance of a special committee of experts to study the reparations problem and determine the fixation of German liability was definitely coupled with the proviso that such commission shall operate independently of the Rhineland issue.

Leaders Hold Optimistic View.

Leaders of the political parties constituting the present coalition party are inclined to take a more hopeful view of the progress of the Geneva deliberations, despite the partisan activities of the German Nationals, who are demanding the breaking off of Geneva negotiations immediately upon the return of the German delegation.

Count Westarp, Nationalist member of the Reichstag, in a statement to the press, said: "We most emphatically warn the German people against engaging in any one-sided continental bargaining on reparations. America gave a name to the Dawes plan, appointed the Reparations Agent and is creditor and money lender. Only with, not without, and certainly not against, America can the solution be obtained. America declines, as we have hitherto declined, fusion of reparations with allied debts. We must not, either in reality nor even in semblance, lend ourselves to being made a battering ram of France in France's dispute with the United States."

Boulder Dam Measure Indorsed.

By the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The Swing-Johnson bill, providing for public construction and ownership of the Boulder Dam power and irrigation project in Arizona, was approved by the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers' International Association, in convention, late yesterday, it was announced.

WELDONA FAMOUS REMEDY FOR RHEUMATISM NOW IN ST. LOUIS AT LOCAL DRUG STORE

Weldona Man Tells How Common Pin May Help Rheumatism—Gives Free Book Entitled "Germs of Rheumatism," to All Who Call—Cites Remarkable Cases.

Weldona, the preparation which for the past ten years has astonished New York people by the remarkable recoveries from rheumatism attributed to it, may be secured in this city. The Weldona man, who is meeting the public to explain more about Weldona, said: "First, I want it understood that Weldona is not a remedy for all ills but recommended for rheumatism only. Second—Weldona is not a 'patent medicine,' but a doctor's prescription put up in tablet form, and the result of the very latest scientific medical advancement. I am going to give out free of charge a very interesting 24-page, fully illustrated book: 'The Germs of Rheumatism—How they Live; How they Die'; and every rheumatic should get a copy. You don't have to buy Weldona, but come and get the book and learn what is being done for this disease.

THE WELDONA MAN
Who Meets Public Daily

Take the common pin—very few would ever think that such an article could help strengthen and educate the muscles of a rheumatic, but follow the directions in the book and watch your progress. You have to go after the rheumatism in the blood, but that don't mean you will have to wait a year for results—Weldona shows results from the very first, and one trial proves it. Take the man or woman suffering from painful and stiff joints, give them Weldona a week and note the improvement; the stomach is also aided, the strength returns and the pain and stiffness is almost a thing of the past.

"I want to meet every man and woman suffering from rheumatism. I want them to know how they can find help, no matter how long they suffered.

"There's help waiting in Weldona for them. I will be at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Ave., St. Louis, Mo., every day to explain more about Weldona and give out the books free of charge." Ask or write for your free book.

BOTH WHEAT AND CORN HOLD EARLY ADVANCES

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 15.—Corn was strong on today's grain market, closing for September delivery at $1.04⅞, a gain of 1½c. The December description was 5c higher at 76¾c. Wheat closed ¼c up for December at $1.13¾.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. Offerings of good were light. There were orders for hard winter starchy types, but little and ordinary qualities were slow. Nor was there much demand for damaged No. 3 white wheat. Hard wheat was ½c up. There was a demand for light colored blending wheat. Nebraska No. 2 hard sold at 1½c under Omaha December price; No. 1 hard after the close at $1.13. Corn was ½c to 1c higher. Offerings were light, but the demand was rather narrow. The main buyers were mills and industries. Oats were steady to ½c up. Offerings were light and there was a fair local and shipping demand. A close clearance was effected.

Starting at better prices than yesterday's close, both wheat and corn went higher later, both wheat and corn were higher.

December wheat opened at $1.13¾, up ¼c, and later went to $1.13⅝. May wheat opened at $1.21, a rise of ¼c, and extended its gain to ⅝c.

Corn opened at $1.04⅞ for September, a gain of ⅛c, and later was ½c higher. The December corn, at 76¾c, was up ⅝c over yesterday's close.

Liverpool wheat was 1c lower for October, and ⅝c lower for December and March. At Winnipeg December wheat was ¾d lower.

Local wheat receipts, which were 170,800 bushels, compared with 214,200 a week ago and 110,600 a year ago, included 24 cars local and 49 through. Corn receipts, which were 33,600 bushels, compared with 96,600 a week ago and 102,200 a year ago, included 14 cars local and 3 through. Oats receipts, which were 40,000 bushels, compared with 28,000 a week ago and 56,000 a year ago, included 18 cars local and 2 through. Hay receipts were 9 cars local and 5 through.

CORN HIGHEST IN MONTHS, WHEAT UP, AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Flurried buying of September delivery of corn led to spirited rise in all grain values today, with the end of September approaching and the many million bushels of corn contracted for here but no adequate stocks in sight, traders who were short became anxious bidders, and forced prices up from the start. The general market appeared also to have been seriously oversold, stimulating strength wheat rose briskly with corn.

Closing quotations on corn were buoyant, 2¼@3¼c net higher; wheat 3¼c to 1c up; oats showing ¼c to 5c advance, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 20c.

The entire corn market finished at virtually the day's top figures with September surpassing any price which that delivery has heretofore touched for months. Conspicuous in the buying were houses with foreign connections. Little attention meanwhile was paid to reports that were circulated saying European interests were inquiring at what basis they could cancel orders which had been given for December-January shipments of corn on the contrary new crop deliveries were sympathized with the action of September and scored all-around gains, although cash corn showed relative weakness, being 1c to 1½c a bushel lower compared to September.

Advances in the corn market today were in the face of favorable weather for the growing crop. On the other hand, modification developed from any quarter pointing to a material increase in old corn offerings, and European reports were quite pessimistic relative to any improvement of the crop outlook ahead for feed grains. Moreover an authoritative British forecast was received telling of likelihood of heavy exports of United States corn and also stating that by early spring world stocks of corn would be light.

Notwithstanding announcement that Canadian deliveries of wheat for a single day have broadened out to 1,000,000 bu, wheat prices here followed the corn market un-grade. Wheat traders took shortness that today's receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth totaled but 1359 cars, against 1705 cars a year ago. This circumstance was regarded as confirming existence of systematic plans to hold wheat supplies back from terminal markets. Oats and rye paralleled the action of wheat.

Provisions advanced with grain and as a result of buying ascribed to packers.

LEAD, ZINC AND COPPER

Lead was quoted in St. Louis today at $8.25 per 100 pounds.

Slab zinc was quoted at $6.25 per 100 pounds.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Copper strong; spot and future, 15. Quicksilver, $131; other metals nominally unchanged.

Dry Goods Market.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Dry goods primary markets were noticeably quiet today due to the general observance of the Jewish holidays. Cotton goods were steadier, in the men's wear division reports indicate a fair amount of business already booked for spring. Silk crepes are being cut up freely. New lines of printed wash goods opened for the season are attracting many buyers, who are taking small initial lots. Burlaps were slightly firmer. Some improvement is reported for the week in the demand for fine and fancy goods in the grey, but prices are most unsatisfactory. Sales of cotton goods this week were in excess of production.

Day's Business for U. S. Treasury Is $2,000,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Treasury of the United States was transacting approximately $2,000,000,000 worth of business today, due to the maturing of Liberty loan bonds, the quarterly payment of income taxes, the sale of $550,000,000 of short-term Treasury certificates and $70,000,000 payment of interest on outstanding bonds.

The outstanding $970,000,000 of third Liberty loan 4¼-per-cent bonds came due and more than $100,000,000 of them were turned in as subscriptions on the 4½-per-cent certificates the Treasury sold today to meet its outstanding obligations. In addition to the $550,000,000 received from the sale of the certificates, the Government was receiving approximately $450,000,000 in income taxes, making a total of $1,000,000,000 coming into the Treasury, with the $970,000,000 for the Liberty loan bonds and $70,000,000 in interest being paid out.

Guest of Electrical Engineers.

Totals	...123,893	110,413	93,641

CATTLE—Receipts heavy in cattle, general tendency lower in steers, mixed yearlings and steers off in cows. Other classes at or near a steady basis. Steer top, $17.50; bulk $13.00 to $17.25. Western range steers bulked $10.25 to $13.50; top for mixed yearlings, $17.25; bulk of best $14.00 to $15.00. Bulk beef cows $8.00 to $9.50. Bulk canners and cutters $6.00 to $7.50. Bologna bulls mostly $8.00 to $9.00, top $9.50. Bulk stocker and feeder steers steady, but weak at $8.00 to $11.85, top $12.75. Veals closing steady, top $18.00.

HOGS—Receipts moderate; market somewhat lower; top $13.40; bulk $12.50 to $13.25; pigs $10.50 to $12.75; sows $11.00 to $12.00; stags $10.00 down.

SHEEP—Receipts modest; lambs 50c lower, other classes steady. Top $14.75; bulk $14.00 to $14.50; culls $9.50; fat ewes $4.00 to $6.50.

Review of Hog Market.

Although hog prices attained the highest levels since November, 1926, during the past week's trade, as compared with a week ago values today are decidedly lower. Prices were on the upgrade and markets were active early in the week, but after Thursday early the market was in a semi-demoralized condition, this being especially true of trading late in the day. Packers, with enough hogs coming through direct channels for their daily kill, could afford to lay back each day and hammer values. Shippers were the principal outlet throughout the week, but orders fell off considerably in late sessions. Butchers and speculators furnished good offsets.

Hogs ranged from $12.40 to $13.40 during the week, with a difference of 100c to 300's ranging from $12.40 to $13.35 during the period. Some 400-pound butchers cashed at $12.50 at the week's high time.

Heavyweight offerings continued in best demand with light and heavier kinds being discounted. Grassy half fat descriptions showed more than ordinary declines in prices. Heavies sold fairly well and fluctuated least of any weight of class.

Packers were a good deal crossed good demand and prices are well over a week ago. Top was $12.70 on 100's with sales ranging from that level down to $12.40 for pigs. Common kinds dipped to $7.

Packing sows also were in good demand and finished the week closed within the current year. Top reached $12, with most sales at $11.75 to $11.85. Stags caused at $8.50 and $11.50 down.

Cattle Market.

The heaviest receipts of the current year were featured here this week and proved the main feature of the cattle mart. While price changes were in sympathy with other markets, the tendency was downward and no new tops were made. Demand was fair considering the big supply and a clearance was made each day.

Native beef steers closed mostly 25 cents off, some of the medium and plainer kinds more. Top reached at $17.50 for light weight kinds, while a string of heavy steers at $17.25 represented them in this class. There was a good outlet for sales at $17 and above, bulk of all natives caught in a spread of $13 to $17.25. Some light and handy weight steers sold in the $10 and $11 columns.

Western grassers totaled better than 2500 cars, with the exception of a few choice steers and yearlings from Oklahoma. Prices advanced during the Monday and Tuesday session but encountered a sharp break in Thursday's offerings. Loss for the week 15 cents to 25 cents lower on steers. Top was $13.50 and low was $8.75, bulk of sales ranging from $9.50 to $12.50.

Butcher steers and heifers displayed the most uneven trend of any class of livestock here. The past week's trade was featured under good in quality were especially irregular and declines of 50c and more were recorded in some cases. Top was $17.50 for carload lots, sales above $15 very scarce. Most of the desirable kinds cleared at $14 to $15, grass fed $10 to $12 and plain grades down to $8.50. Eight cars of Oklahoma heifers brought $11.75.

Although a declining market was featured on cows in the opening trade, there was a stronger trend to prices in subsequent deals and final sales were 50c to $1 higher, some spots 15c to 25c off. Most beef grades made from $8 to $9.50, topsy kinds at $10 to $10.50 and canners, cutters and common butchers and cutters the popular spread was $6 to $7.50.

Bulls found a good demand and held steady. A few butcher bulls scored $11, most beef bulls around $9.25 to $10.25 and bologna $8 to $9.25. Common bulls ranged from $7 down.

Price changes in veal calves were small in stocker and feeder cattle here but movement toward the week's close lacked opening activity. Steers ranged from $7.25 to $12.75 with bulk cashing at $9.25 to $11.85. Most cows sold at $7.25 and $8.50, with bulk of offerings at $7.50 to $8.

Top veals closed at the same figure in effect the previous week's finish, $18 claiming bulk, with best lots quotable at $15.50 while second cut calves varied from $11 to $15 and heavy calves from $8 to $11. Stock calves ranged principally at $6.75 throughout the period.

The Sheep Market.

Heavier samples of sheep and lambs around the week with a diminished demand caused sharp breaks at other centers. The demand and supply locally did not include any quotations, however, and declined in sympathy with breaks at other markets and at the close of the week decided breaks were in evidence, values below last Saturday. Plain and cull grades of lambs and aged sheep were unchanged throughout the week. Feeding lambs found principal outlet again, butchers taking a modest number. Quality faced about like last week, which is little.

High ton for the period to packers and butchers was $14.75. Bulk of desirable offerings sacked at $14.50@14.60 with some plain to fair kinds reaching at $10.50 to $13.75. Culls sold largely at $12.50 and below, equal lot reaching only $10. Skins at $6 to $9.

Fat ewes continued to bring $4 to $6.50 with bulk $5.50@6.25. Good to choice ewes and wether lambs $14.00 to $14.25, fair to good $13.50 to $14.00, plain to $10.50 to $13.50, cull and common $8.00 to $10.00, yearlings $8.00 to $11.00, mostly to good $10.00 to $11.00, cull and common $7.00 to $9.00. Good to choice mutton ewes $6.00 to $6.50, plain to fair $4.00 to $6.00, choice choppers and bucks $3.00 to $3.50, canners $1.00 to $2.00.

Horse and Mule Review.

A review of the week's horse and mule trade reveals little new to chronicle, although a strong selling basis was encountered for all kinds, with the exception of fancy horses and broke mules which sold cheap. Demand exceeded the supply in fat cotton mules and there was a good call for big mules and miners, as well as good road mules. Virtually all of the horse supply was of a cheap character but trade was good considering and prices held firm. Market ruled quiet toward the week's close, but to modest sumings, most arrivals late in the week consisting of offerings for the second range sale to be held Tuesday. Some good draft bred range horses are reported for next week's trade.

NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS—Good to choice draft, $140@200; medium to good draft, $85@140; good to choice chunks $75@100; medium to good chunks $50@80; choice Southern horses, $40 to $85; fair to good southern horses, $25@35; smooth-mouthed southerners, $15@25; plugs, $5@15.

NATIVE MULE QUOTATIONS—Draft mules, 16 to 17 hands, $175@225; mine mules, 15 to 16½ hands, $125@160; mine mules, mares fat, good hair, 16 to 16½ hands, $150@175; cotton mules, mares fat, good hair, 15 to 15½ hands, $115@150; cotton mules, mares, fat, good hair, 14.2 to 15 hands, $90@115; cotton mules, mares, rough-haired, 15 to 15.2 hands, $80@100; cotton mules, mares, rough-haired, 14.2 to 15 hands, $75@65; horse mules $15@20 per head less than above quotations.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Another week of boiling markets finds stocks higher than ever with the public in up to its ears, but the fundamentals underlying this orgy of speculation remain unchanged. To what limits a bull market can go when the craze for stocks becomes countrywide, precedent affords no basis for judgment. No longer can the wild movement in equities be related to changes in the economic structure. The market responds to bullish developments in the news but ignores those of a bearish nature.

"This week's big gain in brokers' loans emphasized the increased public buying of stocks on borrowed funds and lifted the volume of such loans to a recent high level with $178,000,000 of the record peak reached early in June previous to the market's setback. And yet the announcement was followed by fresh accumulations of stock until late yesterday afternoon, when sharp declines in recent sensational leaders depressed the whole list.

Big Gold Flow Unlikely.

"A certain element in the financial district favors the view that gold will soon flow back in substantial quantities and will in time soften money rates again. That the autumn months will witness a return of some gold to this country is possible, but that would be nothing new at this season of year. Presumably the central bank authorities on both sides of the water will step in to check such a flow, however, before enough metal moves to influence money conditions greatly. Nevertheless, those bullishly inclined seized upon a small import of gold now scheduled as a constructive factor just as they made the most of an easing tendency in th ecall rate with the approach of Sept. 15. Some relaxation in the rate for demand funds was to have been expected around mid-September in connection with the treasury settlements. Within a week presumably the volume of funds going out and coming in will be evened up and leave the call money market unaffected.

"The maturity of third Liberties on Sept. 15 obligates the Government to pay out about $870,000,000, which is increased by $70,000,000 in interest charges to around $1,040,000,000. Actually the total will be substantially less than this sum since not all of the thirds will be surrendered promptly. On the other hand the Treasury will receive approximately $550,000,000 through the recent nine months' note issue and another $500,000,000 in quarterly tax payments. Considering that the Treasury has a cash balance with its depository bank of about $150,000,000 it is in an exceedingly comfortable position. Nevertheless the lag in payments usually prompts the Treasury to put funds temporarily into the market through an overdraft which in this instance might reach $200,000,000.

"To what extent this new reserve bank credit will ease money in the next few days depends largely upon the use to which it is put by the banks. If employed to pay off debts at the reserve institutions it will not soften rates. If put into the open market it will, unless offset by reserve action, create a temporary flush of funds available on call. Strangely enough the significant rise in time money to 7 per cent for the first time in seven years did not receive so much attention as a relatively unimportant drop in the call rate.

Cheerful View of Bonds.

"Fully as puzzling as the situation in stocks is that in bonds. At no time in recent years have views on the trend in bond prices presented so confusing a mixture of conclusions as now. Whether from this level bonds will fall substantially before reaching an equilibrium, or will creep slowly forward in response to a latent demand remains a lively topic for prediction in bond circles. Certainly recent flotations have gone over better than was expected, although it took a real adjustment in pricing by underwriting houses to awaken the demand.

"Some large houses met the situation in early summer by reducing the price of what they had on their shelves until they were able to eliminate large inventories. Others cling to the belief that bonds will recover in the autumn and that inventories now carried at a loss can then be cleaned up on a satisfactory basis. Whatever the outcome sentiment in bond quarters has become distinctly more cheerful of late.

GOOD BUSINESS BEHIND WEEK'S STOCK ADVANCES

Important Financial Develments Include Mellon's Favorable Statement and Prospects of Oil Problem Solution.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Important financial developments followed each other in quick succession this week.

Time money rates advanced to 7 per cent, the highest in seven years. Establishment of a new low level for the year by sterling exchange was followed by the announcement of a shipment of $2,200,000 in gold to New York from Great Britain, which has taken more than $500,000,000 in the yellow metal from this country since last September. Federal Reserve brokers' loans increased $95,000,000 but the banks reported an increase in the holdings of Government securities and bills bought in the open market.

Meanwhile, the stock market was on a wild "bull" rampage which carried scores of issues to record high levels. Widespread public speculation resulted in a series of 4,000,000 share days such as those which preceded the break last June. Heavy profit taking and "bear" raids against the amusement shares checked the advance on Friday but the upward movement was resumed today.

Lower Money Expected.

Call money, which was quoted high as 8 per cent on Monday, ased to 7 by the end of the week, ith a temporary rate of 6 or 6½ er cent money predicted in bank- ing circles for next week. Time oney and commercial paper rates eld firm.

From a business angle, the most mportant developments of the eek were the optimistic survey of onditions by Secretary of the reasury Mellon, the statement of alter C. Teagle, president of the tandard Oil Co. of New Jersey, hat a better understanding of the orld oil problem is in prospect, nd an advance of ¼ of a cent a ound in copper prices.

Speculation in the stock market reached its greatest intensity in the amusement shares which were eavily bought on merger rumors nd predictions of unusually large earnings through the new talking picture devices. Plans for the consolidation of the Stanley Co. of America and Warner Bros. Pictures were announced during the week, and were followed by the traditional "selling on the good news." Warner Bros. issues reacted about 40 points from the high levels established on Tuesday in Friday's reaction.

Favorable Steel Trade News.

Expectations of large fourth quarter earnings, reports of record-breaking August steel ingot output and a substantial increase in the August unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation provided the background for the advance in the steel shares. Republic Steel was easily the outstanding feature although United States Steel common, Ludlum and a few others also moved into new high ground. Motors were under brisk accumulation on reports of record-breaking mid-summer sales and production of the leading manufacturers. General Motors advanced to within a fraction of the year's high on expectations of a substantial extra cash dividend at the November meeting of directors. Chrysler, Packard and Hupp also sold at the year's best prices. A sensational gain in motor products, the enormous turnover in Briggs Manufacturing and the establishment of new highs by Murray and Dirilins bodies featured the accessory group.

Food, chemical, tobacco, merchandising, public utility, packing, baking and farm implement issues also contributed their quota of new high records.

By Herman Wecke.

Alvin Crowder, the Browns' star right-hander and the American League's leading pitcher, stopped the Yankees with five hits yesterday afternoon and the Browns won the first game of the series, 6 to 5. It was a notable victory for the men of Howley and a disastrous one for the troupe Huggins is chaperoning through the West in search of another championship.

First consider the Yankee standpoint. When the game started the New Yorkers had a lead of a game and a half over the Athletics. Now that margin is a mere half contest and another defeat today, coupled with another victory for the Mackmen, would send the high-priced Jake Ruppert entry back into second place.

And then for the Browns. It made third place a bit more certain and it put the locals ahead of the New York club on the season's series. The Browns have now won 10 games, while losing nine. Contrast this with last season, when the St. Louisans won one game, after dropping 21 straight to the Yankees. St. Louis is the only club in the American League with the distinction of having won more contests than it has lost to the pacemakers. Which is quite an honor for the battling youngsters Howley has under his wing.

A Well-Pitched Victory.

Some 10,000 persons were present to cheer Crowder and the other Brownies in their efforts. The triumph marked the eighteenth success for Crowder against but five defeats for the campaign.

Crowder pitched a truly great game. For the first seven frames he was a two-hit pitcher. He ran into a Ruth homer in the first with Combs on base, but from then until the eighth he had the Yankees buffaloed. However, in the eighth his control went a bit bad and two passes and two hits thrown in added three runs to the Yankee total, and what looked like a New York rout was turned into a close battle.

HIGH STRUNG WINS RICH FUTURITY

Wray's Column

On to Detroit!

OLD DAME RUMOR is determined to land our Cardinals in Detroit, next year, in spite of the hot resistance of President Sam Breadon and all the team's stockholders.

The fifteenth cousin of a man, whose son went to school with a boy who knows one of the Cardinal window-washers, broadcast the report that a company which specializes in paint jobs that make a flivver look like a straight eight, has the Cardinals hog-tied, ready for delivery f. o. b. Detroit, next winter.

"It may be true," sighed Sad Sam, who presidents for the Red Birds, "but I know nothing about it. They may be able to sell or transfer this club up North, in spite of the opposition of the controlling stockholder. But I have never seen such things done.

Dame Rumor Is Kayoed.

"PERSONALLY I have not had negotiations with anyone regarding my ball club. You may say for me that it will not be moved to Detroit although perhaps I am putting it a little strong. I might be bumped off, and the transfer arranged afterwards. Short of that, I don't see how it can be done."

While we have a high regard for Dame Rumor, we prefer to string with Sam, who in the past has had a wicked way of landing on the [illegible] beldame and knocking her out. Sam's comeback, today, seems again to have knocked the old girl kicking.

How It Began.

WHAT started it? You tell 'em. A few years ago when the Cards' were about to be put out of Sportsman's Park because of an expired lease, the report arose that the Cardinals would be transferred to Detroit.

With the renewal of the lease on Sportman's Park the rumor expires. The lease still has several years to run, with a renewal option.

Also, to shift to Detroit requires the UNANIMOUS vote of all the other clubs in the league, together with the MAJORITY approval of clubs in the rival league.

The makers of the National agreement tried their best to prevent hap-hazard shifting of the circuit in either league, and have almost succeeded.

High Strung, away fast and running straight and true, ran into the lead early, showed excellent speed and held on gamely. Roguish Eye handled his weight well, displayed good speed and held on well. Jack High made a game effort, was next best. Healy was running strong at the end. Chestnut Oak ran a good race. Blue Larkspur failed to show any speed and was outrun.

Odds: High Strung, win, 15-1; place, 8-1; show, 4-1. Roguish Eye, place, 10-1; show, $5-1. Jack High, show, even.

By the Associated Press.

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Before a record breaking crowd which was estimated at 40,000, and over a lightning fast track, the Futurity, America's richest stake, was run here today and Marshall Field's High Strung won in a driving finish. He was quoted at 15 to 1. J. J. Coughlin's Roguish Eye, fresh from West, was second and G. D. Widener's Jack High, third. G. A. Cochrane's Healy was fourth.

The time, 1:19, is a new track record for the six and three-quarters furlongs. The winner received $97,990, the second horse $12,600, the third $6800, and the fourth $1000.

The surprise of the race was the miserable performance of the favorite, Blue Larkspur. The colt carried 130 pounds and at no part of the journey was he ever in the running. It appears that his recent fast work took the edge off his speed.

Twenty-four Start.

The field that paraded for the Futurity numbered 24, one of the largest fields that has gone to the post for the race in recent years. The big field paraded past the stand and they stretched out over a furlong. They made the bend into the chute and then galloped slowly to the starting point nearly seven furlongs away.

There was a delay of five minutes at the barrier and the shout went up "They're off." The big field was strung across the track and every entrant ran straight. There was no crowding. Every jockey was holding his mount straight. Flashing past the main track High Strung was leading with Roguish Eye secon dand Jack High third. The rest was pretty well strung out.

It looked like a charge of cavalry. High Strung had gained a length lead over Roguish Eye, with Jack High third in the final sixteenth. McAtee, who had the mount, was riding High Strung hard and Coltiletti, on Roguish Eye, was also working hard. It was a hard drive to the finish and High Strung held on long enough to win by a nose. Roguish Eye took the place by four lengths, while Jack High was third, 10 lengths ahead of Healy.

The Grand National Steeplechase run over the trying course of three miles resulted in a fine finish, and it was won by Mrs. Jayne Whitney's Jolly Roger, which carried top weight, 167 pounds. He was ridden by "Specs" Crawford, and he never rode a better race. The Fox Catcher Stable's Ruler was second and Eben Pyers' Skedaddle third. The race carried a net value of $35,850.

The pace in the early part was very fast for a steeplechase, Erne II., stable mate of Jolly Roger, and Ruler attempted to kill each other off in the first two miles. Erne II was the first to crack and he lost his rider, while Ruler ran into a long lead. However, Crawford rushed Jolly Roger up. The big chestnut came with a rush, took the lead in the last sixteenth and won going away by two lengths. Ruler gathered the place by three lengths from Skedaddle.

Reigh Count Wins Gold Cup

Mrs. John D. Hertz's Reigh Count added fresh laurels to his career when he romped away with the Jockey Club's Gold Cup, which carried a net value of $13,360. Reigh Count and Chick Lang, his rider, received a wonderful ovation when they returned to the paddock. Chance Shot, with Sande up, was second and Display third. Jockey Earl Sande, who rode Chance Shot, rode his last race. He will retire from the saddle and train a small stable of horses.

JONES DEFEATS BRITON, 10-9, TO WIN HIS FOURTH U. S. GOLF TITLE

By Alan J. Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 15.—The rather stoutish but exceedingly business-like young man who dominates American links strode up and down the hills of Brae Burn today, wielding a niblick that dealt death and destruction to the hopes of British golf in general and the ambitions of Thomas Philip Perkins in particular.

While a pop-eyed gallery of some 6000 spectators scrambled to watch him in astonishment, Bobby Jones crushed the champion of Great Britain, 10 up and 9 to play, in the most one-sided match for the amateur championship of the United States in 33 years.

The great Georgian, reaching a higher pinnacle of achievement than ever before in his amazing career, thus completed his ruthless march to a fourth national amateur title in five years and his eighth triumph in six years in either an American or British national tournament.

Perkins, the first Briton to reach the American finals since Harold Hilton was victorious in 1911, was no match for Jones today. The promise of a keen title fight, indicated by the brilliant manner the youthful Englishman had won his way to the finals, was quickly dissipated.

Whether it was because he could not forget the 13 and 12 thrashing he absorbed two weeks ago at the hands of Jones, or whether the tension of the title match was too much for him, the invader's game went almost completely to pieces.

Briton Won Two Holes.

Perkins won only two holes, the first and seventeenth. His approximate medal score, at best, was

ATHLETICS WIN AND AGAIN CLOSE IN ON YANKEES

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 15.—Fighting for another chance to catch the Yanks, Connie Mack's Athletics worked on the Cleveland Indians in earnest here today, blanking them, 5 to 0.

The victory, with New York losing in St. Louis, left Philadelphia only a half game behind.

The Athletics found young Willis Hudlin, Cleveland hurler, decidedly to their liking, and finally forced him from the mound in favor of Underhill. Quinn, the veteran, went the full course for the Athletics, allowing six hits, well scattered.

GIANTS WIN, 5-4, IN 13 INNINGS FOR 9 IN A ROW

By George W. Daley,
Sports Editor of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15. — The Giants won a thrilling 13-inning struggle with the Brooklyn Robins this afternoon, 5 to 4, after using up four pitchers. Andy Cohen sent the winning run over with two out in the thirteenth by driving a single against the right field wall.

Doug McWeeny, the second Brooklyn pitcher, weakened after holding the Giants hitless after the ninth, when he relieved Petty. He passed Ott, allowed a sacrifice, then passed O'Farrell and a fielder's choice put Ott on third. Terry was intentionally passed and Cohen ended the game with the first hit off McWeeny.

This makes nine straight victories for New York in their drive to catch the League-leading Cardinals.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Burt Shotten's Phillies threw a scare into the Cardinals this afternoon when they jumped on Arthur Reinhart and Flint Rhem for nine hits and six runs in the first two innings of the second game of a double-header, but after those two bad frames, the St. Louis pitching was air-tight and a five-run rally in the seventh pulled the contest out of the fire and added an 8 to 6 triumph to their 3 to 2 victory in the first game.

Despite New York's extra-inning victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Cardinals added half a game to their first-place lead and now are a game and a half ahead of McGraw's hordes. The Chicago Cubs, beaten in one of two games at Boston, lost ground and now are 3½ games behind the leaders.

Jess Haines pitched a masterful game to win the opener. He held the Phillies to five hits, doled out in as many innings, and would have had an easy afternoon if the Cardinals had not been so helpless at the plate. Burt Shotten's hurlers issued seven bases on balls, and the Cards collected eight hits, but despite their numerous opportunities the Red Birds were able to earn only one run and Haines had to put everything he had on every pitch to prevent the tailenders from ruining the pennant chances of McKechnie's men.

John Milligan, a left-handed recruit from Syracuse, who learned to pitch at Cornell University, pitched most of the game for the Phillies and would have beaten Haines if his support had been better.

Haines issued his only pass of the game to Southern, leading off in the first inning, and Thompson forced Southern at second. Klein grounded to Bottomley and Leach then shot a hot grounder over second. Maranville made a great stop of the drive, but he was in no position to throw and when his wild toss bounced away from Bottomley, Thompson scored.

Timely Double by Bottomley.

Two unearned runs gave the Cardinals the lead in the third inning. Haines led off with a single and Douthit was safe on Whitney's error. The runners advanced on Holm's infield out, but on Frisch's grounder to Hurst, Haines was out at the plate, Douthit took third on the play, Frisch stole second and both scored when Bottomley doubled to right center.

Lerian singled, with two out in the fifth, for the second hit off Haines, and Southern singled to left for No. 3 in the sixth. In the seventh, Whitney hit a powerful fly to left and a stiff wind helped the ball along, and it fell in the bleachers for a homer, tying the score.

The Cards, however, quickly regained the lead. Bottomley, leading off in the eighth with a single to left, was forced by Hafey. Blades drew a pass and Wilson singled to center, scoring Hafey and sending Blades to third. Martin ran for Blades and was doubled at the plate on Maranville's short fly to Southern, but the one-run margin was enough for Haines.

Second Game Won After Reinhart Is Belted for Four Runs at Start

Victory in the second game diverted an avalanche of criticism that would have descended on McKechnie's head if the team had lost.

Grover Cleveland Alexander had volunteered to pitch the contest, and it appeared to be a wise move to let him go to the hill. Before the first game, McKechnie named Alexander as the starter for No. 2, but he changed his mind and sent Reinhart to the slab.

Southern greeted Reinhart with a safe bunt Thompson whistled a single to left and Klein dropped a single in center. Douthit barely missing a diving catch. Whitney rifled a single to center, and when Hurst shot a double down the right field line, McKechnie chased Reinhart and Rhem went to the mound. Leach greeted Rhem with a single to center, scoring Hurst with the fourth run of the inning, and then Flint was able to end the inning without further damage.

To continue the story of the Philadelphia bombardment, Russell Miller opened the second inning with a single to center and Southern shot one to left.

Thompson sacrificed, and after Klein had fouled to Bottomley, Whitney beat out a slow grounder

BOBBY JONES WINS HIS FOURTH U. S. GOLF TITLE FROM T. P. PERKINS

AMERICAN PLAYER OVERWHELMS BRITON 10 UP AND 9 TO PLAY; RUNNER-UP BADLY OUTCLASSED

NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 15.

BOBBY JONES' fourth, and by long odds most decisive amateur victory equals the record of Jerome D. Travers, only other man to win the American crown four times. Bobby's achievement is even better, however, for he has been a finalist five straight times while Travers spread his triumphs over a seven-year period.

In these last five championships, Jones has won 28 out of 29 matches, losing only to George Von Elm in the 1926 finals in compiling the greatest record any American amateur has ever known.

17 strokes over par for the 27 holes while Jones was exactly even with standard figures. With this eloquent difference in their stroking ability, it seemed almost ridiculously easy for the American to gain a lead of six up at the end of the first 18 holes, where he had one streak of winning eight out of 10 straight holes, and settle the match at the twenty-seventh green. There, with his ball some seven feet from the cup and Bobby's inches away for four, Perkins walked over to congratulate his conqueror.

Only one other man in the history of the American amateur tournament has suffered any more overwhelming defeat or failed to carry the issue beyond the twenty-seventh hole. That was in the first tournament, held in 1895 at Newport, where Charles B. MacDonald of Chicago crushed C. E. Sands, 12 and 11.

Jones has won all four of his championships by devastating margins, but never as decisively as this time. He beat George Von Elm for his first title, 9 and 8, in 1924. In 1925 he beat his fellow townsman, Watts Gunn, and in 1927 conquered Chick Evans, both by margins of 8 and 7. In his last three matches of this tournament, after a narrow escape in a 19-hole match with Ray Gorton, Jones has in succession beaten John Beck of England, 14 and 13, Phillips Finlay of Harvard, 13 and 12, and Perkins, 10 and 9.

Jones' Approaches Deadly.

As for Perkins, what little resistence he put up today was crushed and what few hopes he may have entertained were blasted by the deadly fashion in which Jones played his shots to the green. The combination of these approaches with his usual putting consistency was the feature of the champion's game. Time after time Bobby split the pin with these thrilling shots with an accuracy that was unfailing no matter whether he played from fairway, traps or rough. With clock-like regularity, if Perkins shot one pin, Jones would push his own inside.

Most of the time, however, the Englishman played so wretchedly that he seldom had more than a fighting chance on the greens. His only real stand against a tide that was otherwise irresistable came at the close of the morning round, where he halved out four of five holes and won the other. When he had opportunities, otherwise he failed to capitalize them. The "door was open," for instance, at the 2nd hole, where Bobby put his tee shot out of bounds, but Perkins did the same thing and then pushed his next shot into a trap, finally taking 8 and allowing Bobby to win with a six.

Briton Concedes Holes.

Twice in the morning round, Bobby was conceded holes without using his putter. At the 25th hole where the American's drive hit a gallery marshal in the head and knocked him unconscious for a few minutes, Perkins drove into a ditch and took a penalty stroke. At the 26th, the Briton sliced his drive wild'y, hit a tree, overshot the green and came back short while Bobby rolled a 20-footer in for a birdie 2. These were typical of the wide gulf between the games of the two finalists.

For one streak of 10 holes in the morning round, where Jones won eight, it looked as though the young Englishman would be buried more completely than he was. Over this stretch, from the fourth to the thirteenth, inclusive, Bobby was three under par, firing his shots to the green with amazing accuracy and holing putts anywhere up to 18 feet in length besides laying the long one so dead that he was usually conceded the second putt.

Perkins' game virtually went to pieces at the same time, after the Briton had made an excellent start, winning the first hole and halving the next two in par. As against this trio of fours, however, he had a trio of sixes, and two of these approximate, on the next three holes. From the fourth the Englishman topped his drive badly, sending the ball into a trap on the edge of the fairway. He came out to the edge of another trap, in deep grass, put his third in another bunker and fired his fourth clear across the green. He conceded the hole without requiring Bobby to make a single putt.

On the short sixth, Jones won the hole with his tee shot. Perkins missed the green 150 yards away, then hit on top of his ball with a niblick with the result that it bounced backward and into the ditch of water at the base of the green. Again he conceded the hole.

Cardinals Win Two Games From Phils, Increasing Lead to Frisch's territory, Miller and Southern scoring.

How Cardinals Scored.

Meantime, the Cards had scored a run in the first and two in the second. High singled to right, with one out in the first, and Frisch was hit by a pitched ball. Bottomley walked, filling the bases, and Hafey scored High with a long sacrifice fly to Southern. Harper drew a pass, again filling the bases, but Earl Smith fouled to Leach to end the inning.

Maranville was safe in the second on Thompson's fumble and Rhem singled to right, sending the Rabbit to third. Douthit singled to right, scoring Rhem, Maranville stopping at second, and a pass to High moved Douthit to second. Frisch forced High and a passed ball advanced Frisch to second, after which Bottomley struck out and Hafey flied to Southern.

Russell Miller, who relieved Willoughby in the second inning, turned back the Cards easily in the third, but in the fourth he was in trouble and again in the fifth and sixth opportunity knocked at the Cardinal door.

Finally a Rally.

Two men were left stranded in the fourth, three in the fifth, and three in the sixth and it was no comfort to hear the Philadelpia experts point out that this Miller, who was baffling the Cards as soon as runners were in scoring position, had lost 12 or 14 games this year, and had won nary a contest.

Finally, however, Miller cracked, Maranville started a big seventh inning. He cracked a triple to center and Wattie Holm, batting for Johnson, singled to center to score the Rabbit. Douthit drew a pass, High sacrificed and Holm scored while Thompson was throwing out Frisch.

Bottomley, who had fanned in the second and fouled out in the fourth and filed out in the sixth with Cards in scoring position, finally found the range and shot a double to right center, scoring Douthit with the tying run. Hafey drew a pass and George Harper then delivered the blow that won the game, a double to left that scored Bottomley and Hafey.

The sky had been cloudy all afternoon but as the Cards took the lead the sun broke through. And to make the day brighter, Grover Cleveland Alexander, who had wanted to start the game, stalked out to the bullpen, took a few practice pitches and then went to the hill and protected that two-run lead.

Then the Old Master.

The Old Master hurled three innings and never was in trouble. Sand singled in the eighth, but the hit merely paved the way for a double play and Thompso 's safe bunt in the ninth with two out was the only other hit off the old master.

Alexander really finished the game after Thompson's safe bunt. Klein hit a hot smash at Bottomley. The ball broke through Jim's hands, but Alexander raced over to the bag just in time to take Jim's throw and retire Klein by half a step.

CARDS WERE IN SECOND PLACE ON SEPT. 16 IN 1926

HOLDING a lead of one and one-half games, the Cardinals are much better off today than they were on the same date in 1926, the year the team won the National League pennant and world championship.

After games of Sept. 15 two years ago, the Cardinals were in second place, a half game behind Cincinnati, the teams standing as follows:

Club.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Cincinnati	84	60	.583
Cardinals	83	60	.580

The Cardinals now have 141 games in the record of 154 in the season's schedule. When they had played 141 games in 1926, the St. Louis club was ahead, the two leaders standing:

Club.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Cardinals	82	59	.582
Cincinnati	81	60	.575

McKechnie's men this year have won 86 out of 141 games for a percentage of .610 and thus, to date, have performed at a clip 38 points better than the team that won the championship.

RED BIRD NOTES

The Cardinals will be idle tomorrow while the Pirates play the Giants at the Polo Grounds. It also will be a day of rest for the Cubs.

Jimmy Wilson flied to Klein in the second inning of the first game for his twenty-third successive hitless trip to the plate. In the fourth he broke the string with a double to right center, but tried to steal third while Milligan held the ball and was thrown out by 20 feet.

Douthit opened the fifth inning with a double, but the Cards failed to score. After Holm had grounded out, Douthit took third on Frisch's single off Milligan's hand, but Taylor was nailed to the plate on Bottomley's grounder to Hurst. After a wild pitch advanced the runners, Hafey walked, filling the bases, and Blades forced Bottomley at third on a grounder to Whitney.

Leach singled to center with two out in the first and Haines then disposed of 12 batters before Lerian singled with two out in the fifth for the second Phillie hit. With a call of three and two, Milligan then took a called strike to end the inning.

12,000 See Twin Bill.

Hafey misjudged Southern's pop fly which opened the sixth inning and the ball fell safe for a single. Thompson sacrificed and Southern went to third on Klein's fly to Douthit, but Leach bounced to Frisch for the third out.

Before the first game had reached the third inning the attendance had increased to about 12,000.

Cy Williams batted for Milligan to start the eighth and Cardinal followers heaved a sigh of relief when the home run hitter grounded to Frisch. Southern then singled to center, but was out trying to steal. The play was close and the fans roared their objections when Klein ruled Southern out.

Shotton used three pitchers in the ninth inning. Augie Walsh started and retired Haines and Douthit, but walked Holm and Frisch, so Sweetland was called from the bullpen. Sweetland walked Bottomley to fill the bases and Benge then went to the hill. Hafey worked his string to three and two and then took a called third strike.

Second Game.

Earl Smith went behind the bat for the Cardinals in the second game. It was his first appearance since his right hand was injured by a foul tip in Pittsburg Aug. 31.

Reinhart pitched to five batters and each hit safely. The only man retired while he was on the hill was Klein, who tried to move from first to third on Whitney's single to center.

Alexander wanted to pitch the game, but victory in the first contest probably caused McKechnie to experiment with Reinhart. Before the opener started, Bill said Alexander would work.

Three Cardinals were left on base in the first inning and two in the second. In the first Smith fouled to Leach with the bases loaded and in the second, with Douthit on third and Frisch on second, Bottomley struck out and Hafey flied to Southern.

Harper walked to start the third inning, but was forced by Smith. The hit-and-run then went wrong, apparently, and Smith was thrown out at second by such a wide margin that he didn't even slide.

High Poles a Double.

Andy High doubled against the right-field wall with two out in the fourth and went to third on a wild pitch, but after Frisch had walked, Bottomley fouled to Whitney.

Three more Cardinals were left stranded in the fifth inning. Harper walked with one out and was forced by Smith. Maranville doubled to right, sending Smith to third, and, after Orsatti batting for Rhem, had walked, Douthit flied to Leach. That made a total of 10 left on bases in five innings.

Hafey's single and passes to High and Harper filled the bases with two out in the sixth, but it merely raised the total left on bases to 13 in six innings. Milligan relieved Miller, and Blades, batting for Earl Smith, took a third called strike.

Sylvester Johnson struck out Hurst and Sand in the fifth and fanned three in a row in the sixth. Milligan, Southern and Thompson each swinging at the third strike.

Two more Cards were left in the seventh, two in the eighth and one in the ninth, making the total 18.

Perkins Makes Real Comeback After Dropping Four Holes in Row

The remarkable thing was that Perkins, after such an exhibition, and after losing four straight holes on the inward journey, was able to stage a comeback. Seven down at the thirteenth, he had the stuff to halve four of the next five holes and win the seventeenth to leave himself six down.

Jones' Greatest Shots.

Jones' two greatest shots of the morning round enabled him to win the thirteenth and halve the fourteenth. From the rough grass atop a mound off the thirteenth fairway he punched an iron 200 yards to the edge of the green. Chipping up for a birdie 4 as Perkins sent his ball into a trap. Phil was straight as a string to the 556-yard fourteenth green, while Bobby sliced his brassie badly, the ball caroming into a trap, separated from the green by a series of mounds. The flag was out of Bobby's sight, a 100 yards away, but he lofted a beautiful niblick shot over all intervening obstacles to the middle of the green, clinching his 5.

Perkins missed a 10-footer that would have given him the fifteenth, but saved a half with a beautiful approach to the sixteenth, and won the seventeenth, with a 260-yard drive to the green. He was down in 3 while Bobby, in a trap from the tee, was short coming out and required four. Jones laid a screaming spoon shot hole high on the eighteenth, while Perkins was short, but again Phil pitched close, got his 4 and another courageous half.

Fine Recovery by Bobby.

Jones saved himself on the nineteenth with a great recovery from the woods, then started to mow Perkins down. At the twentieth he pitched within two feet of the cup for a birdie three after Perkins had come out of the rough with a great shot to the back of the green. At the twenty-first Bobby again pitched dead, but this time his five footer curled off at the hole and they halved.

The story of the last few holes is one of Jones' unerring sharp shooting and Perkins' mistakes. The Britisher's wild driving on the twenty-second, twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth holes put him into difficulties that were insurmountable and left him 10 down with 10 to go. It was just a formality for them to go down the hill and up to the high plateau for the finishing gestures, but it was a fitting climax, for it put into full view of the onlooking thousands the crowning triumph of America's greatest golfing son.

Atlanta Now Takes Bobby Jones' Golf Triumphs Calmly

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 15.

ATLANTA received the news of Bobby Jones' eighth major golfing triumph today with the gratification it always experiences, but with the outward calmness of an event which is almost taken for granted.

Jones now has held the American open twice, the British open twice and the American amateur four times. All of these victories have been scored since 1922. It was that year he won the national open, a crown he again captured in 1926, while he has been runner-up in that event five times since 1922. He captured the British open in 1926 and 1927 and won the American amateur in 1924, 1925, 1927 and today.

This year he also led the Walker Cup team to victory, captaining the American team.

Cubs Buy Clyde Day.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 15.—Clyde Day, righthanded pitcher with the Omaha club of the Western League, was sold to the Chicago Cubs today. He will report next spring. Day, winner of 16 of his 32 games, is regarded as one of the leading pitchers in the league. It will be his third trip to the majors.

BRAVES DEFEAT CUBS, 5-2, THEN BRUINS WIN, 6-1

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—Chicago won the second game of today's doubleheader with the Boston Braves, 6 to 1, after losing the first 5 to 2.

Guy Bush was on the hill for the Cubs in the second game and held Hornsby's men to four hits.

BEARS TAKE TWO LIGHT WORKOUTS UNDER AL SHARPE

By Jerry Bernoudy.

Football practice got under way at Washington University yesterday morning with 38 candidates on hand for the first tw osessions under the Bear's new coaching staff headed by Dr. Al Sharpe. A two-hour workout in the morning and another one of an hour and a half in the afternoon under a broiling sun brought all of the boys into the dressing room several pounds lighter and well fragged out.

Sharpe arrived at the school only a very short time before the morning practice, but went directly to the field where he assembled the players, and after addressing a few preliminary words to them began putting them through a series of drills assisted by Coaches Davis, Bullman and Benson.

Seven letter men—five backs and two linemen—were on the field for yesterday's practice. The backfield men included Ted Whitler, fullback; John Duncan, quarterback, and Dick Rawdon, Clarence Ax and Theis Lohrding, halfbacks. Four more veterans are expected to report the early part of this week, including Lee Scheib, center; Paul Paris, tackle; Jerry Hoffman, a guard, and Carl Bickel, regular halfback. Tiny Glazer, the twelfth letter man from last year, has been spending the summer in Europe, but is expected to sail for home next Thursday. Glazer won a letter at end last season.

The work yesterday consisted almost entirely of fundementals and conditioning exercises. After about a half hour of picking up fumbles, rolling on the ball and passing the squad was divided into two groups, Sharpe and Davis taking the backs and linemen being directed by Gale Bullman and Benson. The backs were drilled in running back punts and taking passes from another runner, while the linemen were given a good workout on the bucking machine.

Dr. Sharpe was pleased with the condition of the majority of the squad, but declined to make any comments or predictions because of the fact that only one or two of the men were known to him personally before his arrival. Workouts will be continued twice a day throughout all of this week in order to get the squad into condition as soon as possible for the first game with Westminster College one week from Saturday.

Advice.

IF, in the Hall of Fame you'd land,
Midst Fortune's favored pets,
Be sure you pick the proper brand,
When choosing cigarettes.

Trade Marks.

MOVIE actors, lads and lasses,
Have the most peculiar whims;
Harold Lloyd wears glassless glasses—
Nothing to them but the rims.

With his cheaters pictures show him
In whatever role he takes;
By his glasses you shall know him
Though they're but a pair of fakes.

Though by aid of glasses phoney
Wads of wampum he can cop
Like Tom Mix without Black Tooney,
Harold Lloyd would be a flop.

Quite So.

Many a square meal has been made off of a round steak.

Boys will be boys. When they turn out to be girls they are simply out of luck.

Extra! Extra!

See where Newsboy Brown is after the flyweight crown vacated by Fidel La Bara. We take it the Newsboy is in the "pink" of condition.

However, if he finds he can't make the grade in the flyweight class he might try the paperweights.

BROWNS BEAT YANKS, 6 TO 5, IN THE OPENER

one which had the spectators on edge until Kress threw out Combs for the out which ended the battle.

George Pipgras, the righthander who last Sunday before 85,000 persons in the Yankee Stadium pitched the Yanks to a shutout against the Athletics and back into first place, was punished for four runs in the six innings he worked. And then Wilcy Moore, the most efficient pitcher in the American League a year ago, was lambasted for two more markers. All told, the Browns had nine hits and only two of this number came in innings in which the Browns failed to tally.

Manush Bats .500.

Lu Blue, Frank O'Rourke, Clyde Manion, Heine Manush and Ralph Kress were the Brownie athletes who were there with wallops in the pinch, drives which drove in the runs which cut the New York first place margin to a mere five percentage points.

Babe Ruth started the pacemakers off on the right foot in the opening frame. Crowder opened by sending across two strikes on Combs. Then he lost control and passed the Yankee lead-off batter. Koenig and Gehrig went out and then came Ruth. The Babe had a 2-2 call when he waded into one of Crowder's offerings. Bat and ball collided. When last seen that smash was bounding off the right field pavilion into Grand boulevard. It was Ruth's fiftieth four-bagger of the campaign and it put New York two tallies in front.

This, however, did not disturb Howley's batters. Seven straight men had been retired by Pipgras when he walked Manion. Then came a break. Crodwer smashed one at Lazzeri. It looked like a cinch double play. But the ball bounded against Tony's chest. Then he kicked it and before he could recover, Crowder was on first with a cheap hit. Blue doubled and Manion trotted home. Then came O'Rourke. There may be greater batters, but none with more courage in a pinch. The third-sacker smashed one out of Koenig's reach and Crowder and Blue tallied.

Two Doubles, One Run.

In the fourth, after two were out, McGowan and Manion bunched doubles to put across the fourth run for the St. Louisans.

Another uprising from the home folks in the seventh, this time against Wilcy Moore, a great pitcher in 1927, but now just an ordinary thrower. He walked Blue and, after O'Rourke sacrificed, Manush's second successive double scored the first sacker. Schulte walked and the runners advanced on a passed ball. Kress' hoist, of which Ruth made a fine catch, sent Manush across with the second tally in the round.

The Yankees started climbing in the eighth. Combs walked and was forced by Durocher. Gehrig popped out, but Ruth coaxed a pass. Meusel doubled to score Durocher, and on Lazzeri's single, Ruth and Meusel tallied and the pacemakers were only one tally behind.

BLAEHOLDER DUE IN SECOND GAME

George Blaeholder, who in his last start against the Yankees defeated the New Yorkers with six hits, will draw the hurling assignment against the pacemakers this afternoon. Henry Johnson is Huggins' choice.

ANDERSON PICKS TENTATIVE TEAM AFTER PRACTICE

Forty candidates for the St. Louis University football team reported to Head Coach "Hunk" Anderson in the first practice session at the Billiken field yesterday afternoon. Fifteen freshmen were also on hand.

Line Coach "Chili" Walsh and "Bucky" Dahman, backfield coach, assisted Anderson in the practice that consisted of falling on the ball, running and passing, charging for the linemen and pivoting for the backfield candidates.

The squad included 16 lettermen. They are Lintzenich, Captain Dirnberger, Parilla, Joyce, Denvir, backfield men, and Babka, Tison, Cornell, Ed Brown, Miller, Caldwell, Mulroy, Downey, Davidson, Schwartz, Browning, linemen. Fourteen numeral men of last year's freshman 11 who are candidates for the varsity this season are Maxwell, Kimmell, Ennis, Hunt, Gazelle, Naidorff, backs, and Stringfellow, Ford Brown, Willett, Sutemeier, Joseph, Cooper, Curtin, Roberts, linemen.

Conspicuous among the men on the field was Joe Lintzenich, husky Billiken fullback, who suffered a severely wrenched knee in the Creighton game last November. From the manner in which Lintzenich ran and punted throughout the practice session, his injury seems to have completely mended.

A short signal drill was given the men and the tentative first team picked by Anderson consisted of Vic Daubner and Ford Brown at the ends, Titus Cornell and Fred Joseph at the tackles, Joe Babka and Jack Curtin at the guards, with Ed Davidson at center. The backfield was made up of Bill Parilla at quarterback, Capt. Dirnberger and Jack Joyce at the halves and Joe Lintzenich at fullback. Brown, Joseph and Curtin in the line are men who played on the freshman team last fall but were picked on the basis of their showing in the eight weeks' practice held this spring when Anderson and his assistants took over the station left open by the resignation of Bob Mathews as coach of the Billiken gridiron activities.

The Billiken jerseys will be changed from Cardinal to Blue this season and the new azure outfits will be on display in first game with McKendree this month.

Odin 8, Kinmundy 5.

ODIN, Ill., Sept. 15.—Odin High defeated Kinmundy High today at Kinmundy, 8 to 5.

The swat put the Babe within 10 of his record of 1927.

In the third, Ruth showed that he can field as well as hit, by running far towards center for a nice capture of Manush's short fly.

Koenig Chased by Dineen.

When Bill Dineen ruled O'Rourke safe stealing in the third, Mark Koenig, Yankee shortstop, who made the play at second, threw his glove on the ground and was ejected from the game. The entire Yankee team gathered around to argue with Dineen. Even Miller Huggins got in on the argument. For the remainder of the day the world champions were greeted with a flock of razzberries.

Meusel tried to steal when Lazzeri struck out in the fourth, but he found Manion's perfect throw to Brannon waiting for him.

The fourth wide pitch to Pipgras in the fifth hit the Yankee pitcher on the arm and thus goes down in the records as a base on balls off Crowder, not as a hit batsman.

Another fast double play, over the Kress-Brannon-Blue route on Combs' grounder, helped Crowder retire the Yanks in order, in the fifth.

Can't Fool Him for Long.

Pipgras stopped Manush hits first two trips to the plate, but on the third occasion, the Browns' candidate for the A. L. swat championship, socked one down the right-field line for a double.

Three Brownies tested Bengough's throwing arm in the first six innings, and each was credited with a stolen base. Bengough was throwing them in all directions, except the right one.

Not Interested?

Only a small cheer went up from the assembled multitude when the scores showing that the Cardinals had gained a double victory was posted on the scoreboard.

Each time Pipgras put a man on base, Huggins had two of his hirelings warming up in the bull pen. He had a southpaw and a right-hander ready when a relief pitcher was needed in the seventh after Paschal batted for Pipgras.

Pitching to Manion in the Brown's eighth, Moore injured his pitching arm and was forced to retire, Fred Heimach, southpaw from the Association, taking his place.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Francis T. Hunter will meet Henri Cochet of France for the United States championship by virtue of their respective defeats of George Lott and Frank Shields in the semi-final round matches at West Side Tennis Club today.

Both Hunter and Cochet flashed wonderful tennis to enter the final round and fully earned their places in the championship battle. Hunter reached new heights in his tennis career in his victory over Lott by flashing a new attack of such power that Lott's own attack faltered before the crushing game of his opponent.

Never has Hunter hit with such confidence off his back-hand; never has his volleying been so decisive. He was always aggressive and never erratic. Lott played well. If Hunter had allowed him to do so he would have played very well. It is true that Lott piled up many errors, but many of them were due to Hunter's strategy in keeping the ball curving into Lott's body.

Lott Wins One Set.

The first set saw Lott at his best. His volleying was brilliant in the extreme, while his smashing reached sensational heights. He deserved his set by the slight superiority he held in point-winning shots. The score of 8—6 doesn't tell the story. From then to the end Hunter's steady improvement broke down Lott's most bitterly waged defense.

The young Chicago star fought gallantly and well. He retrieved many shots that looked impossible to reach. He played heady and sound tennis, but Hunter was too sound both on strokes and tactics.

Hunter exploited Lott's backhand to his advantage repeatedly, going to the net to volley for points. Bad lining, equally bad against both men, featured the match and caused both men to suffer serious discomfort.

Hunter, although always pressed, was slightly in the lead in both the second and third sets until he ran them out, 6—4, 6—3. He took an early lead in the fourth, which he held to 4—2 and on his own delivery, when a seemingly bad base line decision gave Lott a critical point for the break and 4-all. It might well have meant the match, but Hunter, nothing daunted by the break, came right back and in two great games took the set and match.

Cochet in Straight Sets.

Henri Cochet took no chances with Frank Shields and was on top of the match at all times. He realized that Shields was good enough to cause trouble if allowed, so he started fast and held command of the situation at all times. Shields made many brilliant shots but his wildness and lack of tournament experience kept him from reaching striking distance of the match. Cochet was magnificent. His whole game was at his best. He served, drove, volleyed and smashed brilliantly. He was the great Cochet of the Davis Cup play. No one but a La Coste could have held Cochet in check in this form, and even he would have had difficulty to make it close. Cochet went to 5—0 in the first set and let up to win it at 6—2.

The second set found Cochet coasting along, content to try to stay out of serious danger, but it did not quite work. Shields went to 5—1 before Cochet realized it, or tried to stop it. Shields held set point for 6—1, but blew it. Cochet went to 5—2. Cochet put on pressure which, coupled with two double-faults, carried him to 5—3. Shields had set point with a great drive but on a half volley of Cochet's he volleyed out for deuce and Cochet went to 5—4.

Cochet was now fully aroused. He ran Shields miles and then won outright with great passing shots to reach 5-all.

A Little More Pressure.

Cochet, keeping up the pressure, went to 6—5. Too late, Shields won a game for 6-all. Cochet went to 7—6 and had 15—40 for the set, but Shields reached deuce on two good shots. Cochet took the set on two magnificent placements, 8—6.

Cochet romped along to win the third set at 6—4. The final will be a great match if both Hunter and Cochet produce their form of today. Hunter gave Cochet a terrific battle in the French championship this year and led him two sets to none at Wimbledon the year before.

While all the dope favors a French victory, it would not surprise me to see Hunter spring the surprise of the year and hold the championship in the United States.

Unless Cochet is at his best, Hunter will win. If Cochet is at his best, no one in the world can beat him.

U. S. Tennis Sideline Sidelights

By Davison Obear.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War and donor of the Davis cup, international tennis trophy, arrived in time to witness the opening match of the semi-finals between George Lott and Frank Hunter, top ranking American players.

In the first set of the semi-finals Hunter kept running around shots to his back hand. However, in the second set he decided to try his back hand strokes and was fairly successful.

There were several bad decisions in the second set. Hunter led, 2 to 1, but in the next game Lott had 40-30 when Hunter drove the ball out at least six inches. The linesman never moved out of his chair and Lott partly obstructed his view, the score going to deuce. Lott lost this game and several that followed.

Borrowing the "Ump's" Stuff.

The linesmen on the feature matches are using a new system this year. In addition to calling the ball "out," they wave an arm like the baseball umpires. The arm signal is a good one as sometimes the voice does not carry.

The resolution on "throwing points" adopted by the United States Lawn Tennis Association four years ago, and recently did not mean anything to Hunter and Lott today. Both players "threw" points on apparent bad decisions of linesmen in the second and third sets.

Frank Shields had stage fright at the start of his match against Henri Cochet. There were close to 11,000 persons in the stadium when play began. After the first four games Shields became steadier.

In the second set Shields had his cannonball service in good shape. He changed his tactics somewhat, sending over cross-court shots along with his brilliant side-line drives.

The second set was a heart-breaker for Shields. After leading, 5 to 1, in games, the national junior champion dropped four straight and ultimately lost the set 8—6. Cochet was very accurate while Shields' service failed, and he lost some points by driving into the net.

Friends Plan Tilden's Reinstatement.

There are many rumors afloat here that friends of William T. Tilden expect to wage a fight for his reinstatement at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association next February. If the fight is conducted without antagonism and Tilden in the meantime refrains from violations of the amateur rule, he may be back in the fold.

At the present time there is not much demand for any radical change in the amateur rule. A clarification of that section referring to covering tournaments will meet with approval of all concerned.

The annual meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation next March is expected to consider a change in the "residence" qualifications of players. It has been suggested that only native-born or naturalized citizens be eligible for international competition. This matter will also be brought to the attention of the Davis Cup nations whose rules and regulations are separate from the International Federation.

The reason for the proposed change dates back to the Davis Cup matches in St. Louis last year, when Japan protested the playing of Robert Kinsey by Mexico. Kinsey, an American, was ruled eligible, as he had resided in Mexico for more than two years, as required by the Davis Cup regulations.

It plays heads-up baseball from start to finish. Its games are shorter on the average by many minutes than those of their local rivals. In sheer playing attractiveness it presents a better appearance than the Cardinals.

But the club drew only 750 paid!

The conclusion is obvious: That no matter how colorful a St. Louis club may be, it will not draw the ducats of the fans unless it is going somewhere. It is not baseball so much as victory that fans pay to see.

On Their Way.

NEXT year it may be different. The Browns are coming; and, if age means anything, many of the Cardinals should be slipping.

The Browns will need only a little upholstering to look like the goods. Another catcher, a good utility infielder who can hit, the continuance of the present outfield in its hitting gait and the stiffening of one or two pitchers—and the deed is done.

The club has been a good moneymaker this year. But, in addition, it has experienced an amazing accretion in the value of its playing assets, over last year.

Howley and Ball gave away a few waiver-price athletes and received, in return, values that could not be bought for $300,000 cash. Consider the following men, obtained for a song, and their present approximate values:

Heine Manush—Try and buy him for $75,000 cash today. He would bring more.

Alvin Crowder—Who for a moment at least is in front of the league pitchers, ought to be another $50,000.

Then, besides, we have a fine group of new material, which came cheaply, including Kress, Brannon, Blue, Blaeholder, McGowan, McNeely and Manion, which would aggregate $150,000 and probably much more.

Thus, we, have an aggregate of 1928 values of $325,000 in proved new asquisitions, which cost the club a few playing discards and not more than $50,000 in cash.

The net increase in player-values to the club is not less than $200,000. Probably it is $100,000 more!

Nothing to groan about in such finances.

Why, Girls!

CHESTER BREWER, director of athletics at Missouri University, who has spent more than half of his lifetime in a campus atmosphere, and who has held his finger on the athletic pulse of more than one university, intimates that the coeds of today are as much help to a university's athletics as a barnacle is to a ship's bottom.

Brewer, in a dispatch, is quoted as follows: "At one time the women's cheering section at varsity games was as large as the men's. Now the girls of the campus go to games with a 'date,' or not at all. Formerly there were half a dozen sororities that were 100 per cent in the purchase of athletic coupon books. Today sorority groups merely laugh at ticket salesmen.

"Girls of the university (Missouri) have lost their institutional spirit. They take too much of the athlete's time. Not only do they refuse to go to athletic contests without a 'date,' but they have put all their other activities on a basis in which the boys must foot the bill."

Chester is attacking the evil from the wrong side. Instead of complaining about the mere coed, he should reason with the "date."

There's the egg that's causing the mischief.

The Strength of the Weak.

CHRISTIAN BROTHERS' COLLEGE, once a beehive of athletic activity and a pace-maker in the sports of this community, is slowly beating back.

The fire which destroyed the old Kingshighway property almost destroyed the athletic spirit of an institution that once produced more great soccer, college football and baseball stars than all the other schools of the vicinity together.

Now, slowly, the C. B. C. teams are beginning to make an impress, although in an academic, rather than a collegiate field.

Last week the news carried the item that of an enrollment of 250 more than 50 C. B. C. boys turned out for the football squad—one boy in every five to try his mettle on the gridiron.

That's the spirit.

It is SPIRIT that is the strength of the weak.

Fansher Stars in Slacks' Victory Over Peoria, 3-2

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 15.—Ray Fansher's home run drive over the right field wall here at the Peoria Three I League Park, gave the Slack Furnitures of East St. Louis a 3 to 2 victory over the Caterpillar Tractors of Peoria, in the 13 inning contest which inaugurated a six-game series between the amateur champions of their respective cities this afternoon.

Fansher was also responsible for the other two runs for the East St. Louis squad and his double to left drove in Kertis, who had singled, in the eighth to tie the score and then he advanced to third on an infield out and stole home.

MANUSH BATTING HARD IN EFFORT TO OVERTAKE GOSLIN

The mad streak of Heine Manush toward the battle championship of the American League was furthered yesterday by two devastating doubles which helped the Browns humble the Yankees and which lifted Manush into second place in the standing, semi-officially this time. Lou Gehrig went hitless. Manush came to rest for the night with an average of .369, two points more than Gehrig and only six fewer than Goslin, the leader.

The Goose lifted his average a point by getting two out of five at Detroit, while Gehrig lost three points through going hitless before Alvin Crowder.

The standing after yesterday's games:

	G.	Ab.	R.	H.	Pct.
Goslin, Senators	122	403	67	151	.375
Manush, Browns	141	586	098	216	.369
Gehrig, Yankees	140	510	125	187	.367

Rogers Hornsby gained in the National League battle by getting three out of five in two games against the Cubs, while Paul Waner remained motionless in the figures, although he got two out of four against the Reds. Hornsby added two points to his record, climbing to .382, four points below his Pittsburg rival.

The standing after yesterday's games:

Members of New "Big Six" Conference Are Expecting Their Best Football Year

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 15.—Exclusion of all but the more powerful members of the old Missouri Valley Conference coupled with the balance of power which will be effected, will give the newly formed Big Six Conference an increased financial efficiency and stimulate public interest.

That is the opinion gathered from a symposium of statements of officials, coaches and athletic directors of the new conference. C. L. Brewer, University of Missouri athletic director, points out that the new conference will eliminate the possibility of a team winning the conference championship, although only three or four games have been played in league competition.

Further, the M. U. athletic director adds, that, in the old Valley schedule, it was necessary for many of the teams to play their first conference games with only two weeks' practice. Last year Missouri and Kansas State met here after only 11 days' practice. The result was several severe injuries to members of both teams. George Flamank, giant Missouri captain, suffered injuries which disabled him for the season.

Henry Expects Biggest Year.

Reports from football camps of the Big Six bear out the statement of athletic officials. Missouri and Nebraska are disporting 16 lettermen each for the opening of the season. Other Big Six squads—Oklahoma, Kansas State, Kansas and Iowa State—although not so well supplied with veterans, are boosting their football stock with sophomore prospects.

Gwinn Henry, at Missouri, is optimistic, with 40 varsity caliber gridmen. Henry ventures a prediction that the Missouri team will do as well as it has since he came to Missouri in 1923.

Consideration of the fact that since that time Henry's teams have played 42 games, won 27, lost 9 and tied 6 for a percentage of .750 places his estimate high. Since 1923 Missouri's record embraces three championships.

Nebraska Also Hopeful.

At Lincoln, Coaches Bearg and Schulte are busying themselves with a squad of Nebraska Cornhuskers in anticipation of breaking into Missouri's record of three championships in the last four years.

Leading the Nebraska list of gridiron stars this fall will be Capt. John "Jug" Brown, quarter; Glenn Presnell, halfback, and Clarence Raish, stellar guard. Claims from the Nebraska athletic department place the average of the Husker line at 195 pounds and the backfield at 192.

A returning roster of less than a dozen letter men at the University of Oklahoma puts Coach Adrian Lindsay face to face with the problem of finding material to fill five holes in the Sooner forward wall. Two ends, a center and a guard will have to be developed. Bus Haskins, brilliant Sooner back, is Lindsay's ray of hope.

"Bo" McMillin's Debut.

A. N. "Bo" McMillin, who gained fame in the Centre College victory over Harvard, is facing the test of his coaching career in his first year of big-time coaching at Kansas State. The new Aggie coach has a promising wealth of husky much training before the Purple's season opens. McMillin has only eight letter men. Before his appointment as head football coach of the Kansas farmer institution, McMillin was mentor at Blacksburg College, Va., and Centre.

In the same State—Kansas—"Bill" Hargiss, formerly coach at Emporia College, will also make his debut in the first year of Big Six. Prospects of a powerful Jayhawker eleven through the services of a dozen members of last year's Kansas yearlings, went glimmering recently with the announcement that six of the most promising sophomores were lost by scholastic ineligibility. Capt. Hauser end, whose play last year featured a spectacular Kansas victory over the Missouri Tiger Valley champions, is rated as the best Kansas veteran. Shannon, halfback, and Ash, diminutive quarter, give Hargiss a nucleus of backfield men despite the loss of the sensational "Tony" Propernick, junior halfback.

Pirates Trounce Cincinnati, 6-1

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 15. — The Pittsburg Pirates established themselves in fourth place in the National League race today by defeating Cincinnati, 6 to 1, in the last home game at Forbes Field.

Hill was master of the situation throughout, allowing the Reds nine hits but not permitting more than one an inning until the ninth, when Cincinnati made its only tally.

Ash, a rookie from Columbus, who had won three straight for the Reds, was the victim of the Pirate attack in the second, fifth and eighth innings. Johnson, another rookie, relieved him in the eighth.

The Reds, by completing three double plays, ran their season total of double killings to 179, within three of the major league record.

MISS WILLS TO PLAY BROWN TWO MATCHES HERE

Wray Brown, St. Louis' premier tennis player, and Miss Helen Wills positively will meet here in exhibition matches next Saturday and Sunday at the Triple A courts, according to an announcement of Karl H. Hodge of the district tennis association.

According to the arrangements given out by Hodge, the following schedule will be maintained for the exhibitions of Miss Wills.

Saturday, Sept. 22.—Helen Wills vs. Wray Brown, two sets. —Helen Wills and Ted Drewes vs. Wray Brown and Junior Bochmer.

Sunday, Sept. 23.—Helen Wills vs. Wray Brown, two sets. —Mixed doubles match to be announced later.

Miss Wills will not oppose any St. Louis woman player in singles, as was planned.

Miss Wills Beat Mercur.

Miss Wills, who is in a class by herself in the world of women's tennis since Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen turned professional and who has defeated all the great women players of the world this season without having lost one set, has shown considerable strength when pitted against strong male opponents.

She has met three players thus far of equal or superior merit to Brown. Miss Wills won the first of these defeating Fritz Mercur, 6—3, 6—4. In a return match Miss Wills was beaten by Mercur by the same set scores, but in an extra set the California girl beat Mercur.

Since that time Miss Wills has been beaten by Wilmer Allison and Herbert L. Bowman, both high ranking players.

Officials in charge of the exhibition stated yesterday that unless rain falls at starting time, the matches will be played no matter how threatening the weather. The courts will be protected by stretching tarpaulins over them until time to start the matches.

Texas Game Postponed.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 15.—Eight thousand disappointed fans today watched a 45-minute rain soak the baseball field at Buffalo Stadium until water was standing an inch deep in spots, forcing officials to postpone the third game of the Houston-Wichita Falls playoff for the Texas League pennant.

JOCKEY SHROPSHIRE RIDES THREE STRAIGHT WINNERS; FALSE PRIDE TAKES SIXTH

Yesterday's Fairmount Winners

Sure Shot	R. Richardson	$8.02	Fire On	E. Shropshire	$8.84
Oceanid	M. Knight	$12.08	False Pride	E. Pool	$3.70
Angry Mood	E. Shropshire	$17.56	Ramble	M. Knight	$7.54
Fire Fairy	E. Shropshire	$13.06	Salutation	J. Parmalee	$48.62

By Dent McSkimming.

The shortest, and probably the most successful meeting in the history of Fairmount Race Track, was brought to a close yesterday with the running of an eight-race program, which sparkled with close competition and good riding. The crowd, 12,000, reached the grounds expecting to find the track heavy in mud but found scarcely a visible trace of the cloudburst of the night before.

Fire On, a 6-year-old gelding, from "Silent" Jack McPherson's stable, shared the day's highest honors with Jockey Elmo Shropshire. Fire On won the Phil Cohen Handicap, thereby establishing himself as the distance champion of the meeting, and Shropshire piloted three straight winners, including Fire On.

Fire Fairy Leads All the Way.

Varying his methods to get the most out of the particular horse, Shropshire won the fourth race by shooting Fire Fairy away from the post at top speed, putting as much daylight as possible between himself and all the others and then holding on to meet the late rush of the others in the stretch. He knew that his only chance to win was a sprint, for Fire Fairy could never come from behind to beat Alborak or Torch both slow beginners.

And, accordingly, when he came to the fifth race, resorted to another plan. Fire On is a world beater in the stretch, after having gone a mile. Shropshire's task was to keep his horse within 10 lengths of the leader for the first half mile. He was in an extremely difficult position in this race, for either one of the fast breakers, Royal Julian or Cartago, could last to win.

Good Shepherd was the pacemaker for half a mile, and Fire On was last. In the back stretch Shropshire's mount was apparently eliminated, for Royal Julian and Cartago had caught Good Shepherd and were passing him. At the half, Shropshire had moved Fire On up to within six lengths of the leaders and both Pool and Pendergrass were starting to move to the front. At the stretch turn the race still seemed to rest between Royal Julian and Cartago but, just as the real struggle started, Fire On came forward, improving his position at every stride until at last, in front of the stand, with only 70 yards to go, he passed both of his highly regarded rivals and then pulled away to win by one and one-half lengths. Shropshire had given his horse a perfect ride.

Of course, getaway day couldn't pass without the traditional "long shot." This time it was Salutation, owned by the National Stable and ridden by J. Parmelee. The horse was quoted at 20 to 1 before the start and paid a refund of $48.62 for $2. The favorites, Ponomoi and Lily Sue, were lost among the also rans. Sly Polly, which finished second, was an outsider. Salutation broke fast and led all the way over the mile and a furlong journey.

Sure Shot was the winner of the opening race, a dash at six furlongs. The Runt was the favorite but the going was not quite soft enough for him. Tempter set the early pace and might have gotten a part of the purse, but he was carried wide at the head of the stretch. The Runt was also caught in this sweep away from the rail, just as Horvath attempted to send him around the leaders. Richardson held Sure Shot close to the rail and thereby won. The winner paid $8.02 for 2.

For the first time this year, 2-year-olds were sent the full mile distance at Fairmount. Not one of the field of 11 starters had ever gone farther than three-quarters. B. B. Rice's filly, Oceanid, went the route like an old timer, coming fast in the stretch to pass Thunder Call and Thistle Coot. The latter finished third as Blind Hills, a "field" horse rushed up to take place money. Louise Wilson, the favorite, was fourth.

I. Davis Bolts In Third.

Had not I. Davis bolted at the end of the back stretch, the finish of the third race might have been somewhat different. Lloyd Gentry's star sprinter was leading his field when he passed the half mile pole but, instead of hanging to the rail, he bolted out into the center of the track and in spite of Horvath's pulling and tugging, he could not be brought back to the rail until the whole field had passed him. Angry Mood was the chief beneficiary of this accident, and Jockey Shropshire took full advantage. Focus closed fast in the stretch but Angry Mood was an easy winner. Polygamia was third.

The sixth developed into a duel between Shasta Lad and False Pride. D. Smith got Shasta Lad away from the post on top, but Pool hustled False Pride up into second position within the first furlong and then, on the turn, False Pride had enough speed to pass Shasta Lad on the outside. Prisoner was third. Only five started. The winner paid $3.70 for $2.

Ramble, the 6-year-old mare, from the East St. Louis stable of Pershall & Sundheimer, scored her second straight victory in taking the seventh race. Polar Sea was second and Billy Doran third.

JOCKEY EARL SANDE

Who ended his riding career yesterday by retirement. Sande's last mount was on Chance Shot, which ran second to Reigh Count in the Jockey Club Gold Cup, at Belmont, yesterday.

SANKARI TAKES LINCOLN FIELDS FEATURE RACE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Sankari, ridden by Charles E. Allen, won the Steger Handicap, $5000 added, at one mile, for 3-year-olds and up, the feature event on the opening day program at Lincoln Fields here this afternoon. Chicago finished second and Flattery third.

Misstep and Sankari raced neck and neck to the stretch turn, where they began falling back. Sankari then took the lead and won easily by two lengths. Chicago came fast in the last sixteenth and inched a length ahead of Flattery.

The time on the heavy track was 1:41 4-5. Sankari paid $7.60 straight in the mutuels and the race carried a net value of $4640 to the owner of the winner.

Torchilla by Four Lengths.

Torchilla, C. McCrossen up, was an easy winner, with four lengths to spare in the opening dash at six furlongs, after leading from flagfall to finish. Anita M. finished second by three lengths and Phantom Fire was third. Mino, the odds-on favorite, finished fifth.

Captain J. S., M. McGonigle up, led a field of eight maiden 2-year-olds throughout the six furlong distance to win handily by a length in the second. Host was second all the way and eight lengths back, Neptunos took third money.

George De Mar Beats Bonaire.

George De Mar, ridden by O. Laidley, took command at the head of the stretch and won the third at a mile and one-sixteenth by one length in a drive. Bonaire took second money by three lengths over Patricia Marian.

Bossie, ridden by C. Meyer, went to the front on the stretch turn and won easily by two lengths in the fourth, a six furlongs sprint. Jim Pryor was second throughout and took place money by a length. President Kelly nosed out Peggy Lee, the leader to the stretch, for third money.

HOFFMEISTERS, PANTS STORES IN COMPETITION FOR THE TITLE

The Pants Store team, winner of the championship in the Municipal Baseball Association two years ago, will strive to regain that title in the first of a three-game series with the Hoffmeisters, starting at Fairground Park No. 1 this afternoon. The contest will start at 3 o'clock, with a battle between Naps Buddies and the St. Peters for the intermediate championship as a preliminary, starting at 12:30.

The "Pants" captured the pennant in the Empire League and in the semifinal round scored an 8 to 5 victory over the Yellow Cabs. The Hoffmeisters, representatives of the South Side circuit, battled the Stuarts to a 6 to 6 tie last Sunday and then trounced the team, 21 to 10, in a replay battle to gain the right to face the Pants nine.

Both clubs have shown a powerful punch in battles played to date and the series may be decided on base wallops rather than pitching. In the season's contests, the Hoffmeisters had tougher batting in going into the final than the Pants.

Linseman vs. Steinman.

Ray Linseman probably will draw the pitching assignment for the Hoffmeisters, although "Del" Gehner and Walter Meine are ready to oppose the Empire circuit representatives. Eddie Steiman, who has twirled in previous title matches, is scheduled to go to the hill for the Pants team. The second game of the series will be played next Sunday.

While no definite announcement has been made to date, the championship winner will took part in inter-city competitions at the close of the present title series.

The probable batting orders:

Cards' $100,000 Prospect

CHARLES GELBERT.

Shortstop for the Rochester team (a Cardinal "farm"), who is considered a sure-fire star with a valuation of six figures. He is expected to join the Cardinals before another season ends.

BOBBY JONES SAYS--

GOLF is certainly not a game of scientific exactness, I always like to stress the point that when I say definitely that I do thus and thus at such and such a time, I mean that I try to do what I describe. The swing is so fast and so complicated that it is hard indeed to separate entirely the component movements.

One of the many inaccuracies in what is called golf technique exists in the common admonition to "hit from the inside out." I have heard always since I can remember that the proper way to hit a golf ball was with a stroke which caused the club head to approach the ball from inside the projected line of flight and follow it along a line outside the line of flight. The late Douglas Edgar's famous "gate to golf" was reported to have been designed with this theory in view; to force the player to hit "out at the ball."

I have continually and vainly searched for a man who successfully followed the precepts outlined above. The wooden tee manufacturers used to advertise that one could tell by the mark of the tee on the sole of the club whether the club head had followed the proper path; and I confidingly and somewhat dumbly have examined the bottom of my driver on countless occasions. I must confess that I have not yet seen a mark which would indicate that I had hit toward the "outside."

Hitting From Inside a Fallacy.

I BELIEVE that the conception of hitting "from the inside out" had its origin in the efforts of conscientious and despairing instructors to put an end to the habit of all beginners of drawing the club-face across the ball. Nearly every novice is an habitual slicer because he invariably brings his club "from the outside in." The obvious way to correct the trouble is to advise the pupil to do the thing diametrically opposed to what he is doing. The resultant of the force impelling him to do as he has always done and that exerted by his conscious effort to do as he is told is very often close to being the correct thing. But I think no instructor expects his pupil to be able to achieve the end to which he advises him to aim.

As a matter of actual fact it is a difficult thing to "hit out" at the ball and still preserve even a semblance of timing. Hitting out nearly always results in a push without the decisive quality of a well-controlled blow.

There is a certain young man in Atlanta who has so patiently and thoroughly worked on the "hit out" theory that he has actually been able to accomplish it. As a reward he is now possessed of an outlandish hook which he cannot shake, although in every other respect his swing is extraordinarily good. He has placed himself unreservedly in the hands of Frank Ball and is making fine progress but he no longer thinks about hitting from the inside.

Keep Club Head on Line.

THE point is that the old rule is a good one to follow if your habit is slicing. To try to "hit out" is usually a good cure. Similarly, however, if you do "hit out," which very few are able to do then you would best try to slice a bit. The corrective works both ways and I think that the ideal lies midway between.

At least it looks to be reasonable that to propel the ball along a straight line the club head should travel on that line and neither on the inside nor the outside of it.

DALE TO MEET PEEWEE KAISER HERE TUESDAY

By Damon Kerby.

With the arrival of Jimmy Dale of Decateur, Ill., today, all boxers on the fight card Tuesday night at the Missouri Horse Show arena will be in the city for the coming program. The card will be under the auspices of the Walter J. Hatzfeld Post of the American Legion with Billy Maloney as matchmaker.

Dale is scheduled to meet Johnny "Pewee" Kaiser, local featherweight, in the 10-round feature bout, in the first appearance of the Decateur boxer in a local ring. His record shows that he knocked out Tate Langford in five rounds, Boy Ryan in one round, Mike Brody in five rounds, K. O. Brown in two rounds and Steve Brody in five rounds.

Both Will Work Out Tomorrow.

Kaiser has been inactive since his fight here last month in the first show sponsored by Billy Maloney, in which he knocked out Patsy Flanagan in the feature event of a well-received card. He completely outclassed the veteran Flanagan and gave a good exhibition of punching ability.

Kaiser has been in training in local gymnasiums while Dale has been going through a training siege at Decatur. Both will go through only light limbering up exercises tomorrow.

Another 10-round bout will bring together two middleweights Frank Burman of St. Louis and Jimmy Bova of Syracuse, N. Y.

Tommy Smith, local welterweight, will meet Johnny Lucas in an eight-rounder; Eddie Burke, former Western A. A. U. featherweight champion, is scheduled against Buddy Schlereth in a return bout at 142 pounds, also over the eight-round route, while Pete White and Nick Broglio will open the show with a six-round event at 130 pounds.

Tickets have been placed on sale at all downtown gymnasiums at prices from $3.30 down to $1.10, with all seats reserved.

Harry Sharpe and Walter Heisner will referee.

Tippett Signs Joe Ghnouly.

Although his first indoor show of the season is not scheduled until a week from Tuesday, Jack Tippett, matchmaker for the Fred W. Stockham Post, has lined up four of the seven bouts planned for the Coliseum show, with the signing of Joe Ghnouly, district amateur bantamweight champion, who will make his professional appearance against Paul Lang, another local boxer.

Lou Terry will meet Walter "Red" Roland in a lightweight bout; Mike Sansone bantam, will clash with Jimmy Sayers of Indianapolis, and a welterweight contest will bring together Al McCoy of St. Louis and Moan Baumgartner of Fort Wayne, Ind. All will be at six rounds.

Field Named on Commission.

Jules Field of the City Counselor's office, has been named a member of the city boxing commission to fill the vacancy which has existed since the death of Frank Slater several months ago. Field will present a revised city boxing ordinance to other members of the commission at a meeting this week that was originally scheduled Monday, but which was put off until some members of the city commission returned from out of the city.

TEAM RIFLE TROPHY IS WON BY MARINES

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 15.—Making 2733 of their 3000 shots count for points, the United States Marines today won the national team rifle match by 29 points.

The Navy team dropped the Infantry into third place, scoring 2704 to 2680 for the doughboys. The Cavalry was fourth with 2651 and the California civilian team fifth with the same total, but not so good a score on the longer ranges.

This competition of 98 teams of 10 men each, begun Friday, closed the National matches as well as the week's tournament of shooting by the National Rifle Association.

A high wind handicapped the gunmen today. Last year's winning score was 2838, the Infantry defeating the Marines by one point

More Than 400 Aspirants Are Out for Grid Elevens In the Public High Schools

By Harold Tuthill.

Large squads went through opening practices in the Public High School Football League last week. Central High, whose status has not been definitely settled, plans to get its 135 aspirants into action as soon as its many problems are solved.

More than 400 have answered the call in the five high schools, approximately 135 at Central, 100 at Beaumont, 70 at Roosevelt and 50 each at Cleveland and Soldan. It is the plan of all the coaches to maintain three or four teams throughout the season. League games have been planned for the second-string outfits.

Soldan Lacks Veterans.

In the matter of veteran material, Soldan is not well fixed, with only Bray and Schacklin, ends, Soest and Menke, guards, and Shapiro, fullback, returning as lettermen. Peluso and Miller, both star performers last year, have not returned to school.

Coach Jimmy Cook's team will first see action Sept. 28 when it plays St. Louis University High School at the Public School Stadium. The following week it will meet Alton High School at the stadium and on Oct. 13 Soldan plays Principia at Principia.

Central, too, if it is permitted to stay in the old Yeatman High School building, will feel the dearth of veteran material, for only six players, Higgins, Herskowitz, Marquard, Cunningham and Manes, linemen, and Chapman, quarterback, saw service with Mike Walker last year. Central's practice schedule has not as yet been made up.

While Coach Bert E. Fenega is not making any pre-season predictions, a glance at the array of players who reported to his fold at Cleveland High School is sufficient to forecast that Cleveland should be one of the strong contenders this year.

The lineup for Cleveland, at present, follows: Miller and Schumacher, ends; Cianciola, Oswald and Kerchoff, tackles; Beckmeier and Mosar, guards; Wilson, center; Thompson and Savage, backs. Fenenga needs only a couple of backfield running mates for Thompson and Savage to have an 11 composed mostly of veterans.

Cleveland to Play C. B. C.

Coach Ray Lewis revealed that there was a complete backfield composed of Barnhouse, Weidner, Nickel and Lone and that there were seven in the front line. Close, Menzes and Holtman are the wingmen, with Guby at tackle, Anastasoff and Hoyer, guards and Brown at center. With this assemblage Beaumont should provide some stiff opposition to the various high schools.

Beaumont's schedule follows: Oct. 5, Beaumont at St. Louis U. High; Oct. 12, Kirkwood at Beaumont; Oct. 19, McBride at Beaumont.

Last year's champion, Roosevelt, coached by Lee R. Carlson, has 11 regulars returning. Carlson enjoys the unique experience of having four worthy tackles from last season. They are Monteith, Norris, Ehredt and Becker. Of the line-smashing backfield, consisting of Saussele, Heitz, Barnes and Savage, that carried Roosevelt to victory last year, only Savage and Barnes remain. In all probability a newcomer, Lang, will see some service behind the line. Belter, at guard, and Jenkins, at center, are the other two lettermen.

Roosevelt's practice schedule has not been made up, but it is certain that the Rough Riders will go into action at the end of this month.

There will be a meeting of the High School Athletic Council Tuesday and if it is decided that Central is to remain in its present quarters, the schedule adopted for the coming season will be maintained. If Central is forced to disband and become assimilated by the other high schools, the league officials will draft a new football schedule.

A survey of the football situation in the high schools, shows that approximately 300, or one-fifteenth of the total enrollment of boys are trying out for the several teams. Four schools, Beaumont, Cleveland, Soldan and Roosevelt each has about an average number of 1100 boys, while Central only has about 600 from which to draw its athletes.

The coaches are pursuing the almost uniform practice of only light workouts for the candidates, consisting for the most part in running, passing the ball and blocking charges. This form of exercise will last all next week and the following week most of the players will be in condition for hard scrimmages.

VIRGINIA WILSON WINS CANADIAN OPEN GOLF TITLE

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Sept. 15.—The Canadian women's open golf championship passed into the hands of Virginia Wilson of Chicago today. In a battle of tournament medalists, she defeated Peggy Wattles of Buffalo, N. Y., 5 up and 4 to play, in the 36-hole final round.

It marked the second time in two years that Canada's chief women's golfing prize developed into a final-round duel between two stars from the United States. Last year Helen Payson of Portland, Me., defeated Fritzi Stifel of Wheeling, W. Va., to win the championship. Miss Payson was eliminated in the second round of the 1928 meet.

Wagoner Place Defeats Memphis Champions, 10-7

The Wagoner Place team, champion of the Sunday School League, met and defeated the Sunday school champions of Memphis, Tenn., the La Belle Methodists, in a game here yesterday, 10 to 7.

Sweeney of Wagoner Place hit two home runs, and Mautner drove in five of the locals' runs. Next Saturday the locals will open a two-game series in Memphis.

FEWER REAL STARS IN MAJORS TODAY THAN 10 YEARS AGO, SAYS RUTH

NO TYRUS COBB, OR SPEAKER TO GET PLACES ON ALL-STAR TEAMS

By Babe Ruth.

(Copyright, 1928.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—In going over the records to pick an all-star team one finds a lot of funny things about baseball. That was one thing that impressed me more than anything else, while I was selecting my team. It was that there are fewer real stars in baseball today than there were 10 or 15 years ago.

Don't misunderstand me. By that I don't mean there are not just as good players now as then. What I mean is that for every position there are men who are about equally good.

Fifteen years ago, in picking an all-star team a man could name Cobb, Speaker, Wagner, Schalk, Johnson and players like that and there would be no argument. They simply stood out. There are no players like that now. Even a fellow like Hornsby, good as he is, has plenty of competition from Frisch and Lazzeri and Critz. Al Simmons is a great outfielder, but Douthit and Combs and Waner and Manush and Wilson are great outfielders, too—and you can't hand the palm to Simmons without an argument.

The best proof of the point that I'm making, I believe, is the fact that a thousand arguments have arisen about my team—and all good arguments, too.

More Players Developing.

I don't know just why this is true. Maybe, despite what a lot of pessimists say regarding kids losing interest in baseball, there are more kids playing baseball today than ever before. But personally I believe the real reason is that kids are getting better baseball training today than they used to and the result is that more of them are developing into real stars.

Another funny thing about that all-star team, according to the newspaper men who handled the contests is that a lot of fans failed to descriminate between the most valuable player and the best player. You know it's entirely possible for a man to be the most valuable player to his club and yet not be a star at the position he plays.

Take a fellow like Jimmy Foxx, for instance. I believe Jimmy has been the most valuable man on the Athletic club this season. He came in at the proper moment and filled a tough job well. Yet I don't think anyone would ever pick Jimmy as the third baseman on an all-star team. Lindstrom, Traynor, Kamm—well there are four or five men in the big leagues who loom up better than Foxx when it comes to playing the position.

Foxx Proved Valuable.

After all the most valuable player thing depends not so much on a man's class as it does on his ability to do a certain needed thing at a certain time—and that's where Jimmy Foxx shone.

In less than three weeks the season will end. But between now and then the fans are going to be treated to the greatest baseball scramble in the big league history. For here out, it looks like a dog fight in both leagues—and the winner will be the club which can keep its head up and its pitchers working best.

I'm no fortune teller and I can't forsee what will happen. Maybe the Yankees will win; maybe we'll lose. But I'll say one thing for the Yankees. We'll be right in there bearing down to the finish—and if we do lose it will be because the other fellows were better and not because they outgamed or outfought us.

CHICAGO HURLING TEAM TO PLAY HERE TODAY

The St. Louis Hurling team will attempt to avenge the recent defeat at the hands of the Chicago team suffered recently at Chicago, in a return game this afternoon at the Public School Stadium, Kingshighway and St. Louis avenues.

Hurling is a product of Ireland and is the national field game of that country. Fifteen players constitute a team and occupy positions on the field somewhat similar to the positions occupied by soccer players. The object is to get the ball between the goal posts of the opposing team.

Players use a hurley or playing club which somewhat resembles a hockey stick, and the ball is not unlike the regulation indoor ball.

Although an effort was made to get a combination together here four years ago, it was not until 1926 that a permanent team was brought together.

St. Louis line-up:

Jack McCarthy	Goal
J. O'Mear	Left fullback
M. Coleman	Center fullback
John Ryan	Right fullback
James Coleman	Center fullback
Ed Ryan	Right halfback
J. McGrath	Right midfield
P. O'Brien	Left wing forward
James Ryan	Center forward
J. Carroll	Right wing forward
Joe O'Brien	Left wing forward
William Burke	Center wing forward

Substitutes: F. Madden, William Cosgrove, J. Barrett.

WOOD AND HOKE TO MEET ON CROATIAN FIGHT CARD THURSDAY

Matchmaker Otto Brexler reports 18 local and East Side boxers have filed entries to date as candidates for pairings in the special and preliminary events on the amateur boxing program of the new Croatian A. C. next Thursday night, at the Motorbus arena, 3547 West Pine boulevard.

One of the special events on the Croatian fistic program will feature Reggie Wood of the People's Motorbus A. C., and Norman Hoke of the Missouri-Pacific A. C., in a lightweight bout. John Schwake, South Broadway heavyweight; Jimmy Reed, Baden A. C. middleweight; Kenneth Lee, Croatian A. C. welterweight, and Dan Durso, Flori Olympian bantam, are candidates for pairings in other inter-club specials.

The following have filed entries for preliminary events:

135-POUND CLASS—Eddie Geen, People's Motorbus A. C.; Ted Nelson, Flori Olympian A. C.

146-POUND CLASS—Jack Teper and Carl Steibler, Croatian A. C.

BRITISH FIGHTER CHALLENGES THIS BOXER'S TITLE CLAIM

IZZY SCHWARTZ.

Talk of world title matches in the flyweight class between American fighters may sound well, but there are others in the world who have claim to this fight crown as well as our American king of the "atom" class.

Corporal Izzy Schwartz of New York was made champion of America when Fidel La Barba, who really held the world title, retired, although Newsboy Brown of Los Angeles also laid claim to the championship. Schwartz, however, had the backing of the New York Commission and that went farther than some others.

Johnny Hill of Scotland holds the British and European flyweight championships. Recently he defeated Newsboy Brown in what was advertised as a world title match. The promoters had no right to advertise it as such, although they had as much claim as Corporal Schwartz had on this side of the Atlantic.

The only fair way to settle the controversy is to have Schwartz and Hill meet in an international match for the world title.

SERIES FOR PENNANT IN UNIVERSITY CITY WILL START TODAY

The series, between split season winners to decide the championship of the University City Municipal League will start this afternoon, the Westlake Park club and Hub Toggery playing at Heman Park, starting at 2:30 o'clock. Berkeley or Frain will pitch for Westlake and Rolf for the Hubs.

The series winner will play in a round robin with the winners in five other county leagues for the championship of the county.

TIGERS READY FOR FIRST GRID WORK TOMORROW

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 15.—Sixteen lettermen, 25 or 30 graduates of the freshman ranks and others to make up a full squad membership numbering between 70 and 80 will swarm over Rollins Field of the University of Missouri here Monday when practice sessions in the new Big Six conference officially start.

Gwinn Henry's sixth year as Tiger coach, in his opinion, will be one of his best, and his more successful campaigns in the old Missouri Valley Conference resulted in the winning of three championships for his squad in five years. Jack Crangle, backfield mentor, and Harry Lansing, line coach, who helped Henry last fall when the Tigers took the last mythical championship of the Missouri Valley loop, will assist with the strategy this fall.

Seven returning veterans are backs and nine worked in the Tiger line. Among the backs are three members of the "pony" backfield that bore the burden of Missouri's attack last fall. Henry Rosenhein, Robert Mehrle and Earl Diemund, the diminutive backs who played a large part in Missouri's 1927 victory over Northwestern University of Chicago; Bernard Schaff, Bob Byars, John Waldorf and Scott Kennedy make up the squad of seasoned backs.

Maids of Honor For Veiled Prophet's 50th Ball Named

Fifty Who Will Attend Queen Are Announced; Decorations as Planned Will Outshine Previous Functions.

FOR another year the annual interest and not wholly feminine curiosity concerning the personnel of the Court of Love and Beauty chosen to grace the Veiled Prophet's ball Oct. 3 will be appeased today with the announcement of the Maids of Honor. With an allowance for those whose school duties will take them East before time for the ball, and those who prefer to serve as a maid during their debut year, a season hence, the list of 60 will be shortened to an even half hundred.

As a background for the young women and their lovely gowns there will be hangings of gold cloth with balustrades and seats of gold, in reproduction of the famous Fete d'Or of Louis the Magnificent of France, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the first visit of the venerable and beloved monarch. From the Prophet's realm will come goldsmiths, artists and lapidaries to fashion the details of decorations, and predictions are for the most beautiful ball thus far. As soon as the Coliseum is in readiness the work of installation will begin. The plans call for a much larger space this year for the Court of Honor in order to emphasize the beauty of the appointments.

A large concert orchestra, stationed before the royal dais, will present an interesting program while the guests are awaiting the arrival of the Prophet and the new Queen, and will be the official honor for the retiring queen, Miss Anne Farrar Semple.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Queen's supper, following the ball, will be held at Hotel Chase, as it was last year, and that again the entire floor of the hotel has been reserved for the Prophet and his retinue.

Details of arrangements for the ball have

Arrangements for 3 Weddings of Interest In Fall Made Known

ARRANGEMENTS for three fall weddings are announced today. Miss Mildred Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lockett Edwards of Kansas City, formerly of St. Louis, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Charles Harold McCrea, 7019 Westmoreland drive, and has told of her approaching marriage to Parker Brooks Sturgis, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Sturgis of Chicago. She has chosen Oct. 2 as her wedding day, the ceremony to take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at the home of her parents, the Rev. Dr. Washburn of St. Paul's Church in Kansas City officiating. About 150 guests will attend the wedding and the reception following. George Lockett Edwards Jr. will be Mr. Sturgis' best man, and the only other attendants will be Mary and Charles McCrea, small niece and nephew of the bride, who will serve as flower girl and ring bearer.

Mrs. Edwards will arrive in St. Louis Tuesday to visit Mr. and Mrs. McCrea and will return to Kansas City with Miss Mildred the last of the week. Mrs. McCrea will depart next week for Kansas City to remain until after the wedding.

Mr. Sturgis and his bride will have a honeymoon trip by motor, and will make their home temporarily in Chicago.

Miss Edwards is a graduate of Mary Institute and made her debut informally in St. Louis several years ago.

Miss Frances Shapleigh, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Watson, with whom she makes her home at 1031 Goodfellow avenue, and C. Wilfred Buschman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Buschman, 5163 Waterman avenue, will be married Oct. 10 at 9 o'clock in the morning at St. Rose's Church, the Rev. Father J. J. McGlynn officiating. A breakfast for 35 guests will follow at the Forest Park Hotel.

Miss Meredith Shapleigh will be her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Lucille Perry, Miss Alice Brokaw and Miss Eleanor Lynch will be bridesmaids. The flower girls are to be Betsy and Frances Jones, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jones Jr. of 5321 Cates avenue. Kenneth Buschman, brother of the bridegroom, will be best man, and Herman Kriegshauser, Lucien Roy and Brazur Clare, groomsmen.

Among the parties for Miss Shapleigh and

Brady-Cabell Wedding

CARDS have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Blanche Brady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Patrick Brady of 10 North Taylor avenue, and Carrington Cabell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Cabell of "Sunnymede," Kirkwood, Mo. The wedding took place Wednesday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brady.

Weddings and Engagements

AN outstanding social event of yesterday was the marriage last night of Miss Lenora Bowman Kinnaird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kinnaird, 5140 Enright avenue, and Malcolm Pettus Breckenridge, which took place at 8:30 o'clock at St. George's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. John S. Bunting of the Church of the Messiah officiating.

Miss Anne Kinnaird was her sister's maid of honor, and Virginia Bowman, a cousin, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hite Bowman, flower girl. Fred W. Pavey was best man, and the ushers were William R. Kinnaird, Harris Cobb, Ralph d'Oench, Robert Rogers, Ellsworth F. Smith II and John Annin.

The altar of the church was adorned with Easter lilies and a bower of palms and ferns.

The bride was gowned in tulle over white transparent velvet. The tulle yoke was embroidered in pearls and the velvet bodice was attached to a three-tiered skirt of bouffant tulle, draped high at one side and sweeping into a train in the back. Her tulle veil was arranged to her hair with orange blossoms, and she carried lilies of the valley.

Miss Kinnaird wore Nile green velvet combined with tulle of the same shade, the sleeveless bodice embroidered in rhinestones. Over the bouffant tulle skirt, fashioned with the long back, was a bow of pink and orchid ribbon with long streamers. The flower girl wore pink chiffon and carried a basket of pink roses.

36th ANNIVERSARY SALE

Hundreds of New and Wonderful VALUES FOR THE SECOND WEEK

THE first week of our 36th Anniversary Sale has far exceeded all previous records—a gratifying demonstration of public approval! And now for the second week! Our organization has been watching with zealous care, your preferences, and as early as last Monday many of our buyers rushed to the markets to replace the most popular offerings. Telephone messages and telegrams have been pouring into our New York and Chicago offices, and our organizations there have been working day and night to make the second week of the sale as compellingly attractive as the first.

Hundreds of entirely new features will make their initial appearance Monday, and the majority of the wonderful values that have been so appealing the first week, will remain on sale. So we invite you to the opening of the second week of the event with confidence that you will again be impressed with its value-giving supremacy.

In speaking of the Anniversary Merchandise for the second week, we wish to emphasize:

First:—
All offerings are of Stix, Baer and Fuller quality, gathered with great care. This store has definite and high standards, and is holding rigidly to them throughout this sale.

Second:—
All Anniversary features are comprised of the newest and most wanted Fall and Winter merchandise.

Third:—
The prices, without exception, are extremely low.

Fourth:—
Every personal and home need can be advantageously supplied, for every department in the store has hundreds of wonderful offerings. Special BLUE SIGNS will guide you to these features.

Miss Gladys Brooks of Newport avenue has gone to Wheaton, Ill., where she will be a student at Wheaton College.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Chapman of Gore avenue are entertaining a number of guests at a house party at their country home near Morse's Mill, with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hicks of St. Louis as the guests of honor. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks are leaving in a short while for Mexico City, Mexico, where they will make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Alderson and family are spending the week-end in a motor trip through the Ozarks.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Weaver and their two small daughters, who have been spending the past three weeks in a motor trip through the East, are expected home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo C. Dziatzko of Jefferson road have returned from Wanda, Ill., where they spent several days.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Anderson of Elm avenue have sent out cards for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marie Dahl Anderson, to E. Carl Erickson of San Francisco, at Bethany Lutheran Church, Saturday evening, Sept. 29. A rececption at the home of the bride's parents will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Edward J. Greve of Belleview avenue and her small daughter, Gloria, have returned from a stay of several weeks at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, and at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Catherine Givens Cannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Cannon of Elm avenue, to John T. Willis of Monroe City, which took place yesterday noon, at the home of the bride's parents, with Dr. Walter Langtry of the Presbyterian Church of Clayton officiating.

The bride wore an afternoon frock of golden brown velvet with small hat and shoes to match. Her flowers were Ophelia roses. Miss Ruth Cannon, a sister of the bride, wore a frock of French blue crepe with hat and shoes to match. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mr. Willis had as his best man his nephew, Eugene Yowell of Monroe City.

A breakfast was served after the ceremony, after which the bride and groom departed for a motor trip through the North. Among the guests from out of town were: Mrs. Emmett Yowell, Mrs. Jesse Sutman and daughter, Miss Pauline Sutman of Monroe City; Mr. and Mrs. Damon Driver of Carrollton, Ill., and Eugene Scarlett of Columbia, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis on their return from their trip will occupy an apartment at 7405 Lyndover avenue, Maplewood.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hoevel of Blackmer place and their three children have returned from a three-week stay at Charlevoix, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Vogt, with their son, Gupton Vogt, and Miss Rosemary Carr, their neice, have returned from Michigan, where they spent August at Les Chenaux Islands. Miss Carr is leaving this week for the East, where she will resume her studies at Mount Holyoke Seminary.

Mrs. A. S. Frampton of Baker avenue, her two daughters and son have returned from Los Angeles, where they spent the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Clayton Burgey of 24 South Maple avenue, who recently moved to Webster Groves from Norwich, Conn., had as their guest during the last week Miss Helen Marie Hissy of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Bruce Justus and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Justus of Columbia, Mo., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Cannon of Elm avenue this week.

Miss Page Wright of Gray avenue has returned from Fish Creek, Wis., where she spent the summer at Camp Menagha.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Wurdeman, their daughter, Miss Eleanor, and Miss Lydia Hospes, have returned from Sylvan Beach Mich., where they spent August.

Miss Margaret Batchelor of Philadelphia, who has been the guest of Miss Mildred Wild, the last thre eweeks, departed for her home Monday.

The marriage of Miss Jane Dittman of Sherwood Drive, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dittman, to Wilber W. Goessling, son of Mrs. F. W. Goessling, of St. Louis, took place last evening at the home of the bride's parents, with the Rev. Dr. J. L. Roemer of Lindenwood officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of tulle over satin. The bodice and sleeves were simply made, being of shirred tulle. The skirt was of shirred ruffles graduating from tiny ruffles at the waist to wide ruffles forming a train from the long skirt. A veil of Chantilly lace with the face veil of tulle was fastened to the coiffure at the sides with orange blossoms, which were also attached in tiny bunches around the veil. She carried an arm bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Dorothy Dittman, a younger sister of the bride, wore a frock of orchid and mauve tulle, the bodice being plain with a bertha of lace, fastened at the back of the waist with a bow of green velvet. She carried an arm bouquet of lavender dahlias. The bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Wray and Miss Cornelia Materne, wore frocks of green tulle in two shades. The skirts of tulle were circular, the bodices plain with jackets of velvet in the same shade as the tulle. The bodices were cut very low in the back with bows of the velvet falling to the hem of the long skirts. They carried arm bouquets of dahlias in shades of lavender.

Mr. Goessling had as his best man his brother, Frederick Goessling. The groomsmen were Robert Carr of Chicago, Blair Laughlin of St. Louis and Elliott Faster of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Goessling departed later in the evening for a honeymoon trip through the East. They will return to St. Louis and occupy the apaartment of Mr. Goessling's mother for the winter, while she is in California.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

THE first meeting of the Phi Delphian Chapter will be held at Cabanne Branch Library Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. The subject of study this year is poetry and music. The lesson for Wednesday will be "English Poetry of the Fifteenth Century." Mrs. Erwin G. Ossing will have charge of the lesson. Mrs. John C. Pritchard, president, will preside.

The Woman's Missionary Society of West Presbyterian Church held a reception Monday afternoon at 4 p. m. in the church parlor, in honor of Mrs. H. C. Gilger president of the society for the last two years, who is leaving the city to make her home in North Platte, Neb. Assisting the vice president, Mrs. Oscar Cramer, in receiving the guests, were members of the board of directors, including Mrs. Franklin R. Jackes, Mrs. J. T. Garrett, Mrs. William B. Lampe, Mrs. H. A. Linneman, Mrs. E. E. Rudolph, Miss Ethel Hansen, Mrs. J. M. Dubs, Mrs. Lee A. McLean, Miss Marie Lovell, Mrs. W. H. Bissland, Mrs. C. H. Bacon, Mrs. C. H. Krause, Mrs. E. L. Ohle, Mrs. J. A. Mackay, Mrs. H. G. Nicks, Mrs. A. W. Weiss, Mrs. H. M. Willhite and Mrs. W. B. Bennett.

The first regular meeting of the Missionary Society will be held Sept. 25, at 12:30 p. m., in the dining-room of the church. It will be the Rally day luncheon, with members of Mrs. William H. Pape's Missionary Circle as hostesses. The program following the luncheon will include a devotional service led by Mrs. Matthew Park, and an address by the Rev. Arnold H. Lowe, who has recently returned from a summer abroad. He will speak on "Missions a Background for World Peace."

The circle leaders who will preside at the tables are Mrs. E. S. Williams, Mrs. William R. Short, Mrs. A. W. Willcut, Mrs. William H. Pape, Mrs. A. J. Hare, Mrs. Mabel Cann, Mrs. George Stoner, Mrs. Harry H. Hubbell, Mrs. John H. Scott and Miss Emma Normecutt.

The Christmas gifts for the West Church Missionaries, which have been made and collected during the summer, will be displayed by the chairman of the Christmas Gift Committee, Mrs. J. A. Mackay, and her committee members.

The St. Louis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be represented tomorow at Lexington, Mo., when the D. A. R. Missouri State marker, "The Pioneer Mother," and markers of historic sites around Lexington will be unveiled by Mrs. Henry C. Chiles, regent of the Lexington Chapter, D. A. R.

Four automobiles will carry the St. Louis Chapter party, including those of Mrs. Howard Bailey, Mrs. Clement W. Nelson, Mrs. Shelby H. Curlee and Mrs. Benton H. Pollock, with the following guests: Mrs. Arthur M. Wilson, state treasurer, D. A. R.; Mrs. William Carver Forder, Mrs. O. S. Wilfley, Miss Kate Wilson, Mrs. Ben S. Pearson, Mrs. Joseph M. Long, Miss Frances Keene, Mrs. James H. McCabe and Mrs. John A. Moore.

On the way the party will visit the old Tavern at Arrow Rock, built 100 years ago, which is now under the supervision of the State Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The Executive Board of the Spirit of St. Louis Memorial Committee met Tuesday morning at 10 a. m. at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Howard Bailey, 4944 Lindell boulevard, to complete plans for installing 15 large cases in the west wing of Jefferson Memorial, in which the trophies and medals presented to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will be preserved.

Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, honorary chairman of the Spirit of St. Louis Memorial Committee, who has charge of the Lindbergh trophies, suggested that the transfer of the trophies from the east to the west wing of Jefferson Memorial be postponed until after the Veiled Prophet's visit to the city, so that there would be no danger of visitors not being able to view the exhibit on account of moving it. This suggestion was accepted by the committee. The transfer will be made as soon as possible after the festivities. The committee will then hold an open meeting in the west wing, with a private view of the trophies.

A "History of the L. L. Club" will be the feature of its first meeting of the season, Friday. Mrs. Malcolm MacBryde of 8 Highland Terrace will be hostess. The progress of the club since 1912 will be outlined by Mrs. D. Reamer, the club's first president. Each member will answer roll call with a short account of her vacation experiences.

Recent outstanding books will form the basis of the year's study. At each meeting there will be presented two notable books, one of fiction, the other non-fiction.

The L. L. Club officers for the year are: Mrs. L. H. Bowerman, president; Mrs. A. H. Knodle, vice president; Mrs. H. E. McCulloch, secretary, and Mrs. F. B. Maise, treasurer.

Monday evening, at 8 p. m., at the Knights of Columbus Building, Bailey Circle 170, Daughters of Isabella, will hold its first fall meeting. The affair will be in charge of Mrs. John J. O'Reilly. Games will be played and refreshments served.

The opening meeting of the Zontas Club will be held Thursday, at 12:30 o'clock.

A board meeting of the Pioneer Chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, will be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday, with Mrs. Dudley Southward as hostess.

The Federation of Evangelical Women's Organizations will meet Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Ebenezer Church, 2915 McNair avenue.

The St. Louis Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, met Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. C. Crowdus at the Gatesworth Hotel. The Chapter Board met Sept. 7 at the Gatesworth as guests of Mrs. R. P. Williams.

St. Louis Chapter, American War Mothers, met Tuesday at the D. A. V. Club, 3738 West Pine boulevard. Mrs. Cuno Werner, Mrs. W. H. Hand and Mrs. H. G. Fallis were elected delegates to the War Mothers' State convention to be held in Independence, Mo., Oct. 18 to 20. Mrs. G. A. Knight, Mrs. George Ferber and Mrs. M. J. Forrest were elected as alternates. The sixth anniversary of the chapter will be celebrated Oct. 9, at a luncheon.

The St. Louis University High School George M. Backer Memorial Mothers' Club held its first meeting of the season. Monday in the music room of the school at Kingshighway and Oakland avenue. The annual card party will be held Nov. 27.

Mrs. Frederick B. Hall was appointed to fill the office of historian made vacant by the death of Mrs. Edward F. Jackson, May 4.

Mrs. Elizabtth Robertson Adams, corresponding secretary, reported checking all honor rolls mailed out, and requested that returns on same be mailed as soon as possible to the treasurer, Mrs. Charles H. Hoyle, 5702 Cabanne avenue.

Religious Board Opens New Home

THE Board of Religious Organizations has announced the new location of its home for girls, the B. R. O. Girls' Club, at 4474 McPherson avenue, which may be reached by Olive or Taylor cars. The home formerly was called Euclid House and was located at 1753 Waverly place.

The house is suited for the type of work done by this department of the B. R. O. There are three large rooms on the third floor, each accommodating four beds. On this floor are also a storeroom, bath and matron's room. On the second floor, there are two large bedrooms for the girls, a recreation room, a guest room and the superintendent's room, together with two glassed-in sleeping porches and two bathrooms. On the first floor are two reception rooms, a large dining room, with small rooms for a matron, kitchen and lavatory. The basement is equipped with a complete heating plant and laundry facilities.

The club has occupied its new home since July 31. This club is a temporary home for girls 14 years and over, who are in some emergency need. While their problems are being adjusted, they may have the advantages of good care and training, and a real home. Girls are referred to the B. R. O. Girls' Club by public and private agencies, and even by individuals. The club is nonsectarian. Opportunity is given for the girls living at the home to go to neighborhood public schools. The superintendent of the B. R. O. Girls' Club is Miss Pearl Micel. It is supported by the Community Fund, supplemented by donations from church women, and is under the direction of the Board of Religious Organizations.

Card Party for Webster College

The young ladies assisting are Miss Marie Murnane, general chairman; Miss Marjorie Hawkins, chairman of the Card Party Committee; Miss Blanche Corley, chairman of the Advertisig Committee; Miss Margaret Smith, chairman of the Candy Committee; Mrs. Margaret Mowrey Riley, chairman of the Patron Committee; Miss Nell Costello, chairman of the Ticket Committee, and Miss Rosamond Smith, chairman of the Publicity Committee.

The following have been appointed on the ticket committee: Miss Thelma Coyne, Miss Helen McGuire, Miss Veronica Fuererbacker, Miss Inga Block, Miss Theresa Shea, Miss Berniece Wolff and Miss Mary Elizabeth Newell.

Women's Clubs And Societies

Room 11 at 2:30 p. m. A reception and entertainment, will be held in the kindergarten following the business meeting. Refreshments will be served.

The season's activities of Sylvan Chapter, Delphian Society, were inaugurated Wednesday at a luncheon and meeting at the country home of the president, Mrs. Nellie Woermann. Plans for the coming year were discussed.

Mrs. E. R. Sterbenz, president of Jackson Johnson Jr. American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 72, presided at a meeting of the unit at the clubhouse, 4160 Lindell boulevard, Monday. Tentative plans were made for a card party at Forest Park Hotel, Oct. 22.

Mrs. Jerome F. Duggan, hospital chairman, will direct a card party to be given by her committee tomorrow at Base Hospital No. 92 for the entertainment of the disabled veterans there. This will be the eighth of a series of regular monthly parties given by her committee during the year, covering a varied attendance of from 85 to 104 men in the Recreation Hall. Ward visits are also included in this schedule, one ward a month being covered.

DR. MAX A. GOLDSTEIN MEETS DANISH KING WHILE IN EUROPE

Dr. Max A. Goldstein, director of Central Institute for the Deaf and former president of the American Otological Society, has returned from a two-month tour of Europe, on which he was accompanied by Mrs. Goldstein.

The primary purpose of the trip was to attend the first international Congress of Otolaryngology at Copenhagen, attended by 350 of the leading ear and throat medical specialists of the world, coming from every civilized country where physicians specialize. About 50 of them were from the United States. The congress met in the Danish Parliament building, and its members shook hands with King Christian X. Dr. Goldstein, who described that monarch as democratic and affable in manner, exchanged a few perfunctory words with him.

"The feature of the congress," Dr. Goldstein related, "was the indication given by these scientific men that we are getting closer to learning the cause of otosclerosis—progressive deafness in the adult. Formerly, individuals were working on this subject, but now scientists all over the world are cooperating. The American Otological Society has formed the Otosclerosis Commission, and other countries have similar activity."

Parties and Other Social Affairs

Miss Marie Schultz was guest of honor at a surprise party Saturday evening, Sept. 8, given by a group of her friends at her home. She has departed for Warrenton, Mo., where she will attend school.

The Little Flower Club has chosen Saturday afternoon, Oct. 13, for its card party to be given at the Forest Park Hotel for the benefit of St. Lawrence O'Toole's parish, Fourteenth and O'Fallon streets, of which the Rev. P. J. Ritchie is pastor.

Mrs. Louise Bardenheier of 5424 Ruskin avenue celebrated her eighty-second birthday Sept. 8 with a dinner at Bevo Mill. A large cake with 82 candles formed the centerpiece for the table. About 25 guests were present.

The St. Louis Lindenwood College Club will hold its first meeting of the season Tuesday at Forest Park Hotel. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock, and Phil Love, the aviator, will make an address. The club's officers for the coming year are: Mrs. Arthur Krueger, president; Mrs. Clarence Becker and Miss Janet Stine, vice presidents; Mrs. L. T. Bernero, treasurer; Mrs. J. G. Vogt, recording secretary; Miss Anna Petri, corresponding secetarya; Miss Laura Ellwanger, auditor; Mrs. O. K. Saunders, membership chairman; Miss Marjorie Manger, program chairman. Meetings are to be held the third Tuesday of each month through the winter, with luncheon at the Forest Park Hotel.

Altenheim Society to Meet.

The first regular fall meeting of the Ladies' Society of the St. Louis Altenheim, 5408 South Broadway, will be held Wednesday afternoon. Meetings will be held hereafter on the third Wednesday of each month.

State Sunday School Convention.

The sixty-third annual State Sunday School convention will be held at Sedalia Nov. 20 to 22, it was decided at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Missouri Sunday School Council. A program committee of representatives of all Protestant denominations is being selected.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Gratz of New York were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Randolph during the past two weeks. Mrs. Gratz departed several days ago for Lexington, Ky., for a visit with relatives before returning home.

Miss Bessie Donovan, daughter of Mrs. D. H. Donovan, has returned from Clyde, N. C., where she spent two weeks at "Skyland," a camp of the Occupational Therapy School.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Moore were the hosts of their bridge club Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Engel, with their daughter, Miss Norma Engel, and their son, Wills Engel, have returned from Springfield, Ill.

Mrs. George Barlow has gone to Hughesville, Mo., where she will be the guest of friends. Mrs. Barlow will remain until the last of the month and will be present at the marriage of her brother, Harold Conway, to Miss Eunice McClure, daughter of Mrs. Luella A. McClure of Hughesville, on Sept. 22.

Mrs. John K. Lord has returned from Chautauqua Lake, N. Y., where she spent the past month. Her daughter, Miss Virginia Lord, spent the summer at Estes Park, Colo.

Mrs. Charles S. Brown will be the hostess at a bridge party Tuesday afternoon, the proceeds of which will be used to purchase shrubs for the lawn of the Parish House. If the weather permits the party will be given on the lawn. More than 35 tables already have been taken. The Garden Club is sponsoring the affair.

Miss Matilda Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine F. Jones will leave Wednesday for Sweet Briar, Va., where she will resume her studies at Sweet Briar College.

The Rev. Francis J. Bloy and Mrs. Bloy expect to leave the first of October for the East. They will attend the general convention of the Episcopal Church at Washington. Their son, Eric Bloy, has returned to Alexandria, Va., where he will resume his studies at the Theological Seminary of Virginia. He occupied the pulpit at Grace Church last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Tait of North Clay avenue returned the first of September from a visit in Chicago. Their daughter, Miss Jessie Tait, will be an instructor at Sherwood College of Music in Chicago during the winter months.

Mrs. Henry Picher of Los Angeles, Cal., who is returning to her home from a visit with relatives at Joplin, Mo., spent several days this week with Mrs. F. A. Buss of St. Louis and friends in Kirkwood. Mrs. Picher was before her marriage Miss Julia Rogers and lived for several years in Kirkwood.

The Parish Guild of Grace Church held its first regular meeting of the season Monday afternoon Sept. 10. Plans for the annual bazar were discussed and a short informal program was given.

Lord Asquith's War Diary

Might Better Have Stayed on His "Oracular Tripod" at Washington, ex-Premier Wrote — Asquith Refused Order of Garter After Son Was Killed in Action.

IN the accompanying installment of Lord Asquith's war memoirs, the seventh to be published by the Post-Dispatch, he records some interesting observations regarding events and personalities embraced in the period from 1916-18. It was in December, 1916, that he resigned the Prime Ministership and was succeeded by David Lloyd George.

IN 1915 I formed a new friendship to which I have ever since been greatly indebted. A young couple with a single child took a farm in the neighborhood of Eastern Grey in Wilts—which had long been the home of my sister-in-law, Mrs. Graham Smith.

The husband, Roland Harrison, was a professional soldier—a major in the R. A. F.—and but for the war would have gone with his regiment to India. He was mobilized and sent to the front in France, where he fought, with occasional intervals of leave, until he was killed in action in the autumn of 1917. Both he and his wife came from Liverpool, where his father was a well-known surgeon and his wife's father a solicitor in good practice. Her maiden name was Hilda Grierson.

My acquaintance with her ripened after the death of her husband, when she came to live with her mother, Mrs. Grierson, at Boars Hill—only a few miles from Sutton Courtney. We became regular and intimate correspondents, and she has preserved a large number of my letters upon which she has allowed me to draw for the purpose of my narrative. They go back for 10 years, and, with the exception of what I have written to my wife, they are the nearest approach to a diary of any record for that period which I possess. In this and the following chapters I shall quote from them freely.

News of Son's Death Comes Soon After Visit to Front.

SEPTEMBER, 1916.—I paid a few days' visit to the front, where amongst other things I witnessed the debut of the tanks (which we then called "caterpillars"). I saw my two sons—Raymond and Arthur—and was present at some of the earlier stages of the fighting on the Somme.

I had barely got back home when the news came to me that Raymond had been killed in action. In acknowledging my friends' condolences, after saying that "this has been a great blow to me and I am much shaken by it," I go on, "There is or ought to be every kind of consolation, and I have numberless letters from all parts of the world, and all sorts and conditions of people. But I don't know that it all helps one very much."

Today I braced myself up to propose the vote of credit in the House of Commons; a trying and difficult speech, especially the last part of it. I got on better than I expected as every one was kind and sympathetic.

The war has sucked up so much of what was most lovable and full of promise that I have always been haunted by a fear that a toll would be exacted of me also. But when I saw him (Raymond) last—exactly a fortnight ago today—he was so radiantly strong and confident that I came away from France with an easier mind. O caeca pectora! Whatever pride I had in the past, and whatever hope I had for the far future—by much the largest part of both was invested in him. Now all that is gone. It will take me a few days more to get back to my bearings.

Resigns Post as Premier; Refuses Orders of Garter.

NOVEMBER 19, 1916.—I see you are taking your "King Lear" in small doses. I put it very high among the plays: Lear's "Never, Never," is almost the most tragic thing in Shakspeare. But one always comes back in the end to "Hamlet."

I spent the inside of last week in Paris—colloquying and arguing and give-and-taking with politicians and soldiers. It is an ill isolated world at present: and one is sometimes tempted to think that to have been born in it in these times was a bit of "cursed spite" on the part of the Higher Powers.

In the early days of the following month (December, 1916) I resigned my office as Prime Minister.

"When I fully realized (as I wrote to Mrs. Harrison at the time) what a position had been created, I saw that I could not go on without dishonor or impotence or both. And nothing could have been worse for the country and the war.

"The King offered me the Garter (Order of the Garter), which I refused.

"I am glad you are reading the book of Job. I think I must refresh my memory of it."

MAY, 1, 1927—I am glad that you have sampled the Euripides and like the first flavor of it.

Was it the first time you had read the Acts of the Apostles? I am entertained by your citation from that once familiar work. The "image" that fell down from Jupiter is a mistranslation. It was supposed (like many of the more primitive statues, e. g. Athena Palleas at Athens) to have fallen from the clear sky.

We drove over at tea-time yesterday to Windsor, where we spent the night. I had an hour's talk with the King before dinner, and another hour after . . . they were all very nice and kind, and it is always a pleasure to explore the castle, which is in many ways a treasure house.

Speech by Lloyd George Mostly 'Tosh,' He Thinks.

OCT. 30, 1917.—We had a sort of full dress service at the House yesterday. Ll. G. (Lloyd George) took an hour and a quarter to cover the ground. I thought the bulk of his speech what is vulgarly called "tosh" and a much applauded passage about the "Cavalry of the Clouds"—called (I see) by Lord Curzon the "Knight Errantry of the

Last Days of Lord Kitchener

LORD ASQUITH in his war memoirs, gives a striking picture of Lord Kitchener, Minister of War when Asquith was Premier. There has been much speculation on the circumstances of Kitchener's tragic death since he went down on the British Cruiser Hampshire while on a secret mission to Russia in June, 1916. Asquith herewith tells of his last days and the circumstances under which he set out on the fatal mission.

KITCHENER was a great man with certain obvious limitations; some of them congenial, others the natural, perhaps the necessary, results of the environment of his past career. He was disposed to be secretive, and did not find it easy to throw his knowledge and judgment into the common stock.

It is, however, an absurd travesty of the facts to say that at the War Office he "neither asked nor took the advice of any man." He was to my knowledge from the day when he took over the post, in constant communication and consultation with that great soldier, the lamented Sir John Cowans, the Quartermaster-General, whose department, with a stupendous and evergrowing burden of responsibility, during the whole course of the war not only never broke down, but exhibited no sign of strain or stress.

Kitchener was entirely without the drawback of personal vanity or self-consciousness. He did not pose for posterity; he never laid himself out either for contemporary or posthumous applause.

I was once urging upon him the importance of ignoring the rules of seniority and promoting young officers of promise. He replied that he had been himself 12 years, I think, a subaltern in the Royal Engineers. Two years later he had become a Major or Lieutenant-Colonel in the Egyptian cavalry. Every man, he said, gets his chance.

His Sense of Humor Slight.

He was, perhaps, a little lacking in the corrective sense of humor, which is a rare and invaluable asset. But he was quite aware of his own foibles, such as they were, and did not in the least mind being rallied about them.

It is well known that he was, if not a connoisseur, a diligent and assiduous collector of objects of art. There were all sorts of legends, more or less authentic, of the methods by which in every variety of climate and environment, he was supposed to have pursued one of the capital designs of life—the adorning and enriching of his Kentish home. I will give an illustration which I can personally attest.

On one of my visits to the front in the early days of the war—I think it must have been in June or July, 1915, I accompanied Lord Kitchener from our headquarters at St. Omer to Ypres.

It was a stormy day. The German guns had for a few hours relaxed their activity and the gutted houses were swaying like fabrics of card-board in the wind. We found ourselves, with a retinue of Generals and staff officers, in the Grande Place, confronting the magnificent ruin of the famous Cloth Hall.

Had Eye on Statues in Ruins.

Large parts of the fine arcades of statues were still intact, and I observed that Kitchener was scanning them with an expert gaze. A young staff officer came up to me, and nudging my elbow, said: "Do you see that? Those statues have been bombarded by the Germans for a hundred days, but they have never been in such danger as they are at this moment."

"Do you mean," I replied, "that we may some day hope to see one or more of them at Broome Park?" (Kitchener's home.)

The audacious youth nodded, and disappeared quickly into space, nor, to my regret, was I ever able to establish his identity. As we drove back I related the conversation to Kitchener, who—far from showing any sign of resentment—was genuinely and immensely amused.

The last week of his life was a busy one and, to him, the happiest he had spent since the first day of the war. It began with the auspicious news of the great sea battle of Jutland. A day or two later his salary came on for discussion in the House of Commons, and after his critics had said their worst, a vote of confidence in him was carried by an imposing majority.

In June 2, at his own suggestion, he attended a large private meeting of members of Parliament, addressed to them a memorable speech in vindication of his administration, and submitted himself to cross-examination. He completely carried his audience with him, and the meeting ended with a unanimous resolution of gratitude and admiration.

Last Meeting With Premier.

On the evening of the same day he came to see me to say good-by. He was in the highest spirits and described with gusto and humor some of his friendly passages of arms with his hecklers at the House. He left the room gay, alert, elastic, sanguine.

I never saw him again.

Kitchener's destination was Petrograd, on a mission to the Russian Government, and I have always thought, and still think, that his arrival there might have deflected the subsequent course of history.

The diplomatist, whom Grey and I had selected to be, on the political side of his task, his chief adviser, was Hugh O'Beirne, who had not only in the course of his career been before the war for something like 10 years a member of our Embassy at St. Petersburg, but had also, from the various posts which he had held, an almost unique knowledge of the tangled relationships of the Balkan States.

He came from an Irish Roman Catholic family, and had gone with me on my visit to Rome in May, 1916. He was present at my interview with the Pope, Benedict XV, and was in attendance when, for two days, I had the honor of accompanying King Victor Emmanuel in a tour which embraced both the Julian and Isonzo fronts. I had formed a high opinion of his capacity, and, like all who knew him well, a strong personal affection for himself.

Charters Train, Loses Life.

It was part of the arranged program that he was to go by the same train as Kitchener to Sir John Jellicoe's fleet, where the cruiser Hampshire was to take the whole mission through the Baltic to Petrograd.

By some mistake, O'Beirne was driven to Charing Cross instead of to King Cross station and missed the train to the North. He chartered a special train, and by a melancholy mischance arrived just in time to join his chief and to share his tragic fate.

The Russian situation at the moment was, both on the financial and the military side, precarious, but it was not an unreasonable hope that it might be reinstated and stabilized by the powerful personality of Lord Kitchener, whose prestige both with the Allies and their enemies was at its highest point.

It must be remembered that even six months later, when Lord Milner's mission had been dispatched on a similar errand, the most experienced and clear-sighted observers had no prevision of the revolution which had then become imminent, and which not only swept aside the Czardom, but in time submerged in its own swelling torrent the Milliukoffs and the Kerenskys, and, when the water subsided, presented the world with the spectacle of a Bolshevik Russia with Lenin as its autocrat.

If the Hampshire had not been struck and sunk by a hidden mine there would have been a problem the less for the writers of hypothetical history.

Makeup of U. S. Supreme Court May Change in Next Four Years With Six Eligible to Retire

Fact That Next President Undoubtedly Will Name Several New Justices, Perhaps a Majority, Causes Discussion in Campaign as to Effect on Laws of Change in Membership.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.

ONE of the interesting lines of speculation opened up by the campaign is what effect the election will have on the composition of the United States Supreme Court. In all human probability, the next President will have the appointment of at least one member of the court; he is likely to name two or three members, and it is conceivable that he will name a majority—five out of the total of nine. President Harding served only two years and five months, yet he placed on the bench four of the men now serving, including the Chief Justice.

The power of the President to name the men who shall sit as final umpires in all disputes touching the Constitution of the United States is one of the greatest powers possessed by the executive of this or any other country.

A bill unanimously passed by the House and the Senate and signed by the President of the United States may be nullified by the voice of the odd man in the United States Supreme Court—the one man that is required to make the majority of five over four.

The members of the Supreme Court, like all Federal Judges, are appointed for life. They can be removed only by death, voluntary retirement or impeachment for misconduct in office. In all our history, no member of the Supreme Court has been removed by impeachment.

Judges in Office for Life, Appointed by President.

Theodore Roosevelt is dead, but two of the men he appointed to the Court are still there, each in his way profoundly influencing the course of national history. Wilson is dead, but two of the Wilson appointees—a strangely assorted pair—still have a voice in the determination of great issues. Harding is dead, but the stamp placed upon the court by his appointments will last for years to come.

The law provides that Federal Judges may retire at full pay upon reaching the age of 70 and after 10 years' service. Justice Holmes has long been eligible for retirement and Justice Brandeis became eligible two years ago. Within the four years from next March, four other members of the court—Chief Justice Taft and Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds and Sutherland—will be entitled by age and length of service to lay down their burdens and yet receive the full salary of their offices for the rest of their lives.

This is not to suggest, of course, that they or any other of them will do so. Men do not accept appointment to the Supreme bench because of the salary involved. Justice Holmes could have retired to a slippered ease 16 years ago, with his fame secure. By staying in the work that he loves he has rendered his country a service of incalculable value. Justice Brandeis at 72 adorns the bench with his vigorous intellect and his shining liberalism. There is every reason to believe that he will sign his name to many another cogent opinion on human rights.

Six Men Eligible to Retire In Next Presidential Term.

But age must eventually take its toll, and the fact that no fewer than six of the Justices—two-thirds of the full bench—will be eligible to retire during the next presidential term must be accounted as significant. Then, too, a Justice may resign at any time, as John Hessin Clarke, a Wilson appointee, one of the small liberal group, did in 1922, in order to promote the cause of world peace.

The suggestion has been advanced that a President not in sympathy with prohibition might procure its nullification through his appointments to the Supreme Bench. Such a thing is possible, of course, but, with respect to the coming four years, so remotely possible as not to warrant alarm among the drys. There is nothing in the record of Gov. Smith to indicate that he would deliberately "pack" the Supreme Court against the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. One of the strongest points in his favor is the high character of his appointments in New York; there is good evidence that in filling the key positions in the State he has been actuated to a remarkably small degree by political considerations.

But even if Gov. Smith, as President, should consciously or otherwise place wets on the Supreme Court, it is highly unlikely that any material change would be wrought in the collective attitude of the Court.

The decisions of the Court on prohibition have been strictly in line with the obvious intent of Congress. Most notable was the opinion of the Court in the group of cases decided June 7, 1920 (253 U. S. 350), when it not only upheld the validity of the eighteenth amendment, including the "concurrent power" section, but declared that Congress was quite within its right in defining liquors containing one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol as intoxicating. The Court said in effect that Congress could do whatever it deemed expedient in order to make prohibition effective.

The opinion of the Court was by Justice Van Devanter. Only two dissents were recorded, though Justice McReynolds concurred only in the disposition of the cases. Neither of the minority Justices, McKenna and Clarke, was in complete disagreement with the finding of the majority. McKenna said that his views on the Volstead act coincided with the minority report on the act from the House Judiciary Committee. Clarke declared flatly that the Volstead act "approves as valid a definition of liquor as intoxicating which is expressly admitted not to be intoxicating in each of the cases in which it is considered."

McKenna is dead and Clarke has resigned. Three of those who subscribed to the majority finding—Chief Justice White and Justices Day and Pitney—are dead.

Wets Lose Contentions By Decisions of Court.

Is there any comfort to be derived by the wets from the fact that the Court has been so largely remade since 1920? Not on the face of its decisions. One wet contention after another has been knocked down decisively. The decision of June 9, 1924, in which the Court said that Congress was within its constitutional rights in preventing physicians from prescribing intoxicating malt liquor for medicinal purposes, is typical of a long line. The opinion was by Justice Sanford, one of the newer members, and there was no dissent.

Through the decisions of the Court on prohibition, there has been built up a body of precedent that very few Judges, barring a change in the laws, would care to tilt against. To an extent unequalled in any other profession, Judges are bound by this "law of the law." The members of the present Supreme Court who don't believe in prohibition are as likely as any of the others to be dry in their application of the law. There is no reason to assume that any Judge whom Smith might elevate to the Supreme bench would be less high-minded in the performance of his duties.

In a discussion of prohibition and the Supreme Court last month at the Williamstor (Mass.) Institute of Politics, Norman Hapgood, a warm supporter of Gov. Smith and one of his biographers, said that Smith had already told a number of his friends that if elected President he would name Chief Justice Benjamin F. Cardozo of the New York Court of Appeals, to fill the first vacancy occurring on the United States Supreme bench. This tallies with information which has been given this writer by some of the Governor's friends.

Justice Cardozo Eminent Among Jurists of Nation.

Justice Cardozo is one of the eminent jurists of the country. He is a scholarly man and has taken a prominent part in the researches of the American Law Institute. He is regarded as a liberal of the Holmes and Brandeis type. Hapgood said that he did not know whether Justice Cardozo had ever expressed himself on the Volstead act.

"And Smith did not say," Hapgood added, "that he would wait till Justice Brandeis died."

This remark meant that Justice Cardozo, like Justice Brandeis, is a Jew, and that Gov. Smith would not be guided by questions of race, any more than prohibition, in making his appointments to the bench.

Hapgood also took note of the frequently recurring rumor that Justice Holmes is about to retire. In its latest form, this report has it that the veteran Justice is preparing to leave the bench in December. Hapgood said that he was able to deny this on the strength of a letter which he had just received from Mr. Holmes.

If Justice Holmes should retire soon after the inauguration of the next President, the inference will not unnaturally be drawn that he has waited in order that his successor might not be appointed by President Coolidge. Mr. Coolidge is a conservative. Justice Holmes—if one may dare to classify in a word a many-sided and brilliant man, a great philosopher as well as a great Judge—is a liberal. It may well be, as has been gossiped in Washington, that Justice Holmes does not wish his successor named by the present executive.

Situation Similar to That Faced by Justice White.

If that is true, the situation is like that in which the late Chief Justice White found himself under the administration of President Wilson. Chief Justice White had nothing against President Wilson, but he desired to end his career under a President who would appoint former President Taft as his successor.

It was Taft who, as President, elevated Justice White to the headship of the bench. In doing this Taft ignored ordinary political considerations. He was a Republican, White a Democrat; he was a Northern man, White a former Confederate soldier; he was a Protestant, White a Catholic. White was grateful. He told his associates that he hoped Taft, who had cherished a lifelong ambition to sit on the Supreme Bench, would be his successor.

While Wilson was President, Chief Justice White was told by his doctors that he would have to submit to a surgical operation. At his age, the operation was one that might prove fatal. White insisted upon and gained a postponement. President Harding was inaugurated in March, 1921. The next month Chief Justice White went under the knife. He died shortly thereafter and his place was filled by the appointment of Mr. Taft.

It so happens that the two men who have established a liberal tradition in the Court—Holmes and Brandeis—are the two oldest men. Unless it be Justice Stone, the newest member, who has shown a tendency to stand with them against the majority, there is none now on the Court to carry on this tradition after their passing. Will the next President seek to give representation to the school of legal thought represented by Holmes and Brandeis, or will he be guided by more conservative standards?

Ages of Justices Average Near Three Score and Ten

CHIEF JUSTICE TAFT is just under 71 years old. By the end of the next presidential term in 1933 he will be 75.

Here are the names of the Associate Justices and the ages to which they will have attained by March, 1933, with the names of the appointing Presidents in parentheses:

Oliver Wendell Holmes (Roosevelt), 92.
Willis Van Devanter (Roosevelt), just under 74.
James Clark McReynolds (Wilson), 71.
Louis Dembitz Brandeis (Wilson), 76.
George Sutherland (Harding), 71.
Pierce Butler (Harding), 67.
Edward Terry Sanford (Harding), 67.
Harlan F. Stone (Coolidge), 60.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles: that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

A Plea for Tolerance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

EDMUND BURKE said, "I do not know the method of drawing up an indictment against a whole people." But those who would defeat the great Governor of New York in his race for President have abrogated his statement. They have proceeded to draw an indictment against more than 18,000,000 Americans. Go back with history to guide you and see what members of this religious body did to give us this country and how not Protestant alone, but Catholics, too, came here to found a home with freedom to worship God.

In 1638 Lord Baltimore's first order to his colonists was that there should be no differences on account of religion. The records show that at first both Catholics and Protestants used the community church and a proclamation was issued in 1638 for the "suppression of disputes tending to opening of faction in religion." And so Protestants and Catholics dwelt together in harmony and religious liberty and obtained a home.

Throughout the long years of our American life, in wars, in panics or in peace, Catholic and Protestant alike have contributed in money, in life and blood, to the welfare and salvation of the United States. The allied armies in the World War were under the command of Gen. Foch, a Catholic. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, second in command of the American forces, is a Catholic and a son of Alabama. When our troops landed in France it was to the great spirit and memory of the noble Catholic patriot that our armies reported with the words: "Lafayette, we are here."

When Gen. Lafayette came to aid America, we did not fear his motives, and when the vast horde of Catholic boys were armed and under the command of Catholics, no one lost any sleep lest they take the country for the Pope. Our country cannot exist divided into Protestant and Catholic. We must be citizens of America, with our private views and beliefs left to our choice or discretion. Do we want taxation without representation and to bring back the very conditions from which we fought the Revolutionary war to free ourselves?

I have never heard a Catholic say, "I will not vote for a Protestant," nor ask what a candidate's religion was, in the 10 years in which I have worked in politics. My prayer: "From injustice, prejudice, malice and vicious slander, Good Lord deliver us." I am not a Catholic, but an Episcopalian and daughter of an Episcopal clergyman.

Another Prophecy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SEEING in your valuable paper that people from back East are telling us that our good old State of "Show Me" Missouri was going so and so politically, and thinking I had as much right to guess how the old State was going this fall, will say in my own personal opinion that Hoover and Caulfield will come to the city limits of St. Louis with 85,000 majority and will carry St. Louis by 25,000 majority.

St. Louis now has the chance of electing one of her good citizens for Governor. If they don't it is their own fault.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

KINDLY spare us the pain of even imagining that orchestras in motion picture houses will be replaced by these imperfect mechanical "talkies," as suggested in your editorial dealing with the musicians' problem.

Granted it is ridiculous for the musicians' union to make unfair demands, but let us hope that the musicians' art will not become as obsolete as blacksmiths. For the motion picture theater management to assume that sound movies will be satisfactory as a complete program surely must be a grave error.

Even first-class motion picture theaters may never have been hailed as educational or esthetic centers, so far as their cinema offerings were concerned, nor have I heard authentic commendation on the artistry of the interiors; but their orchestras were capable of true musical beauty and it is a very real loss, rather than advance, for the motion picture houses to resort to artificial sound production exclusively as their musical offerings.

I WOULD like to make a suggestion to the Republican women who are advocating hanging a photograph of Mr. Hoover in the kitchen. I fear a picture of the former Food Administrator might bring back too many unpleasant memories. And really a picture would not mean much anyway. I think a much better plan would be to see if Mr. Mellon would donate a piece of aluminum to the housewife, as he may not be called upon to make such a large contribution this time, and with all his return taxes he could well afford to do that for the cause of the Great Oil Party.

MRS. E. F.

HOW CANDIDATES SHOULD BE JUDGED.

Candidates for public office may safely ignore whispering campaigns of slander and innuendo. They cannot meet them, because when one is killed or scotched a hundred more spring up. Whispering campaigns have been conducted against every candidate that ever ran for the presidency. The wisest of them paid no attention whatsoever to whispered slanders, knowing that only opponents who want to believe them attach any importance to them.

There is a line of whispering campaigns in the present presidential contest with which the voters must deal. The voters must decide upon what ground their votes are to be determined—whether they are to be determined upon the ground of slander, innuendo and intolerance, or upon the ground of reason, actual facts and the public welfare.

If, for instance, Gov. Smith's record as an extraordinarily efficient, honest, progressive public official is to be overthrown in the public mind by whispered charges that he drinks to excess or is vulgar, or was born and bred in the slums of New York, of what avail will it ever be for a man to make a splendid record of public office and aspire to a higher office? Shall lies and slanderous, ungrounded charges prevail in the minds of the voters over the actual facts? If Gov. Smith is a drunkard, as some whispering slanderers assert, we might well ask with President Lincoln, when similar charges were brought against Gen. Grant: "What brand of whisky does he drink? I want to give it to my other generals." Of course every intelligent man knows that if Gov. Smith were guilty of the charges brought against him, he could never have made the splendid record he has made and won the respect and admiration of leading men of both parties in his State.

If the slurs of snobocracy concerning Gov. Smith's humble origin as the son of an Irish immigrant, born on the East Side of New York, are to govern the voters, then no man of humble origin can become President of the United States. None but scions of the first families, or at least those above the rank of honest working men need aspire to high office. Under this rule we would never have had Presidents like Jackson or Cleveland or Lincoln, who contributed inestimable service to the country. The snobocracy campaign against Lincoln was as vicious as that against Smith, yet the sound judgment of a majority of the voters accepted Lincoln as the man they wanted in the country's crisis, and their judgment was vindicated.

Shall Americans by their votes approve the rule that candidates for the high office of President shall be judged by the accident of birth, not by character, capacity and their records of achievement?

If the vicious underground campaign against Gov. Smith on account of his religion prevail, then we shall set up the religious test as the standard of eligibility for the office of President. We shall unloose the devil of intolerance to work the mischief among the free people of America he has always worked when loosed. We shall set up over the White House the legend that none but men approved by certain churches shall enter there. The dominant churches will be the masters of politics in America. Their approval will be necessary to election.

The religious test is being applied to some extent to Mr. Hoover, because he is a Quaker. The tenets of the Quaker church forbid taking part in any way in any war, defensive or other. Shall the voters apply this test to Mr. Hoover and debar Quakers from the presidency?

Are the American voters willing to accept the test of religion, with all its unmeasured consequences of evil? The rule cuts deep a thousand different ways.

What can he do about prohibition? is a question frequently asked by those who want to belittle Gov. Smith's outspoken declaration that he will try to find some way out of the present mess of Federal prohibition, which will restore the rights of the States and individual liberties. They want the biggest issue—the prohibition issue—between the two candidates ignored.

We believe that Mr. Hoover is sincere in his declaration that he is against the repeal or amendment of the eighteenth amendment, and believes in trying to work out the experiment of prohibition to success.

We believe that Gov. Smith is sincere in his declaration that he is in favor of changing the eighteenth amendment and leading the people to a better solution of the liquor question which will be in accord with our constitutional principles and will put an end to the menacing conditions of contempt for law, lawlessness, corruption and intemperance, which have arisen under prohibition.

As Mr. Hoover's election will nail down the lid of Federal prohibition stronger than ever, Gov. Smith's election would tend to loosen it. He would make a start towards the abandonment of Federal prohibition. His election would be a tremendous factor in the situation. It would change its whole aspect. It would break the tyrannical power of the Anti-Saloon League to dictate congressional action, and would free members of Congress from its yoke. With the backing of a popular vote against Federal prohibition, they would feel free to vote their convictions. If those who believe with Gov. Smith that something ought to be done to change the present intolerable conditions consent that nothing can be done, then nothing will ever be done.

The only way out is for voters to vote their convictions and start the reform or to abandon efforts toward reform.

All of this brings the voters to the simple rule of judging the candidates by their demonstrated characters, capacities and records as public servants, to judge their declarations of policy on their merits and to vote their convictions. Everything else but this sound ground of judgment and action at the polls should be ignored.

PROPAGANDA IN THE SCHOOLS.

It has become necessary for Baltimore's Superintendent of Schools to make this formal announcement, to wit: Baltimore school children will not be permitted to compete in the $5000 prize contest for an essay on the prohibition law, sponsored by W. C. Durant, automobile manufacturer and stock market plunger. The order was based on a rule which does not permit Baltimore school children to engage in any sort of contest, either written or oral, held by any agency outside the schools.

A wise rule in this day when propaganda artists, not content with all legitimate fields of operation, are undertaking to debauch our public school system with their schemes. We have just witnessed a major assault upon education by the public utilities. Their activities, as exposed by the Federal Trade Commission, illustrate the need for watchfulness. If Mr. Durant is permitted to enter the schools with his prize prohibition essay, the way will be open for other and even more flagrant tricks.

Unless we are careful the press agents may soon blindfold school children and give them the cigarette test, or match Mr. Durant's $5000 with another prize for the best essay on that schoolgirl complexion.

MR. KELLOGG REPRIMANDS MR. HOOVER

Secretary Kellogg has reproved Mr. Hoover for including in a recent speech the Kellogg peace pact among the accomplishments of the Republican administration. Two considerations obviously move Mr. Kellogg. First, and most natural, the father's concern for his child. To be sure, Mr. Kellogg modestly disclaims authorship of the peace treaty. Nevertheless, the instrument bears his name. It was he who expanded a French-American gesture from Briand into an international undertaking. And it was he who was acclaimed by his fellow conferees in both formal and informal tributes as the parent of the idea.

Public opinion, we believe, concurs in this estimate. Further, American public opinion realizes that this treaty is Mr. Kellogg's sole hope to be remembered historically as a Secretary of State. It, therefore, understands the anxiety he must feel for its fate if it is thrown into the hurly-burly of partisan politics. Mr. Hoover may have forgotten what happened to the covenant of the League of Nations and the World Court. Mr. Kellogg has not.

Second, as a practical politician Mr. Kellogg perceives the ineptitude of exploiting any concert with foreign countries as a party achievement. Many influential Republican papers regard the most tentative engagement of such character as contrary to public policy and as an "entangling alliance" subversive of our traditional neutrality, and jeopardizing the priceless prerogative of untrammeled judgment and freedom of national action. If some of those papers speak only chidingly of the Kellogg coup it is because they regard it as a harmless futility. But let it be magnified by the party's candidate into an accomplishment of consequence and force, as Mr. Hoover has attempted, and the solidarity of the journalistic support may crack.

So Mr. Kellogg has given Mr. Hoover a lesson in political behavior. Further, in the same speech which Mr. Kellogg has edited from the good ship Leviathan, Mr. Hoover erred on another count when he appropriated the Dawes plan to the Republican administration's credit. How explicitly the President disavowed the Dawes mission as an administration effort during its laborious pendency is familiar to every citizen who pretends at all to keep informed of events. That a member of the Cabinet should be unaware of Mr. Coolidge's sour disclaimer of the Dawes commission is simply incredible.

BOOTLEGGERS AND SCHOOLS.

Wisconsin is making prohibition perform pretty well. The bootleggers up there have contributed more than $2,500,000, by way of fines, to the school fund in the eight years they have been operating. They are not carrying the whole burden of maintaining the public school system but they have furnished a big part of the money.

Yet Wisconsin is opposed to prohibition. It prefers a legalized liquor traffic, with legal revenue, to outlawry and fines. The people of Wisconsin may be branded by some as nullificationists, by others as minions of the demon rum, but by many they will be regarded as honest folks, with the courage of their convictions, who would like to be law-abiding citizens.

An optimist is one who thinks that he can destroy his neighbors' political prejudice by appealing to his reason.

A DREADFUL APPOINTMENT.

Frederick Babcock, writing in the Nation, is the latest to denounce the appointment of Roy O. West as Secretary of the Interior, and to present evidence in point.

On July 27, 1926, Mr. West, testifying in the Frank L. Smith case before the Reed committee, admitted he had handled Insull money in the golden Illinois primaries. Mr. West, moreover, said he had been attorney for the Insull crowd since 1897 and that he had "always conferred with Mr. Insull as to investments, particularly concerning his own companies, and as to politics, during these 25 or more years."

Less than two years later West finds himself appointed by Mr. Coolidge to a position where, as Mr. Babcock says, "Mr. Insull's attorney, holding large blocks of stock in Mr. Insull's properties, now sits as judge and final authority in matters involving Mr. Insull's interest as opposed to the public interest."

Mr. Insull failed in his effort to send his man Friday, Frank L. Smith, to the United States Senate. But Mr. Coolidge has made it possible for him to realize what must have exceeded his rosiest expectation. Now Insull has his own attorney in the President's Cabinet, in charge of the one department of government in which Mr. Insull and the power crowd are most interested.

It is a worse appointment than the Charles Beecher Warren one which the Senate twice tore to shreds. It could not have been made if the Senate had been sitting, and could not survive except for the presidential prerogative of issuing recess appointments behind the Senate's back.

A beauty parlor for the insane has been established in a New Jersey institution, showing that obvious things are usually the last ones to which we get around.

THE MULTITUDINOUS TRAYNOR.

It was nothing short of a miracle, as we see it, in calm review, that the Cardinals won two games out of four with Pittsburg; but what we cannot understand is why Commissioner Landis permits the Pittsburg team to violate day after day a fundamental rule of the game which limits the number of players on each side to nine. The Pittsburg team has at least twelve players in the field every day. They have three third basemen, an associate catcher and an assistant left fielder. That's the kind of ball player that chap "Pie" Traynor is. This may be baseball, but, as we sometimes say, it's not cricket.

TWO OUT OF THREE.

This may be said for the Democrats: It is not often they succeed in electing a President, but when they do he is an outstanding one. In the opinion of Andre Siegfried, the Frenchman who wrote "America Comes of Age"—one of the most penetrating critiques of this country that has appeared in many a day—there have been three great Presidents since Lincoln. They are Cleveland, Roosevelt and Wilson. A Democratic batting average of .666.

"THE AL SMITHS! OH, MY DEAR!"

Leo Tolstoi: 1828-1928

An evaluation of the great Russian novelist, whose disappearance in 1910 evoked universal consternation, so famous and beloved he had become; a profound and simple man was the author of "Anna Karenina," "War and Peace" and "The Kreutzer Sonata."

From the Nation.

TOLSTOI'S fame in his closing days was best measured, perhaps, by the almost universal consternation aroused by the news of his disappearance from Yasnaya Polyana in November, 1910. The spectacle of this gigantic old man wandering alone over Russia in an endeavor to find God at last and to come to peace with himself could not fail to impress, even to terrify, any human being conscious of what had been going on in the world throughout the nineteenth century, and conscious, too, of what had gone on in the mind and soul of Count Tolstoi.

What went on there we are not so presumptuous as to say. No one knows precisely, even in this day when biographers are so ready to dissect the souls of famous men and publish the construction thereof. But that a tumult was there no one has ever doubted; and only mean minds refuse to respect that tumult, whatever they may conclude as to its justification or its significance. It was the agony of a man sick with civilization and exhausted by a lifelong attempt to reconcile the ideas of that civilization with the facts of his own nature. We now know, if we never guessed before, that Tolstoi was caught in such a struggle from the days of his youth when he first began to think and feel. The recently published "Diary" of his formative years reveals a young man beset with all the conflicts which he was to try to resolve during his many days of fame as author, land-owner, husband, and social philosopher. And the psychological portrait in Hugh I'Anson Fausset's book last spring, "Tolstoi: The Inner Drama," was convincing evidence of a certain major conflict always faced without ever being truly resolved.

Tolstoi was no player with paradoxes. He never said anything save through compulsion, and so he was not echoing the eighteenth-century doctrine of nature when he declared against all modern civilization. That is a pretty idea, and one which has furnished themes to thousands of poets, story-tellers, and sociologists; but it had no attractions for Tolstoi. Tolstoi, indeed, pulled back from his contemplation of nature—at least of the nature within himself—with the same horror and loathing that he came to feel for the morals of most men. When he renounced desire in the forms of sex and greed it was as if an element had turned against itself. That the renunciation was never wholly successful is a tribute to the power of nature, and perhaps it is the proof that Tolstoi was wrong. But that does not matter. Tolstoi wrong was vastly more impressive than other men right, just as the new Russia, right or wrong, is immeasurably more impressive than the comfortable nations which persist in calling her absurd. There is something about the Russian temperament which makes it go wrong—if it does go wrong—sublimely. Tolstoi's primitive Christianity is as different from our fundamentalism as Russia is from Rhode Island, or as any of his novels is from any of ours. Nowhere on earth today, says a distinguished American, is there an optimism so simple and so terrible as that of the new Russians'. And nowhere during the hundred years since Tolstoi's birth has there been an artist so powerfully compelling as he.

To say that Tolstoi is the greatest novelist of these hundred years is to say something which cannot be proved in view of the many gulfs between him and such figures as Balzac, Flaubert, Zola, Proust, Dickens, Thackeray, Hardy, Bennett, Hawthorne, James, Dreiser, Mann, Nexo, Hamsun, and, in his own country, Dostoevski. But it may be said that no writer of narrative in any age was ever more convincing than the author of "The Cossacks," "Anna Karenina," "War and Peace," "The Death of Ivan Ilyitch," "The Kreutzer Sonata," "Twenty-three Tales"—yes, even "Resurrection," propagandist as it was. And it may be said of him with reference to the other novelists just named that his range includes many of theirs; he hugged their styles and universes to his bosom along with his own. It is customary to contrast him with his greatest contemporary, Dostoevski, and there are those worshipers of Dostoevski who cannot see in Tolstoi anything at all of the command over mystery which certainly distinguishes the author of "The Brothers Karamazov." Yet it is blindness not to see what Tolstoi accomplishes in this direction. It means nothing to call him a realist, at least if one intends by that term to denote that he was confined to an account of externals—whatever externals may be. A great novelist is much less concerned than the rest of us with the distinction between outside and inside since he is better aware of both.

Maxim Gorki, visiting Tolstoi in his old age, noticed that his hands were like no others he had seen. They were creatures in themselves, with life and character and animal identity, so that when the aged prophet reached across the table to pick up a card it was as if, says Gorki, the hand felt the card to be alive—a bird there on the cloth waiting to be caught. That is the kind of artist he was. The world for him was living in every stick and hair, and his sense of this is communicated to the reader of his books by means much too subtle for analysis. He did not have to resort to devices for making his people or his situations real; they were real for him before he wrote a line, so that all he needed to do, apparently, was to proceed directly and very simply with the events at hand. So it would seem. There was art, of course, in his singling out the large ears of Alexei Alexandrovich for description in "Anna Karenina;" they are perhaps the chief means by which, as Mr. Galsworthy says elsewhere in this issue of The Nation, we are made to feel toward Anna's husband as she feels herself.

"What is Art?," which repudiated virtually all the art of the world including his own, is outrageous—and mainly true. Tolstoi's discussion of emotion and its communication through music and painting and story is one of the few profound contributions ever made to esthetic theory, whatever we may think of his specific judgments. But he was always profound, as he was always simple and—if you like—insane. There was never any man like him before, and we must not expect to have his like again.

IN FAINT PRAISE OF WATER

Though the land may be dry as a desert of salt, we have cheer in the drouth that we know,
We can always recall in the midst of our gloom all the parties we knew long ago;
There was beer, there was wine, there were whisky and cider in glorious days that are past,
As I think of the mixtures this throat of mine knew, I yet feel they were worthy to last;
There were drinks that we poured to the love of our heart, there were those that we drank with a friend,
There were those that we drank just because we were dry if our drinking were plagued for an end,
Yet I think this the best of the glorious drinks of a wonderful day that is dead—
We were given a drink of cold water by mother when we had been tucked in our bed.

With the ring of the curfew, our stay-up was over, that sound marked the end of our play,
We were properly tucked in an earlier bed in an earlier, happier day;
When our nighties were on and our prayers had been said, we were bidden to go fast asleep,
For the angels were guarding the bed where we lay, and the angels our souls safe would keep;
But with all due respect to the angels as guard, all our mouths were uncommonly dry,
And a drink of cold water for throats that were parched was our earliest, steadiest, cry;
As I lie on my bed when the evening is done with a splitting, dull, ache in my head,
How I long for a glass of cold water from mother, and some one to put me to bed!

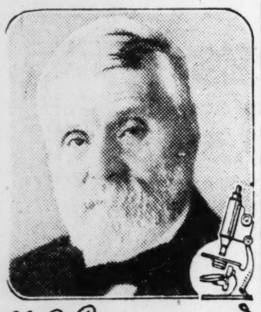
Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men



W. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 85

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or this coupon brings a bottle for free trial:

Asquith Thought Wilson Unwise To Go Abroad

Air"—brought back to my irreverent mind the remark of Lothair as he entered a hansom in St. James street: "This the gondola of London."

DECEMBER, 1917—"Oc" (my third son, Arthur) has been rather badly wounded reconnoitring outside Cambrai. He has a compound fracture of the left ankle, which may lead to the amputation of the foot. . . . It was bad luck as he had just got the command of his brigade and is now called General. As usual, he was behaving with both gallantry and initiative. (He received the D. S. O. with two bars.)

MARCH 16, 1918.—We dined last night at the French Embassy to meet Clemenceau, who is here for one of the inter-allied powwows, of which I gathered he does not think much. I had a long and quite interesting talk with him; no Frenchman has a better or quicker gift of expression.

NOV. 12, 1918.—We have been this morning to a Thansgiving Service at St. Paul's, attended by the King and Queen. I sat next Lady Lansdowne, and as one after another of our female royalties was led up to the nave I said to her:

"How long do you think this will last?"

"About 55 minutes," she replied, imagining that I was referring to the Service and not the Institution!

I see that they have got rid of eight Kings in Germany in the course of the last two or three days, and there are more to follow.

Considers Wilson Unwise for Journey to Europe.

Nov. 16, 1918—President Wilson is coming, after all, and is expected to arrive here about our polling date, Dec. 14. I confess he is one of the few people in the world that I want to see and talk to, not quite in the spirit of Monckton Milnes, of whom it was said that if Christ came again he would at once send him an invitation card for one of his breakfasts, but because I am really curious to judge for myself what manner of man he is. Gilbert Murray, who was here this morning and knows him, think that I should like him.

December, electioneering. I have put in here (Alderley) for a Sunday in this comfortable haven of refuge, but it is only a respite, for I go on tomorrow to Lincoln and Nottingham, and by Wednesday morning shall be back in Fife. Wherever I go I hear the same story—confusion, apathy, bewilderment. There never was such a nightmare of an election.

President Wilson was unwise enough at this time to slip down from his oracular tripod at Washington and to rub shoulders with European diplomacy at Paris and Versailles. I had an interesting talk with him as he passed through London — among other topics, on the difference between the position and authority of the Cabinet in the United States and here.

On one rather critical occasion during the Civil War Lincoln (he told me) summoned his Cabinet, which contained some exceptionally able and distinguished men, and asked them their opinion as to what ought to be done. They were unanimous in favor of a particular policy, and the President took the unusual course of calling for a division. When they had all voted "aye" he said curtly, "I think the noes have it."

Dr. Edward T. Devine Declares He Is Opposed to Sectarian Bigotry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt's recent appeal to Methodist clergymen to work for the election of Herbert Hoover was criticised yesterday by Dr. Edward T. Devine, dean of the American University Graduate School of Washington, D. C., a leading Methodist institution.

Dr. Devine, a Republican and a dry, wrote to Frank L. Polk at Democratic National Committee headquarters here, and said that because of the religious bigotry aimed at Gov. Smith on account of his religion he felt compelled to vote for the Governor.

"As a Methodist I am vehemently opposed to the sectarian bigotry in which some of my fellow Methodists, North and South, are indulging," he wrote. "They are, of course, doing what they profess to be afraid the Catholics may do."

"If Methodists respond to such appeals as that made recently by Mrs. Willebrandt, and if Mr. Hoover even tacitly connives in such appeals," he said, "then liberals in religion and in politics will no longer be able to feel at home either in Methodism or in Mr. Hoover's party.

"It is not from atheists or Roman Catholics that Methodism needs saving, but from Protestant political prohibitionists who are losing their perspective, their sense of decency, and their capacity for distinguishing between truth and falsehood."

"Corpse" Revives at Funeral.

By the Associated Press.

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Sept. 15.—Spadefuls of earth, dropped on him in his grave, promptly revived a Mussulman here recently and he rose in his shroud, frightening the mourners. The man had suffered a heart attack, was thought dead and with all religious rites was washed in the Moslem fashion, sewn in clean linen and carried to the cemetery.

DRASTIC EMERGENCY FURNITURE SALE!

Sacrificing ENTIRE Fall Stock—Discounts to 60%!

We are faced with the most serious emergency of our career—the disposal of a tremendous stock of new Fall furniture, rugs and stoves in the face of a great handicap—"the almost impassable condition of Franklin avenue." We bought the heaviest Fall stocks in anticipation of our greatest Fall business because of the new and better Franklin avenue. We were promised a completed street in time for Fall, but everyone knows what happened—an injunction was granted which stopped all work on Franklin avenue. We can't afford to carry over this stock, so we're going to sell every dollar's worth of it at merciless sacrifices. It's a little inconvenient to shop here now, but the bargains offered will pay for it many times over. Come Monday.

200 MEN REMOVED FROM DOUBLE TRACK PROJECT

The Public Service Company today withdrew 200 workmen from its $150,000 double track project on Franklin avenue from High street east to Third street because of a temporary injunction issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Hamilton restraining the company against further work on a loop at Third street and Franklin avenue.

Unless the matter is determined early in court, completion of the newly-widened Franklin avenue may have to be deferred until the construction season next year.

The street is now torn up with the relaying of tracks in much the same manner as the south side of Olive street was for a considerable time last year. Sam W. Greenland, vice president and general manager of the P. S. C., said no further work will be done until the court ...

RADIO ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH RADIO

PART FIVE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 16, 1928. PAGES 1—18

ST. LOUIS RADIO EXPOSITION WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Order Limits Power Used on National Wave To 25000 Watts

Chain Program Broadcasting in St. Louis May be Affected by New Allocation—Big Changes Due Nov. 11 if Radio Board's Decrees Hold Good.

With WCRW, Chicago, first to file suit to test the power of the Federal Radio Commission to put into effect its drastic re-allocation of wave length and station power, and with appeals from the order by KWK, St. Louis, which must share time with WIL, and by other stations in similar circumstances, it is impossible to forecast accurately what listeners will find on the air if the decree goes into effect Nov. 11 as announced.

The general outlook as to New York programs for this part of the country is uncertain. Apparently KSD, which always has been able to make an arrangement with KFUO satisfactory to the listening public that wants the finest features on the air, will be able to continue to broadcast NBC programs about as in the past. But if KWK and WIL share time, it is obvious that KWK will not be able to put as many New York programs on the air as now.

Situation in St. Louis.

Broadcasting of Columbia chain programs by KMOX may be curtailed because of a new order by the Radio Commission, that stations using 5000 watts power on national channels can broadcast identical programs for only one hour daily from 7 p. m. to midnight, unless the transmitters are separated by more than 300 miles, or are operated on the same wave by synchronization or other method, or receive special permission in cases of extraordinary events. KMOX and WMAQ, Chicago, both broadcast Columbia programs and are less than 300 miles apart. Several other stations are within the distance from KMOX.

Thomas P. Convey, director of KWK, is twice daily conducting a broadcast fight for support in his efforts to induce the Radio Commission to give the station its own wave length. William Ellsworth, director of WIL, says that there will be no appeal by that station. Convey has stated that KWK will demand a public hearing on the order that it share time with WIL.

"The management of WIL is pleased with promotion from 250 watts to 1000," Ellsworth said. "The Commission is working for the best interests of listeners; we realize that. So we will do our best to co-operate by accepting in a friendly spirit the decree that we and another St. Louis station share time."

A more strict policy regarding advertising in its programs is to be adopted by KMOX, now that it has been given the status of a national station, Director George Junkin has announced.

The arrangement whereby the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church was to broadcast its services over WIL, taking its own transmitter, WMAY, off the air, apparently must be canceled. As WMAY has been authorized to stay on the air, sharing a wave with KFWF, the Truth Center station, it probably will continue to broadcast.

Just how good reception of KSD-KFUO will be if the Nov. 11 allocation goes into effect is a question, for eight other stations, using 500 and 1000 watts power, have been assigned to the same channel. These other stations are: WGR, Buffalo, N. Y., 750 watts; WSYR, Syracuse, N. Y., 500; WKRC, Cincinnati, O., 500; KFBM, Beaumont, Tex., 1000; KFYR, Bismarck, N. D., 500; KFJM, Grand Forks, N. D., 500; KPRC, Houston, Tex., 1000, and KFDY, Brookins, S. D., 500.

Of the 560kc (536m) channel just below KSD, will be KVOO, Oklahoma City; KNOX, Nashville, Tenn., and nine other stations.

Limited to 25,000 Watts.

An interesting aspect of the situation is a new order by the commission, limiting power of stations on national channels to 25,000 watts, with provision for use of 50,000 for experimental purposes and of still higher power in the early hours after midnight. This will affect WEAF and WJZ, New York; WGY, Schenectady, N. Y., and KDKA, Pittsburg, Pa., all of which are 50,000-watt stations.

The question also arises, what will be done about such stations as WLW, Cincinnati, and WENR, the Ansull station at Chicago, which have built 50,000-watt transmitters, and WBAL, Baltimore, Md., whose transmitter can be pushed to 50,000 watts. All three must share one on separate national channels

Photos by Air Advance Faster Than Television

The present status of television and picture broadcasting in general is probably well summarized in the survey made by Edgar H. Felix, New York expert, for the Federal Radio Commission.

"Picture broadcasting differs from television." Felix reported to the commission. "No recording is attempted with television. The observer looks directly at light impulses controlled by the radio signal. A complete image is reconstructed by the effect of persistence of vision. The entire image must, therefore, be repeated each sixteenth of a second. This fundamental limitation accounts for the crudeness of television and the vast ether space required to send an image having more than mere curiosity value.

"The use of sensitive paper for collecting images, employed in picture reception, overcomes all of the problems of television and accounts for the fact that television is limited to laboratory demonstrations, conducted principally as a means for releasing blatant publicity, while picture broadcasting is spreading quietly from city to city and into the homes of countless experimenters.

"Several television or radio motion picture transmissions are in progress, or projected, on the broadcast band. This meritorious development work should be encouraged, but, when regulation is considered from the standpoint of the average listener, the respective stages of development of the two arts must be considered. It might be a service on the one hand to restrict the hours that television broadcasting is permitted and to permit unlimited broadcasting of still pictures. It is therefore worth while to consider the position of the two respective arts.

Comparison of Developments.

"Picture broadcasting is already developed in practical commercial form; television is still an experiment, offering an uncertain result. The parts for making picture receivers are on the market at reasonable cost, about that of a five or six tube home-built receiver. Any experimenter who was able to build his own set (more than 2,000,000 have done so in the United States in the last five years) can build up the simple, three-tube outfit which constitutes a picture recorder.

"The improvement in clarity and detail of still picture transmission is about two thousandfold and accounts for the fact that a useful picture may be transmitted by Rayfoto, while television is still limited to silhouettes of outlines, where the most that can be hoped for is a recognizable closeup of a single face.

Picture broadcasting may be received with an ordinary radio receiver. The listener requires no reequipment of a substantial nature. He has most of the devices necessary to receive picture broadcasting. For the reception of television of the limited 24-line type, special studio amplifiers must be built which will respond readily to the rapid frequency changes involved. If more than 24-line pictures are attempted the listener must purchase a new shortwave receiver and the Federal Radio Commission must establish a television band of considerable magnitude on short waves.

Clear Television Limited.

"Television transmissions are limited as to the subjects which may be transmitted by two factors. In the case of television a beam of light of sufficient intensity to cause a current change in the output of one or more photoelectric

Broadcasts for Both Parties on Schedule Over Local Stations

KSD to Put Speech by Hoover on Air Tomorrow Night and by Smith Tuesday and Thursday Evenings — Other Addresses at Regular Hours.

Political broadcasts in behalf of the Republican and Democratic parties on a nation-wide scale over NBC chains are scheduled over both KSD and KWK. The Republican broadcasts began yesterday. The Democratic programs commence tomorrow.

Republican programs are announced for three nights and one morning a week. Democratic programs are to be broadcast two nights and two mornings weekly.

The regular schedules are to be changed tomorrow evening, when Herbert Hoover will make a campaign speech as Republican Presidential nominee over KSD between 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock, and again Tuesday and Thursday nights when speeches by Gov. Alfred Smith, the Democratic nominess, will be broadcast over KSD.

KSD will be able to broadcast the Smith speeches—at 9 o'clock Tuesday night and at 9:30 Thursday night—through the courtesy of KFUO.

On Tuesday night KFUO will broadcast from 8 to 9 o'clock instead of 9 to 10. On Thursday night, KFUO will go on the air when Gov. Smith ends his speech, about 9:30 o'clock.

The Socialists have arranged for at least two broadcasts over NBC chains during the campaign, once in the East and once through the Pacific Coast network.

The schedule for the two St. Louis stations is announced as follows:

REPUBLICANS.

Mondays, 8:30 to 9 a. m. St. Louis time, KWK; 7 to 7:30 p. m. on KSD.

Thursdays, 7 to 7:30 p. m. on KSD.

Saturdays, 7 to 7:30 p. m. on KWK.

DEMOCRATS

Mondays, 8:30 to 9:30 in the forenoon, on KWK.

Wednesdays, 9:30 to 10 in the forenoon on KSD, and 8:30 to 9 p. m. on KSD.

Fridays, 8:30 to 9 p. m. on KWK.

Other broadcasts will be arranged from time to time by the national committee. It is expected that these will include some or all of Gov. Smith's speeches in the Middle West. Most of the morning broadcasts are scheduled from the Chicago studios of the National Broadcasting Co.

Plans Made to Sell 2,500,000 Sets This Year

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Radio as a business is looking forward to one of the most active seasons since it became an important unit in the manufacturing industry.

Statistical experts estimate that 2,500,000 new receivers will be placed in American homes before the 1928-1929 season gives way to another year. They say that a big share of this business will consist of replacements.

Both Bond P. Geddes, executive vice president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association, and Harold J. Wrape of St. Louis, president of the Federated Radio Trades Association, say that all indications point to a considerable increase in the volume of business over last year.

"I believe that the season now opening," said Geddes, "will see more than 2,500,000 new receivers in operation. Manufacturers all over the country are unusually busy, and reports to them indicate that the demand is the greatest in several years."

Reports from all important centers," Wrape said, "point to a great radio year. It is expected to surpass all others in the number of receivers installed."

Most of the new receiver models are desgned for alternating current tubes, operating direct from the house current. New direct current tube models are few, but nearly every manufacturer has at least one.

The greatest advance of the year seems to have been in speakers. The electro-dynamic type has been improved until tone quality is limited largely by the ability of the receiver to pass the voice frequen-

WKY Back on The Air Oct. 1.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 15.—Completely rejuvenated, station WKY, which was the first in the southwest, will go back on the air Oct. 1, under the auspices of the Daily Oklahoman and the Oklahoma City Times.

Negotiations are under way for a connection with the National Broadcasting Co. for a place in the national hookups. One of the services of WKY will be an hourly market report for farmers.

WAVES AND POWER ASSIGNMENTS TO LEADING RADIO STATIONS AFTER NOV. 11

IF the new station allocation by the Federal Radio Commission goes into effect Nov. 11 as ordered, the wave lengths and power of transmitters on exclusive national wave lengths, and of other stations most likely to be turned in easily by listeners in this part of the Middle West, will be as printed below. National wave lengths, of which there are 40, are marked with stars. The power, in watts, is printed after the name of each station. In cases where more than one station is on a national channel, the stations must share time, with a few exceptions where synchronization will be attempted. Where no stations are printed with a channel the waves will be shared by transmitters in such a way that it is not possible accurately to figure the arrangement. Assignments to waves below 1200 kilocycles (249 meters) are not given. KWK and WIL St. Louis, are required to share the 1350 kilocycle (222-meter) wave. The list follows:

Radio Season Of Grand Opera Begins Monday

The most elaborate schedule of grand operas yet attempted by radio is disclosed in the National Broadcasting Company's announcement of musical dramas to be produced by the National Grand Opera Company, beginning Sept. 17.

The radio opera season will open with an interpretive arrangement of Verdi's "Aida" never before heard over the air, and specially made for the National Grand Opera Company. All the operas of the new season will be given in more inclusive form, requiring an hour and a half for production. They will be broadcast through WEAF and other stations each Monday night from 8:30 to 10 o'clock.

A greater variety of artists will sing the leading dramatic roles under the direction of Cesare Sodero. The orchestra will be larger. Sodero will conduct, except when composers lead special performances of their own works.

An American opera will be given on the last Monday of every month, starting with Victor Herbert's "Natoma" on Oct. 29. NBC officials believe they are enabling those who bring the world's best music right into the homes of the American public to encourage a native school of American opera.

Three noted announcers, a famous tenor and artists and entertainers from St. Louis stations, are to broadcast to the crowds at the radio show and to the listening public this week from a "crystal studio" in the Coliseum.

The announcers from New York who are to attend the show are Alois Havrilla, who has become one of the most popular of the National Broadcasting Co. staff; Graham McNamee, probably the best known of announcers, and Phillips Carlin, also of the NBC. All three are heard frequently in programs broadcast through KSD.

Havrilla is to arrive tomorrow and act as guest announcer that day, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is probable, also, that he will be featured as vocal soloist in at least one program. McNamee is to be announcer and soloist Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoon and evening. He has proved his right to honors as a scloist by his work in two recent Sunday night chain concerts. On Saturday, he and Carlin are to broadcast their "radio twins" act from the show.

The famous tenor who is to be heard at the show is Allen McQuhae, who has been starred at two previous St. Louis radio shows. He is scheduled to broadcast from the "crystal studio" Tuesday evening over WIL.

Artists and entertainers from KMOX, KWK and WIL are to be heard from the "crystal studio" The show programs will begin at 2:30 o'clock each afternoon and continue until 11:30 p. m.

Tuesday night, the show crowds will hear a rebroadcast of the $100,000 program from the annual radio industries banquet in New York. Mme. Schumann-Heink, and John Thomas, famous baritone; "The Two Black Crows;" Fanny Brice; Paul Whiteman and Vincent Lopez are among those to be featured.

KWK will take the air direct from the show Wednesday with a bill that will carry through from 2:30 until the show closes for the night. The Los Angeles Trio, composed of Bud Vandover, tenor; Ralph Mesker, baritone and guitarist, and Gordon Vandover, second tenor, are perhaps the best known on the KWK bill. In addition, an ensemble directed by William E. Hugo; Elaine Russell and Lou Sher, and others are to be featured by KWK.

Jack Coleman, staff tenor, will be featured in a show program which WIL is to broadcast Thursday and Friday nights. Other WIL artists and entertainers who will be heard at the show are Joseph Carione and Joseph Gustat, trumpeters; Alice McDonald 'blues' singer; Louise Evans, contralto; William Streuber, baritone, and Roland Seiger, accordionist.

KSD also will broadcast from the show in the afternoon.

KMOX artists who will be heard at the show during the week include William LeMasters, baritone; Alice Maslin, pianist; Alice McGowan and Meredith Beckman.

Tomorrow and Tuesday evenings KMOX will broadcast the St. Louis district competitions in the National Singing Audition. The girls' competition will be held in the "crystal studio" from 9 to 10 o'clock tomorrow night. The boys' competition will be broadcast from 6 to 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. For the benefit of the show crowds, the boys' contest will be held again in the Coliseum between 7:30 and 8:30.

The St. Louis city preliminary audition contest, which was held at the Congress Hotel a week ago Thursday, brought out about 70 contestants, who sang in turn by numbers and were judged by a jury made up of Miss Elizabeth Cueny, Richard Spamer, Eugene Hahnel, Dave Silverman and Leonid Leonardi. Because of the illness of Mrs. Edith Goodwin, local chairman, Mrs. Frederic Nussbaum, State chairman of the auditions, was in charge of arrangements for the contest. Winners are eligible to the St. Louis district competition at the radio show. Winners in the show contest will be eligible for the State competition, which will be broadcast over KMOX, some weeks later.

Winners in the St. Louis city preliminary were:

Show at Coliseum Continues All Week

Exhibits on Display Are Valued at Million Dollars — Television and Photo-Radio Demonstrations—Newest in Receivers, Speakers on View.

Exhibits valued at fully a million dollars are to be on view when the fourth annual Southwest National Radio Exposition opens tomorrow in the Coliseum, to continue until late Saturday night. Indications are that the show will surpass in variety of displays, and interest to the public, any exhibition of the kind yet held in St. Louis.

Leading radio manufacturers of the country, and wholesalers throughout the St. Louis trade territory, have co-operated with the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, both in arranging for comprehensive exhibits of the newest in radio and also in an extensive entertainment program for every afternoon and evening at the show.

The past few months have seen a relatively tremendous advance in realism of reproduction through improvements in receivers and speakers, perfection of light socket operation and better matching of speakers to the audio amplification systems of sets. It is this advance that the St. Louis radio show is planned especially to make plain to the public.

Furniture Trends.

Almost as pronounced has been the progress in design and artistic finish of radio furniture. Designers have gone back to virtually every stage of civilization of which any artistic evidences remain, and have drawn upon the modernists for inspiration, with the result that table models and consoles really worthy to occupy a place in any home have been evolved. This is true whether in respect to the furniture built by radio factories themselves or to cabinets turned out by furniture firms which are finding that the radio industry is absorbing an increasingly large proportion of their product. A number of furniture designers are busy creating cabinets suited to the receivers of particular radio plants.

Chinese, Egyptian and Assyrian and ancient Hindoo art have inspired more than one attractive radio console. While the number of models designed after the American Colonial, Tudor, Gothic, Italian Renaissance and old Spanish is legion. Very attractive, too, are the metal cabinets done in vivid colors. There is somewhat of a tendency, in some of the more elaborate models, to build radio furniture that serves both to house a receiver and to be a reasonably capacious bookcase.

AC sets, all-electric sets, dynamic speakers, magnetic reproducers, airplane cloth reproducers, air-column speakers wound upon themselves in serpentine coils till one with a gaping mouth 10 feet long and a yard across, can be packed away in the bottom of a console will be seen in bewildering variety.

All Space Is Sold.

The displays will emphasize also a fact that has been becoming increasingly apparent of late—that the radio industry has settled down to a pretty definite agreement as to what should be, and what should not be, produced in the form of receiver and reproducer. The freakish in circuits or in furniture is no longer seen.

It is planned to have a demonstration of the stage to which television, admittedly in the experimental stages, has advanced. There will be a demonstration of photo-radio, a method of transmitting pictures through the air which is expected to develop many practical uses.

Willam E. Mackie, executive secretary of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association and manager of the show, reports that all exhibition space has been sold.

The Coliseum has been decorated in blue and gray, and a battery of speakers has been erected to make the broadcast entertainment audible in every part of the building.

Dealers will be able to get into the show at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. The exposition will be opened to the public at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, though the formal opening will not take place until 7:30 in the evening when Mayor Miller is to make an address. He will be introduced by Julian E. Sampson, president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association.

First Radio Sets Built in America Seen in St. Louis

An exhibit designed to show the progress of radio, from the "forest of knobs" set of the early day to the single control, powerful receivers and from the old crystal and electrolytic detectors to the power and superpower tube of today, is on view this week at the Aeolian Company of Missouri, 1004 Olive street.

The exhibit includes the Marconi trans-oceanic receptive system of 1901; the first American-built commercial and navy type receivers; the first receivers sold to the general public and the new Radiolas.

It was but a few years ago that Marconi conceived the idea of radio. His invention was almost immediately taken up by navigators, who appreciated its value as a means of communication over ocean wastes. While wireless telegraphy was the forerunner of what we today know as radio, history is replete with demonstrations of its usefulness to the mariner. Telegraphy was highly developed before the radio that we know reached anywhere near the perfection which it has attained today, yet the one leads unmistakably into the other. While wireless telegraphy as used for maritime communication consisted chiefly of a series of dots and dashes, it was but a question of time until broadcasting by means of radiotrons was to reach its present state of perfection.

The Aeolian Co. display and all apparatus will be in charge of experts from the Educational Department of the Radio Corporation of America.

As the basic patents covering radio reception and broadcasting were originally granted to Marconi and subsequently purchased by the Radio Corporation of America, radio apparatus of the present embodies the principles of the original Marconi radio and developments worked out by the Radio Corporation of America in co-operation with General Electric and Westinghouse.

The original model of the RCA 104 speaker occupied a space nearly 100 feet in length and three to four feet wide. This model worked with amazing clarity and volume. But, because of the space it required, it was, of course, impractical for public use. It took several years of work and study by the world's foremost electrical engineers to reduce the size of this instrument to a point where it could be installed in a small, artistic cabinet. When this was accomplished, the 104 speaker was presented to the public.

Voltage Regulators.

Voltage regulators that protect tubes from burning out are equipped with two prongs that fit into the light socket and the other side is provided with the two contacts into which the line from the receiver is plugged. If the resistor gets too hot it is an indication that the resistance is too small and a larger size should be substituted.

Krauss Is Named As Distributer of Kellogg Receivers

The Krauss Sales Corp., 2224 Olive street, has been appointed distributer of Kellogg radio receivers in this territory. The firm is headed by George A. Krauss, who for 11 years was one of the best known automobile distributers in the St. Louis district. His sales manager is E. A. Davenport. At present Krauss is devoting all his attention to radio.

The new Kellogg receivers, which come in 5-tube and 7-tube types, have a number of notable special features. One is that they use only AC tubes, even the power tubes being of a special Kellogg-made AC type.

Another feature peculiar to these sets is their method of inductive tuning. Certain marked advantages are claimed for this way of tuning—in selectivity and tone quality. Shielding is unusually complete.

Kellogg receivers always have been noted for quality of furniture, and the new models are even more artistically designed than in the past. They come in table models, consolettes and full consoles.

The larger console models have phonograph jacks and built-in air column speakers, while the smaller consoles have magnetic cone speakers. Output transformers, to [illegible]ect the speaker, are built [illegible] all models.

The Kellogg sets are built complete in the Kellogg plant. The Kellogg Co. has been making electrical instruments for 30 years.

Radio Service by Airplane Tried

Delivering Radiolas by airplane in a contest is a new feature used by the Commercial Electrical Supply Co., of St. Louis, R C A distributer. A specially chartered plane, carrying besides the pilot, John H. Roos Jr., manager of the firm's radio department, and his service man, Henry Krechel Jr., is to travel 1200 miles covering cities in the St. Louis trade territory.

NEW FEATURE ON KWK NEXT TUESDAY NIGHT

"Embarrassing Moments in History" will be featured in "The Three-in-One Theater," a new series of programs which will broadcast through KWK beginning next Tuesday night at 7 o'clock. The series will be sponsored by the Three-in-One Oil Co.

The burlesque accounts of what really happened to certain dignified personages of historical note will include such skit as "William Tell and the Applesauce," a feature of the first program; "The Battle of Newton Falls for the Law of Gravitation," and "Mrs. Paul Revere Walks Home From a Ride." Experienced Broadway and radio comedians will play the leading roles in these skits.

Eleanor Shaler, formerly of the "Garrick Gaieties," will be leading lady of "The Three-in-One Theater." Miss Shaler also has appeared in "The Manhatters" and at "The County Fair." She has just returned from "Les Ambassadeurs" in Paris. Among other things she will be heard in "Sad Songs of the Gay Nineties," which she featured in vaudeville. She makes her radio debut in this series.

The master of ceremonies will be James Norris, also formerly of the "Garrick Gaieties" and other musical shows. Norris is known to B. C. Listeners for his work as Richard Burke in "El Tango Romantico."

Another new series of N. B. C. programs, "The Forecast School of Cookery," will be broadcast through KWK three mornings a week, beginning Tuesday, Oct. 2.

Graham McNamee will announce the first program.

Television Helps Parts Makers.

With television beginning to attract the attention of the amateur experimenters, parts manufacturers report a renewed interest in their lines. One firm says that it is receiving 150 to 200 letters a day inquiring as to progress in sight radio. Most of them come from young experimenters.

Otherwise the parts business has settled down largely to replacements and to supplying demands of custom set builders, whose number continues to show a gradual increase. The fan who builds his own is not as important a factor in the market as heretofore, as he can go to his private stock for most of the material when he desires to try out a new circuit. However, interest in new kits is keeping pace with the products offered.

ST. LOUIS RADIO EXPOSITION WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Other officers of the association are: Walter H. Dyer, first vice president; A. C. Brandt, second vice president; S. B. Singer, secretary; W. A. Ward, treasurer; Roy W. Haege, R. A. Kissel, Franklin McDermott, Fred Wiebe, N. E. Hill and E. A. Reutner.

The Show Committee includes: J. E. Sampson, chairman; W. H. Dyer, Hall Arrangements; A. C. Brandt, Advertising and Publicity; S. B. Singer, Broadcasting, and R. W. Haege, Entertainment.

At the receiving point a special receiver picks up the signals, amplifies them and finally passes them on to a "nervous fountain pen." This pen records the "dot by dot" signals sent to it. Thus each light point or dark point on the distant negative is reproduced in just the same shade on a paper roll of the receiver. In this way, the entire picture is finally etched out, and appears somewhat as a "halftone" of the original image.

Synchronizing Is Problem.

The sending of the signals is easy, and the reception and the printing are everyday things. The hard part about it all is synchronizing, that making sure that the receiving pen jabs down a dot at just the same point of the paper as the spot of light on the distant negative which sent out the signal, telling its intensity. It is like running two trains on parallel tracks with the engineers blindfolded, but with radio signals interchanged, and then expecting the two trains to keep exactly side by side, to the fraction of an inch, for hours at a time. Yet, difficult though it sounds, just such exactness of synchronism has been worked out and is maintained every day on the RCA commercial circuits over the Atlantic and Pacific.

This photoradio system was perfected by Capt. R. H. Ranger who was an officer in the Signal Corps, United States Army, during the World War. He worked for a long time on the development of this system, at first with only fair success, but at last he eliminated all faults, so that the system is a commercial success. So exact has it proven to be that before long all messages will be sent by this method, as "facsimiles" of the originally written sheets, instead of in continental code, letter by letter, as is the method today, scientists say.

In the demonstration to be given at the Coliseum both transmitter and receiver are shown, so that the visitor on one side of the booth may see how a picture would be transmitted at, say, London, and then by stepping to the other end see the picture being received as it would be in New York or St. Louis.

Distributer of Bush and Lane Sets Appointed

The A. C. Radio Co., Inc., 4507 Delmar boulevard, has been appointed distributer of Bush and Lane radio receivers for Southern Illinois and Eastern Missouri. These receivers are manufactured by the Bush & Lane Piano Co., Holland, Mich., which has been in the piano making business for 171 years and for seven years has made radio sets.

Officers of the A. C. Radio Co., Inc., are George E. Kaiser, president; J. R. Smart, vice president. John C. McNally is district representative of the Bush & Lane Co.

The Bush & Lane line includes a complete line of AC receivers, all with 8 tubes, and both magnetic and dynamic speakers.

WCCO to Have Advisory Body

The first of the broadcasting stations to take up Commissioner Lafount's proposal that a voluntary board of 10 public spirited citizens should be set up to advise with each tsation on its program is WCCO, Minneapolis.

This station is managed by Henry Bellows, former member of the Federal Radio Commission, who wired Lafount that he had asked United States Senator Shipstead of Minnesota to become the first member of the board and proposed to draw the others from public officials of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa.

Automatic Tuning On New Zeniths

A tremendous amount of calculating went into the designing of the new Zenith sets that featere automatic tuning whereby a receiver owner by pressing a button can tune in any one of a list of selected stations. Great exactitude of designing and manufacture was essential.

One of the problems was variation of characteristics of serials with which the sets would be used. This was solved finally by devising means by which the antenna capacity was prevented from affecting the tuning circuits.

The automatic Zenith are so simple in operation that a child can work them. The automatic feature in no way interferes with tuning for any stations not on the selected list.

In setting the automatic buttons the dial can be set for a given station and then the button can be locked with the set-screw, so that by merely pushing down the button attached to the cam lever the same station can be tuned in at any time in the future. By this method the owner can regulate the automatic tuning for a number of stations that he prefers to listen to, and then he can push the proper buttons and there the station is fully tuned in.

When he wants to tune in another station he presses down another button. He can change them at will for other stations as he desires, so that the set will never become obsolete on account of changes in wavelengths.

Fada receivers are put through 419 separate tests at the factory, to insure accuracy of assembly and performance, it is revealed by Lewis M. Clement, chief engineer for Fada Radio.

Before a Fada receiver is marked ready for shipment, there are 262 tests before assembly, 154 tests after assembly of the chassis, and 3 final tests, including an air test.

"These 419 tests do not include visual inspections such as examination of material by the eye to determine its general fitness," Clement said. "Everyone of these tests has a definite purpose in itself. In addition, the sum total of them is to make certain that when the set reaches the merchant or the individual purchaser it shall have in it everything that the original design called for. In radio, this of course means much more than the material and parts. Into the best types of radio receivers must be built the essentials of natural tone reproduction, hair line selectivity, distance ability and rugged reliability or the famous four of radio.

"As much as the production department indeed, far more—the inspection division in a modern radio plant must see to it that good radio must duplicate good radio design down to the smallest possible detail. The engineers fix the design. It is the job of the inspection division to assure quality control at every step, however small."

C-327 Tubes Widely Used.

One of the most noticeable trends in factory-built and custom-built receivers is the widespread use of C-327 tubes throughout with the exception of the last audio stage.

Crosley Still Is Hoping WLW Can Use Its New 50,000-Watt Transmitter

Most Powerful Station in World, Capable of Shooting as High as 200,000 Watts Into Antenna on Loud Tones, Ordered to Share Time With WSAI and Limit Power Used to Only 5,000 Watts.

One of the interesting problems that has arisen with publication of the new allocation of wave lengths and power is the status of WLW, Cincinnati, which is just completing a 50,000-watt transmitter, yet is ordered to share time with WSAI and use only 5000 watts.

Powel Crosley Jr., president of the Crosley Radio Corporation which owns and operates both WLW and WSAI, made this comment on the commission's order:

"We have no thought of abandoning WSAI, which is what such a plan would mean. It would be ridiculous to think of operating two stations on one wavelength since the activities of each station now call for full schedule.

"Our desire is to have an exclusive national channel for WLW, which is being built to be able to put 50,000 watts into the antenna.

"We have always considered that WSAI would be continued as a regional station. I feel it would be a tremendous loss to this region to have WSAI eliminated. If the station were done away with, the splendid programs it has been broadcasting from New York would not be available to this region.

New Station Costs $250,000.

"However, in our action in regard to the two stations, we shall be inclined to be governed by the feelings of the people in this section of the country.

"Cincinnati, having pioneered in radio, and located as close as it is to the center of population of the United States, most certainly should be recognized as a point for a national station and for one from which regional programs as well should be distributed."

Desiring to do his part toward making the ownership of receivers profitable for listeners, Crosley has spent $250,000 on building a transmitter for WLW that is an improved duplicate of the 50,000-watt experimental station of the Bell Telephone laboratories at Whippany, N. J. The WLW transmitter is probably the most powerful in the world. Engineers who designed it say that its 50,000-watt rating is merely conventional and falls short of indicating its actual performance possibilities in delivering good signals over a wide area. In fact, the maximum power that may be delivered on loud tones may be keyed up to a maximum of 200,000 watts.

The new station is well nigh completed at Mason, O., near Cincinnati. Believing that WLW's record, and his own willingness to go to any expense and pains to make it an outstanding independent station, Crosley went ahead in the hope that the Radio Commission would meet his desires. Should he win permission to use 50,000 watts on the channel assigned to WLW and WSAI, he will be prepared to shoot full power the minute the new allocations go into effect.

100 Per Cent Modulation.

"Our idea in building a station with 50 kilowatt power, the most powerful station in the world, according to the engineers who understand and appreciate its 100 per cent modulation, is that we may be able to serve the listening public better, and that more listeners may be able to hear the programs we originate in Cincinnati." Crosley said as he broke ground for the new station, June 25.

By reason of its capacity for 100 per cent modulation, this transmitter actually will deliver more useful signal energy than a nominal 100,000 watter capable of modulation to the degree previously customary.

The additional power secured in 100 per cent modulation is [illegible] to give greater range, better quality of reception and more effective transmission. Moreover, there will be less interference from static and other noises.

Super Super-Power.

Every unit of the new equipment represents a magnification of broadcast apparatus hitherto considered super-powered. The towers will be 300 feet high, which is 50 feet higher than the present towers of WLW. They are spaced 500 feet apart. In accordance with Government regulations for marking of civic and military airways the towers have been painted with bands of white, chrome yellow and black for daytime visibility.

They also are being [illegible] airplane beacons to guide aviators planes on the air line between Cincinnati and Columbus. Each tower will have 200 watt lamps at the tip and the third level. The lights will blink 50 times a minute in alternating cycles so that three of the four at all times will be lighted. The red globe at the top of each tower will contain three lamps, all controlled by clocks over switches in the operating room of WLW to obviate possibility of failure at night.

Under the center of the antenna of the new station is the coupling house for the transmitter. Special [illegible] to keep the transmitter from radiating on harmonics (1400, 2100 and 2800 kc.) of its established frequency of 700 kilocycles (428 meters). Such harmonics are troublesome even with 5000 watt sets. In so powerful a broadcaster as the new WLW, uncontrolled harmonics would be unbearable.

Thirty Miles of Ground Wire.

The coupling house is at the junction of four heavy [illegible] copper ground busses to which are soldered 30 miles of ground wire buried 10 inches deep in furrows two feet apart over the tract on which the station stands. A transmission line carries the modulated high frequency electric current from the transmitter to the coupling house, from which it is fed to the antenna. The current is insulated from the earth until it reaches the coupling house, where it is connected to the antenna and ground and is allowed to radiate. A copper roof shields the building from the intense electrical field under the transmitter.

An harmonic filter, built into the transmitter, will help to keep WLW radiating on its assigned frequency without harmonics.

Piezo crystals, in duplicate, in thermo-controlled compartments which the temperature varies less than a tenth of a degree, assure that the station will not vary from its assigned frequency by more than a thousandth of one per cent.

More than 30 main units of apparatus make up the transmitter which was shipped in three carloads. The packing lumber built the coupling house. All rotating machinery is installed in duplicate for reliability.

To insure complete protection from the tremendous power of the set, each unit is inclosed in electrically interlocked cages. The opening of any door in the transmitter itself, automatically shuts down the transmitter.

Transformers Weigh Five Tons.

On the first floor of the coupling building is installed the control equipment, including amplifying and tuning units, rectifiers, [illegible] cial antenna and glass-enclosed booth for the operator. In the basement, directly under the amplifying unit, are two five-ton transformers.

At the west end of the building under the amplifying and [illegible] units, is an extensive cooling system to dissipate the heat generated in the vacuum tubes around which water continually is circulated through radiators.

Five large cooling fans are necessary to carry off the [illegible] heat. Louvers built into the walls to permit air to flow from outdoors to the fans. In summer, the heat from the apparatus will be carried up through the roof of the building to a stack. In winter, the hot air will be diverted into the building to help heat it.

A room in the new building has been reserved for the Crosley short-wave transmitter, 8XAL, by which WLW programs are broadcast to listeners all over the world.

Crosley has not announced a date for dedication of the station WLW, but plans to make a special occasion of national moment.

The remarkable tonal beauty of Day-Fan Radio is now offered in new models which are equally delightful in appearance. A set thoroughly modern in operation direct from house current, may be had in your choice of three distinguished cabinet models, of fine American walnut.

This set is new—in design, in simplicity, in satisfactory performance. But again, it is built to a standard for musical instruments that is old—that does not change—excellence of tone. In years to come the quality of Day-Fan musical reproduction will be appreciated as today.

The Day-Fan 8-tube A. C. receiver is more selective; it is sensitive to remote stations; it delivers splendid volume without distortion. Four stages of radio frequency, and push-pull amplification—two power tubes in combination instead of one—are mainly responsible.

Other important features: Single dial, illuminated. Auxiliary volume control. Power supply built-in part of set. Complete shielding. Connection for plugging in phonograph pick-up. Protection against voltage variation.

Table model, $150, without tubes and speaker. Consolette (table model with speaker table) $205.00 without tubes. Console $295 without tubes.

Schweig-Engel Adds Two Stores

The Schweig-Engel Corporation has just expanded and acquired two more stores. Last spring it opened a store at 5911 Delmar avenue, in Wellston, in addition to its headquarters store at 4929 Delmar boulevard.

Now it has taken over the three-story building at 5247 Delmar, which will be used for headquarters offices, sales and display, service and repair departments. All deliveries will be made from the building. All space at 4929 Delmar formerly devoted to offices will be turned into extra display rooms.

Another store has been opened at 3612 South Grand boulevard, in the busy Grand-Gravois district.

The firm was the first Radiola dealer in St. Louis. Its business has been built largely on service to radio users.

Philco to Build 2000 Sets and Speakers Daily

A daily output of 2000 of the new Philco receivers and speakers seems assured by early October, the Philadelphia Storage Battery Co. reports. Philco sets now available, all followng the latest furniture trends, are Spanish brown, Labrador gray, Mandarin red and Nile green. In addition, there is a de luxe electric phonograph radio, in highboy and lowboy style, and a console grand speaker on which the colored sets can be placed.

The new Philco set is powered by four 226 tubes, one 227 tube, one 171 tube and one 280 rectifier tube. It is tuned for reception through the entire broadcast band, from 500 to 1500 kilocycles, carrying all low wave length stations in this range, also. It has four large condensers with 25 plates each, all in aluminum-shielded cabinets, with all parts cadmium plated to prevent rust. Selectivity, good range and fine tone are assured by a new circuit called "neutrodyne plus" which gives more power with fewer tubes.

The set needs no aerial for local and reasonably distant stations, and is exceptionally clear from AC hum.

Unusual Console For Bosch Radio

An innovation is an unusual console designed for Bosch radio. This console has sliding front panels instead of swinging doors. They disappear into the sides of the console, leaving an artistic loud-speaker grill and attractive radio set controls ready for operation.

The console is so constructed that the complete table model Bosch set slips in without any fitting or fussing. In the console is a "super dynamic" speaker with special power supply.

There is only one power connection to be made: simply plug the radio receiver cord into the light socket. There are no batteries or special devices to wire or watch.

The speaker provides great volume without distortion.

The Model 28 Bosch receiver has seven AC tubes and a power rectifying tube. There are three radio frequency stages, a detector stage and two audio frequency stages, the final one using push-pull amplification.

Lucky Strike Hour On KSD Saturday

Music ranging from "This Is My Lucky Day" to "On the Crest of a Wave" and "Alexander's Rag-Time Band" is to be played in the Lucky Strike Hour over KSD next Saturday night by an orchestra said to be the largest dance band playing on the air.

Incidentally, the fact that the American Tobacco Co. has turned to broadcasting does not mean that it plans to curtail newspaper advertising. The company is using ratio in a supplemental way, but it is stated that newspapers will continue to be the backbone of Lucky Strike success. "The tunes that made Broadway Broadway" is the slogan for the Lucky Strike radio hour.

Reception in Cave

Charles Service Jr. of Saratoga, Fla., wanted to see how a radio set would operate far underground. He took an Atwater Kent Model 33 into the Shenandoah Caverns in Virginia, trailing a 35-foot piece of enunciator wire along the floor of the cabin.

He found reception at the 75-foot level almost as good as on the surface. Then he carried the outfit to the 300-foot level.

Of the results there he says: "Imagine our surprise to hear WJZ and KDKA come in with sufficient audibility to be understood distinctly 150 feet down the passageway. Visitors who were being shown through by guards were considerably excited over the performance of the set so far below the surface."

For some time the problem of faultless reception has been solved—in the laboratory. Complicated mechanisms under laboratory conditions leave little if anything to be desired. To make this quality of reception available in a simple, practical, permanent set—that is the radio problem for 1928; solved by the Balkite AC set.

Balkite has in fact taken all that is known in radio, including its own contributions; then, through engineering refinement, has produced a set that has the finality of a fine car.

Radio fans who have heard the marvelous reception now achieved in the laboratory, and who are familiar with the complicated mechanism required to produce it, are amazed when they look at the Balkite chassis.

For here is that same faultless reception, but accomplished by means that engineering refinement has reduced to utter simplicity.

Here, too, is AC without hum; a complete unit ready to operate from your light socket. It has push-pull audio, complete shielding, dynamic speaker power, a jack for reproducing records electrically. The circuit allows for wide variation in voltage with safety to tubes.

The cabinets are by Berkey & Gay; an exterior elegance to match interior refinement. Your dealer will gladly demonstrate . . . Fansteel Products Company, Inc., North Chicago, Illinois.

St. Louis Radio Man Wins Contest

First prize in a national contest for salesmen conducted by a wholesalers' magazine has been won by C. W. Vogler, a salesman for the Barrett Electrical Supply Co., pioneer distributer of Sylvania radio tubes in this territory. Prizes were offered to salesmen selling the largest amount of a given line, in dollars and cents value in July. Between 30 and 40 manufacturers were represented by lines handled by jobbers all over the country. Volger proved to be the leader, at least so far as Sylvania tubes were concerned.

Two other Barrett Electrical Supply Co. salesmen came within a few hundred dollars of Vogler's totals for Sylvania tube sales.

FEATURED IN LA PALINA HOUR

GEORGE JESSEL

Vaudeville and musical comedy star who is to appear in the La Palina broadcast tonight over KMOX.

Majestic Radio Factories Said To Employ 4500

What can be accomplished by careful designing of receiver and speaker to match is illustrated by the Majestic sets, which are reported to be in volume production in the two big Chicago plants at a rate of upwards of 2500 a day. Using two 171A tubes in a push-pull final audio stage and a powerful dynamic speaker built to work at high efficiency with the particular audio stage, the Majestics are becoming noted for clarity and quality of reproduction.

Harold Wrape, head of the Benwood-Linze Co., distributer, said that he Grigsby-Grunow Co., makers of Majestic sets, was just getting into the second part of the huge Yellow Cab plant that it purchased some months ago. His latest information, he said, was that the company was using around 1,000,000 square feet of floor space and employing more than 4500 workers.

Majestic sets are made complete in the company's plants—receivers, furniture, even the hardware.

Production is centered on console models with built-in dynamic speakers. The difference in models is only in furniture.

As listeners generally know, the makers of Majestic sets have joined the radio companies that broadcast programs. Their weekly Majestic Hour, featuring Moran and Mack, "The Two Black Crows," is heard Sunday nights at 7:30, St. Louis time. It is broadcast over the Columbia chain of 21 stations, including KMOX.

Phonograph "Speakers."

The sound box of an old phonograph provides one of the best horn type speakers obtainable. The reproducer unit is removed and in its place is put a good speaker unit.

with other stations and are limited to 5000 watts.

Then there are several stations whose transmitters can be equipped within a day or two to use 50,000 watts or which are planning 50,000-watt plants. Among these are KFI, Los Angeles; KNX, Hollywood, Cal.; WBAP, Fort Worth, Tex., and WFAA, Dallas, Tex. All of these are on national channels, but limited to 5000 watts.

WCFL, the Federation of Labor station at Chicago, some time ago contracted to spend $250,000 on a new 50,000-watt station. WCFL has been limited to 1000 watts and ordered to share time on 970 kilocycles with WJJD and WEK.

WGY, at Schenectady, N. Y., whose transmitter has used as high as 100,000 watts experimentally, and usually uses 50,000, will be cut to 25,000 watts and will be on the air only part of the night, as it must share time on a national channel with KGO, Oakland, Cal.

WRC to Go Off KFI'S Wave.

WRC, the National Broadcasting Co. station at Washington, D. C., has been taken off KFI'S wave and put on 315 meters, on which it may use 500 watts. The N. B. C. has established elaborate studios in Washington and it has been understood that ambitious plans for a powerful national capital station were being considered. The possible value of broadcasts from Washington on high power is so obvious that WRC may be in line for big things.

Apparently, WAIU, the 500-watt station at Columbus, O., will be on the same wave as KFI, with the idea that they can synchronize simultaneous operation.

Tuning down to the wave lengths below 1200kc (249m) probably will become of increasing importance, as a number of high powered stations have been assigned to channels down to 1500 kilocycles (200 meters). KWK and WIL have been ordered down to 1350kc (222 meters); KSTP, a 10,000 watt Minnesota station, has been assigned to 1460kc; WLAC and WBAW, both of Nashville, Tenn., can use 5000 watts on 1490kc. KGA, Spokane, Wash., can use 5000 watts on 1470kc, as can KFJF, Oklahoma City, Ok.

WCCO, the Minneapolis-St. Paul station managed by former Radio Commissioner Bellows, is one of the favored ones, being authorized to increase its power to 10,000 watts on an exclusive national channel.

In the South.

There are interesting developments in the South. KWKH, at Shreveport, La., owned by W. K. Henderson, whose radio attacks on the Federal Commission time and again caused rumors that he was to be disciplined, has gained virtually everything for which he fought. KWKH gets the right to increase its power from 2500 to 5000 watts and to share a national wave channel with another Louisiana station—WWL, operated at New Orleans by Loyola University. WWL takes rank ahead of WSBM, a New Orleans station that in the early days of broadcasting was a favorite with St. Louis listeners.

Noteworthy in the reallocation was the failure of the 5000 watt WAIU, at Columbus, O., to win an exclusive national channel; the promotion of WTIC, Hartford, Conn., to a 5000 watt national station; assignment of WGY to a Pacific Coast exclusive channel on which it must share time with KGO; authorization for use of 5000 watts by WAPI, an Alabama station, and of KFKB, Milford, Kan., to use 5000, and assignment of national wave and high power plants to Texas.

WHO, Des Moines, Ia., and WOC, Davenport, Ia., will be classed as part time stations on national waves.

Why Push Pull Audio Is Used In Crosley Sets

Push-pull amplification has long been used in radio, but until recently it was used to overcome a shortcoming of radio tubes rather than to utilize the best qualities in them as it is now used in the Crosley Showbox, according to Geller, Ward & Hasner Co., distributor.

The low overloading point of tubes used for audio amplification before the 171 power tube came caused need of the push-pull system to obtain greater volume without distortion. However, when the power tube was placed on the market, the push-pull system was dropped because use of one 171 tube lessened the need for it by permitting much volume without distortion.

"With development of the dynamic speaker even greater power in the output of audio amplifiers was desirable and the 210 type tube was often used in receivers. This tube requires very high plate voltage. So the Crosley engineering department turned to the push-pull system and refined it for use with the 171 tube, two of which are used in the last stage of audio frequency amplification. They are not connected in parallel, but are used with transformers of special design so that one tube amplifies half of the signal wave or signal voltage and the other tube amplifies the other half.

The result of using a pair of 171's in the last stage push-pull is a greater handling capacity than that of a single 210.

10,000,000 Battery Sets.

An estimate places the number of battery sets in operation in the United States at 10,000,000. Ludwig Arnson of the Radio Receptor Co. says that while the trend is toward completely electrified receivers in attractive cabinets, many of the battery outfits are well worth powerizing through the addition of A and B eliminators.

Line of Kolster Sets Includes Nearly 20 Types

Nearly 20 models make up the new Kolster receivers. An interesting feature is its division into two lines—one including standard 6-tube and 7-tube sets, the other made up of 4-tube and 5-tube chassis in metal containers that can be fitted into bookcases, wall recesses or special furniture and used with power amplifiers.

This gives the Kolster line an unusual flexibility, so that it enables a house owner to make his radio suit his own peculiar needs and wishes.

The 7-tube console models come with 371, 210 and 250 super power tubes in the final amplifying stage.

Kolsters, designed by Dr. Frederick Kolster, inventor of the radio compass and many other notable inventions used in radio and navigation, have made exceptional records in distance reception.

The 6-tube sets have a control for varying the sensitivity accord to whether local or distant stations are desired. The extra tube in the 7-tube models gives even greater ability to pick up far away stations.

Balkite Sets Are Unusually Heavily Shielded

Shielding so complete that when the antenna is disconnected the set is "dead" is a feature of the Balkite receivers, for which the Electric Lamp Supply Co. has been appointed distributer. The whole set is built with unusual rigidity, with the idea of service through the years. The 227 type of AC tubes and a push pull final audio stage give quiet operation.

The AC tubes will operate even with line voltage fluctuations from 100 to 130 volts, and are protected against fluctuations beyond that range. This should insure long tube life.

There are only three controls—a single station selector, a volume control, and a switch.

A filtered power supply for operating a dynamic speaker, without external battery or rectifier, is standard equipment. There is also a phonograph jack for using a phonograph pickup.

'Rejector' Stage In Bremer-Tully Sets Aids Tuning

An interest feature, and one that has much to do with the set's selectivity, is the "rejector" stage in the 8-tube Bremer-Tully receiver. This may be set to keep an interfering station off the wave band wanted, so that the operator may devote his attention to tuning for tone quality.

The "rejector" was tested thoroughly under actual working conditions on former battery and eliminator-operated B-T "eights," and is said to work even better in the new AC tube receivers.

There is a complete line of AC tube Bremer-Tullys, including a 6-tube set for which great selectivity and distance getting ability are claimed.

The B-T line also includes dynamic and magnetic speakers. Console models have built-in speakers, which have been specially matched to the audio system.

Federal Console Models Operate With Door Loops

The new Federal receivers include AC tube, all-electric and battery-operated lines that come in widely varied furniture types and models.

All Federal sets use a basic, specially balanced circuit designed for extreme faithfulness of reproduction and at the same time selectivity and distance getting ability. They are fully shielded and have single tuning control.

The 7-tube Federals have final push pull amplification using two 210 power tubes. This, of course, means great volume whenever wanted and full, round tone quality. It also means power to bring out the bass notes properly.

Console models of the 7-tube sets have either large air column or dynamic speakers as is preferred.

Old Phonograph May Be Converted With Amplifier

An item of interest in the extensive Thordarson line of transformers, amplifiers and other radio necessities is a two-stage all-electric portable phonograph amplifier. Using a 210 power tube, this amplifier converts an old-style mechanical phonograph into a modern, high quality electrical reproducing machine.

It is small, compact and relatively inexpensive. It operates entirely from a lamp socket, and may be placed in one of the compartments or in the tone chamber of a phonograph. It need only be connected to the phonograph and to a high-grade speaker, such as a dynamic.

Sang for First Edison Record

"Steve" Porter, who is making his debut in radio as interlocutor for the Dutch Masters Minstrels, at 7:30 Tuesday nights over KMOX, made the first phonograph record that Thomas A. Edison placed on the market. In between the many years of minstrel show work he starred in vaudeville, appeared with Lillian Russell Opera Co. and was with Charles Frohman.

For those who remember the days of Lew Dockstader and Honey Boy Evans, and the lovers of modern minstrels, the Dutch Masters Minstrels program assures a rollicking half hour.

"FOR THE MAN WHO BELIEVES HIS OWN EARS"

"5th Row-Center"

Model 15 Temple Air Column Speaker $29.00

WHERE will it be — to the opera or to the drama? Will it be the musical comedy or the farce? Fly there on the wings of Pagasus and then relax in silent contentment, for you're in fifth row—center. The thrill of melodious song, the inspiring theme of a world-famous opera — soul-vibrating music, soft and low — and then a crash of thunder that rends the heavens — you'll enjoy it all.

You're in fifth row — center, with your Temple Speaker—where you always know you will enjoy yourself in the fullest measure. For here every note, every syllable, every word comes to you with clarity, no straining of the senses — just in soothing, relaxed contentment. Every tone is as true and clear as crystal and every word as if it were spoken in the very room in which you are sitting.

Models 15 is the refined and improved air column speaker — the same type of speaker upon which Temple success was founded — but now even better, price $29.

Leaders in Speaker Design — Model 20 Temple Air Chrome Speaker $29

Model 20 Temple Air Chrome represents a sensational new development in loud speakers. The open radiator consists of two sections instead of one, driven by the powerful Temple Double Action Unit, thus substantially increasing the volume and tonal range. Price $29.

Says Radio Will Aid Opera.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 15.—The radio is one of the strongest forces at work for the betterment of music, and sooner or later will raise the musical taste of America, and improve grand opera, says Claude Warford, New York composer and singing teacher.

How Can So Fine a Radio Be Sold at So Low a Price?

Here Is The Simple Story:

AN IDEA was conceived. It was to reproduce faithfully both music and voice as it originates in the studio. The original beauty and quality of tone must be maintained in ample volume. The Grigsby-Grunow Company gathered into their organization the best-trained and most experienced engineers in the industry. The work was done. They designed and produced the outstanding Radio product in point of performance on the market today.

This All-Electric Radio Unit is complete, with every part built by the Grigsby-Grunow Company. Incorporated in it is a seven-tube shielded R. F. L. balanced circuit, consisting of three tuned Radio frequency stages with tuned antennae input; an audio power amplifier using two 171 power tubes connected in push-pull on the power output stage; a dynamic power speaker; a Majestic electric power unit designed to serve both receiver and speaker; all mounted in a Majestic-made cabinet of burl walnut, beautiful in appearance. Such is the result which grew out of the idea!

Six great manufacturing plants of the Grigsby-Grunow Company, fully equipped and ably manned, are geared up to quantity production. The now famous Majestic Electric Radio Reception Unit is priced to provide the makers, their distributors and retailers a normal satisfactory profit—and the public with the only complete Radio Reception Service in the market today made by a single manufacturer. The entire Radio industry is astonished at the low price. The public is appreciative.

The maximum capacity of the Majestic plants is three thousand complete units per day. They are operating at full capacity. Majestic Radios are available to the public through the most reputable distributors and retail outlets throughout the country. The measure of public acceptance never before achieved in the Radio industry, confirms the Grigsby-Grunow Company's faith in their idea. Majestic Radios are sweeping the country.

You are urged to inspect this wonderful radio development. See the displays which have been arranged at the show, at the office of the Benwood-Linze Company and in the display rooms of your local radio dealer—or the one nearest you whose announcement appears herewith.

CHANGES WILL BE EXPENSIVE TO STATIONS

Mechanical Readjustments and Loss of Program Contracts for Many.

Changes in broadcasting apparatus necessitated by the new allocation of wave lengths and power by the Radio Commission will prove expensive to many stations.

Wherever a station's wave length has been changed its transmitter will have to be materially revamped. The control crystals will have to be changed, antennas will have to be lengthened or shortened, wiring will be affected.

It is estimated that it will cost some stations as high as $400 and $5000 to make the shifts in channels and power.

Contracts for sponsored programs also will be affected. Where two stations must share time, naturally one or the other, or both, must drop some of the features for which they receive pay. This will apply to both chain programs and local brodcasts.

Deferring until Nov. 11 the date when the allocation goes into effect will give stations ample time to readjust themselves to the new conditions, the commission figures.

Kolster Develops Method of Film Sound Recording

Ellery W. Stone, president of the Kolster Radio Corporation, has made the following statement:

"Due to certain unauthorized statements which have appeared recently, the management of Kolster Radio Corporation considers it desirable to announce that Dr. F. A. Kolster, chief research engineer, and his staff have completed development of new methods of sound recording on film for use in phonographic recording and for phonographic reproduction.

Dr. Kolster's new invention is also applicable, of course, to recording and reproduction of talking motion pictures.

"The laboratory development of these inventions has already proven highly successful.

"The superiority of Kolster's invention we believe to be an accomplished fact and the company is devoting its efforts to commercializing these inventions."

299 Type Best Detector With Screen Grid Tubes

In determining the tube to use as a detector in a receiver designed around CX-322 screen grid tubes, it is well to keep in mind the fact that in the detector circuit, as in the radio frequency circuits, the capacity between grid and filament of the tube is added across the tuning condenser which tunes that particular circuit.

If the tuning condensers are to be ganged for single control, it is important that the capacities in each circuit be accurately matched so that each circuit will be in step with the others.

All commonly used detectors except the CX-299 have a much higher grid to filament capacity than the CX-322 screen grid tube so would tend to throw the detector stage out of line with the radio frequency stages.

Since the grid to filament capacity of the CX-299 tube more nearly approaches that of the CX-322 tube, and filament characteristics of the CX-299 are similar to those of the CX-322, the CX-299 makes an ideal detector tube in circuits employing the CX-322 screen grid tubes.

For Microphone Technique Training

Saying that the leading broadcast programs must develop their own future talent, Gustave Haenschen, director of the Palmolive orchestra, is advocating founding special conservatories for training musicians and singers in microphone technique.

"As has been clearly demonstrated," Haenschen said, "all artists are not successful when they seek to go on the air. That is not because aspirants for leadership on the air are lacking in the ability to make their voices or music carry from the studio. It is simply that they must learn a special form of radio presentation.

KOLSTER RADIO

¶ Neither great men nor great products require a long story about their virtues. ¶ Their very manner of existence and daily accomplishments tell all that the onlooker needs for appreciation and endorsement. ¶ Certain automobiles, for example, have won such confidence that no high-pressure selling is required. Their makers know that all the world would own them. ¶ And so with Kolster Radio. Such faithfulness in tone quality, such extraordinary selectivity and such distinguished appearance have created, by their presence in thousands of homes in every State in the Union, a powerful structure of confidence within the public mind. ¶ Glowing praise is irrelevant when this exists. It is enough to hear on all sides the quiet remark:

"Kolster is a fine set"

Suggests Radio Industry Aid in Sports Promotion

"Is the public coming to believe that a comfortable chair by the radio is preferable to a hard plank seat 1000 feet from the ringside?" was the question recently discussed by Oscar Getz, vice president of the Steinite Radio Co.

"Promoters of sporting events have given serious thought to the radio problem," Getz went on to say. "They admit that a man who hears a boxing match on the radio usually has a more graphic picture of its blow-by-blow progress than the man who attempts to view it from a seat far from the ring. The radio listener sees the fight through the eyes of a trained observer, sitting close to the fighters; the occupant of the $5 seat sees something that looks like a view through the wrong end of a pair of opera glasses. Every person who sits down in an easy chair at home, turns on the radio and settles down to enjoy the contest, is a potential customer lost to the promoter.

"Since the radio industry seems to derive chief benefit from big sporting events now days," Getz concluded, "why is it unreasonable to assume that in the not very distant future the radio industry may promote such affairs? Now that chain broadcasting is common, it may not be long until we go a step further and have 'chain promotion'—a co-operative alliance of radio manufacturers and broadcasters working together to stage big sporting events. It cannot be denied that a radical change in the methods of promoting such events is at hand."

'Mystery' Set Out This Week

Details of the Freshman "mystery" set are to be disclosed this week.

The "mystery" set makes use of the Freshman Q circuit, developed by George Eltz, vice president in charge of engineering. It uses the shield-grid, or 222, tube as the R. F. amplifier. This receiver, with only four tubes, exclusive of the rectifier, is said to match and even excel the performance of AC receivers with a larger number of AC tubes.

Unusual Points Of New Sparton Sets Explained

Why the new Equasonne circuit used in Sparton receivers makes these sets so powerful and selective on low wave lengths as well as on the higher channels, and how such volume and tone quality are produced by the sets, was explained in detail Monday at a meeting of Sparton dealers held at Hotel Statler. Charles L. Staffelbach, of the Staffelbach & Duffy Music Co., Sparton distributer, was host at the meeting and at a banquet in the evening.

Harry Sparks, general sales manager of the Sparks-Withington Co., Jackson, Mich., manufacturer of Sparton sets, was unable to attend the meeting as had been expected. However, the following Sparks-Withington representatives were present: E. R. Brower, division supervisor; R. S. Williams, district representative; H. A. Wilmoth, assistant factory service manager, and Frank Purviance, district service manager. They went thoroughly into the sets, servicing and merchandising policies.

At the banquet, Staffelbach referred to the new wave length allocations, saying that listeners should rejoice that KSD and KFUO retained their shared channel and that KMOX was to have full time. It was unfortunate, he said, that KWK and WIL, which had won many followers, were to suffer. However, he held, the allocations showed that the Federal Radio Commission was making a real effort to improve reception for the public as a whole. This would be best for the listeners, and best for the industry.

As has been told, the new Sparton set does all its tuning ahead of the tubes, which are used only for amplifying. So powerful is the signal from the detector tube, that it is necessary to use only one audio tube and that one of the new 250 super power tubes. The result is avoidance of distortion that might be due to another audio stage.

With many fine stations being placed below 250 meters, Duffy said, the ability of the Sparton to separate those stations and bring them in strongly will be a big asset.

'Electric Ear' Developed by Stewart-Warner

An Outstanding Development in Radio Tone Production Progress, Says C. B. Smith.

Research laboratories have made more rapid progress in harnessing the forces of electricity and radio than they have accomplished for any other industry in two decades. The well-nigh perfect reception of today is the result of their labors of less than five years, according to C. B. Smith, president of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation.

Smith has just announced an intensive five-year manufacturing program of Stewart-Warner in its radio department.

The announcement was forecast by recent developments in the Stewart-Warner plant and perfection of the so-called "[illegible]ic ear" by Stewart-Warner scientists.

The "electric ear" is a device that accurately measures tone and eliminates defects to a mathematical precision.

"Our engineers in radio have had the advantage of experience in all other fields to aid them in adapting electricity to their use," Smith said. "Phenomenal progress has been [illegible] over a comp[illegible]ly short period. In this respect radio has advanced more rapidly in four years than the automotive industry in 15.

"The new electric ear, devised and perfected in the Stewart-Warner laboratories, represents, in my opinion, the most outstanding development in the field of quality tone reproduction.

"In brief, this machine consists of a microphone which catches all sound waves or vibrations. Those sound waves are felt by the microphone and are translated into electric waves which cause vibrations in an instrument called a galvanometer.

Photographs Sounds.

"On the shaft of the galvanometer is a tiny mirror which vibrates with the sound waves. A strong beam of light thrown on the mirror is deflected onto a reel of photographic film moving at uniform speed, just as one may deflect a beam of sunlight with a hand mirror. This beam of light flickers with the vibrations of the mirror and when this vibrating beam is photographed by a moving film we have a picture of sound. Thus we have a miracle machine that photographs sound.

"With the Electric Ear every tone, no matter from what instrument, makes its peculiar imprint on the film. So accurate is its record that one may tell the line made by one person's voice from that made by another's as easily as one may tell one person's photograph from another's.

RADIO TENOR IN CARICATURE

DAN GRIDLEY, tenor of the Philco Hour, according to DeBru, a noted French cartoonist.

NOTED EDITOR SCHEDULED IN VOTERS SERIES

Dr. Albert Shaw to Speak in Program Over KSD Tuesday Night.

A report on the progress of the campaign by Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, and a discussion of "The Machinery of Voting" will feature the Voters' Service half-hour program over KSD next Tuesday evening.

Dr. Shaw is an authority on political subjects and has lectured in colleges and universities throughout the country. In 1891 he was offered a political science chair at Cornell University but declined, to found the Review of Reviews, which he has since edited. His talk on this Tuesday will be a non-partisan report on major campaign events with interpretation of their significance in the political situation.

Two speakers will be heard in the discussion of "The Machinery of Voting." Mrs. W. W. Ramsey of Chicago, fifth vice president of the National League of Women Voters, will have as her subject, "Your Vote and Your Government," and Miss Elizabeth Hauser of Girard, O., fourth vice president of the league, will explain the function of "The Electoral College."

These two talks have been included in the Voters' Service series, in response to numerous requests for practical instruction in election methods.

Miss Hauser and Mrs. Ramsey have long been identified with the work of the League of Women Voters in citizenship education.

Miss Hauser is a newspaper woman of varied experience and was intimately associated with the suffrage movement.

Mrs. Ramsey's civic interests first found expression in settlement work and in the suffrage movement. During the war period she was the first woman accepted as a four-minute speaker in the theaters of Pittsburg, where she then resided. Both in Pennsylvania and Illinois, Mrs. Ramsey has made a notable contribution in the conduct of one-day citizenship schools under the auspices of the Pennsylvania and Illinois State Leagues.

URGES FEWER LICENSES FOR SHORT WAVES

Naval Communications Director Would Have Caution Exercised.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Federal Radio Commission will assign few additional short wave channels for international point to point radio service if it follows the recommendations of Capt. S. C. Hooper, director of naval communications and one of the technical advisors to the commission.

Capt. Hooper has received letters from officers in some naval districts recommending approval by the navy of certain private radio enterprises which seek favorable consideration by the commission of their application for short wave assignments. While interest on the part of naval officers is in accordance with naval policy, many of them fail to visualize the situation which confronts the commission, Capt. Hooper holds.

"There are, at the present time, of the art, 884 channels for point to point radio communication in the bands allocated by the International Radio Telegraph Conference for the world—between 600 and 23,000 kilocycles," he said. "These are the frequencies which are generally desired for long-distance circuits.

"Of this number the United States has allocated 222 frequencies, or 25 per cent of the world total.

"The navy can support only applicants for channels who are bona fide United States citizens and who will open their stations to the handling of paid traffic for all the public, and be capable of collecting and distributing this traffic from originator to addressee."

Credited With Making One-Dial Tuning Practical

To Paul A. Chamberlain, general engineer in the research laboratory of the All-American Mohawk Corporation, his company gives the credit for single-dial control. As early as 1925 Chamberlain patented an invention which in the same year made it possible for the Mohawk Corporation of Illinois, since consolidated with the All-American Radio Corporation, to place on the market the first practical single-dial receiver.

At first this invention was received with skepticism. Radio fans accustomed to adjusting a multiplicity of dials before they could bring in a station, looked askance on a device which eliminated all but one dial and simplified tuning so a child could operate it with ease.

Chamberlain is only 33 years old. He has been an electrical and radio engineer for 10 years. He has just perfected a new tube socket for use in receivers.

Sailors Everywhere Hear Programs

In their cabins on ships everywhere mariners are getting the music of Broadway. Capt. Wooster, master of the steamship Kusama, writes the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. from Melbourne that he heard stations all the way from Colon to Sydney using an ordinary 100-foot aerial.

"I am most impressed," he writes, "with the ease with which I can find a station from its wave length, and how accurately I can gauge this wave length from the setting of the dial."

Another skipper, C. J. Marchant of the steamship Enton, bought an Atwater Kent Model 20 receiver the last time he was in New York, and used it all the way from New York to Australia and thence to the United Kingdom via the Suez Canal. On the way to Australia, he reports, he heard programs from San Francisco, Los Angeles and Long Beach.

Cat Finds the Trouble.

Lots of queer things come in a radio manufacturer's mail. Here's one—a letter from Warren, Idaho, recently received by the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co.: "We had been trying to get the radio to play, but there was no volume. Last night, when we were tuning in on KOWW, one of our cats got to playing, jumped up into the batteries, and the radio began to play to beat thunder. This gave me the hint that there was something wrong. I discovered that somebody had disconnected the C battery wire. I fixed it up, and you should have heard her play."

Voltage Divider For B Eliminator

The "Truvolt Divider" is a new B and C power unit voltage distribution system, developed by Electrad, Inc., and available as a complete resistor bank unit, with fine controls.

This resistor unit, consisting of five variable wire-wound resistances, makes unnecessary resistance calculations for B and C output voltages, and overcomes a great obstacle to B eliminator construction. Its incorporation into a B power unit gives the eliminator great versatility. The use of variable wire-wound resistances, whose ohmic value can be varied to suit all requirements, removes the operating limitation imposed by a fixed resistance voltage distribution system. By means of the variable resistances, the B eliminator can be adapted for use with all receivers, and to supply all desired values of B and C voltages.

NEWSPAPERS READY TO USE SHORT WAVES

An elaborate plan for handling world news reached a final stage when the American News Traffic Corporation, composed of the New York Herald Tribune, other newspapers and press associations, filed with the Federal Radio Commission its plan of organization for using 20 short wave channels which had been awarded the newspapers.

Already the group of newspapers which fought the way through hearings before the commission for the assignment of these channels for a press service, have individually obtained licenses or have filed applications for construction permits which indicates that the actual use of radio in the collection of news will be started within a short time.

While only a small group of newspapers and services, all of whom maintain foreign staffs of their own and are greatly dependent on cable and wireless service, the Federal Commission's plan will make it possible for any newspaper desiring the service to enter through the American News Traffic Corporation, which is the controlling body.

A correspondent in Rome, for example, would file a message from a Marconi or other private radio station. It would be addressed and would be picked up by any one of the receivers in the group of newspapers and transmitted to its destination.

But, according to those who hold out great hopes of a new era in news dissemination, the same message could be received simultaneously by a hundred or hundreds of newspapers over the United States as well as other countries within its range. In this manner the cost of transmitting to one point and then retransmitting by telegraph would be eliminated.

A story radioed from Rome could be received in newspapers all over the country maintaining the receiving apparatus.

Mayor Proclaims Radio Week Here

Mayor Victor J. Miller has issued a proclamation declaring the week of Sept. 17 to be Radio week in St. Louis, and urging everyone to attend the radio show at the Coliseum which will open tomorrow.

ENTERTAINMENT, BROADCASTING AT RADIO EXPOSITION

Boys — Emerson Brown, Leroy Busch, Ben E. Biesemeyer, Carl W Landon, Joseph E. McIlvaine, Norman F. Paule, Leo H. Range, Walter Rothschild, Frank J. Strauss and Francis M. Weir.

The district winners—a boy and a girl—will be decided by vote of a jury and of the listening public.

Miss Edith Demaree, 19 years old, church choir singer, and Carroll West, also 19, both of Poplar Bluff, Mo., were the first winners in a local preliminary singing contest in the National Radio Audition. They will compete in the Missouri State contest.

Miss Demaree, a brunette, is a mezzo-soprano. She began public singing in her high school days as a member of the Poplar Bluff High School Glee Club and in the choir at the church of which her father is pastor. Young West, a baritone, is a former University of Nebraska student.

Two grand opera prima donnas, two presidents of nation-wide musical associations and an author-publicist compose the National Sponsorship Committee which will supervise judging of the final competition in the National Radio Audition, the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia announces. The committee members are, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Mme. Louise Homer, Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelley of Western College, Oxford, O., president of the National Federation of Music Clubs; Mrs. Otto H. Kahn of New York City, president of the National Music League, and Edward W. Bok, the Philadelphia author and editor.

Sunday, Dec. 16, has been set as the date for the final in this nation-wide singing competition for the Foundation's cash awards totaling $17,500 and music conservatory scholarships. The time will be the regular Sunday evening Atwater Kent Radio Hour.

The final will be put "on the air" by WEAF and a chorus.

Judging in all State and district auditions will be by joint vote of radio audiences and judges. The radio public's vote will count 60 per cent; the vote of a special jury of musical authorities 40 per cent.

In the finals at New York no radio vote will be taken. The decision will be rendered solely by a national board of judges, to be named by the National Sponsorship Committee.

HE WILL SING AT THE RADIO SHOW

Allen McQuhae Saw Hardships on Road to Success

Allen McQuhae, star of numerous Atwater Kent broadcast concerts, who is to be brought here by the Brown & Hall Supply Co., to sing at the St. Louis radio show on Sept. 20, has had a truly varied career. Graduating from college as a civil and hydraulic engineer, McQuhae finally landed in Canada, and after months of ranching, gold mining in the Klondike and other occupations, joined a road company of the "The Rose Maid." He had always sung as a child and attained prominence throughout England as a choir boy.

Then came years of "song plugging," vaudeville engagements, cabaret jobs, singing anywhere and everywhere to get enough to pay for lessons. Many times there was not enough money to eat, much less to study. But, as in most cases where there is sufficient determination, McQuhae finally found someone who would give him lessons, and then, after the interruption of the war, success began to come.

Today McQuhae is as busy an artist as one can find, singing recitals the length and breadth of the land and being in great demand for radio shows and as a broadcasting artist.

"I certainly sacrificed and endured as much as it was possible for a person to stand, to accomplish an ideal," McQuhae said recently. "I felt somehow that the song that was in my soul, the song of Ireland that I felt I could sing in the voice that God had given me for some purpose, must some time have its chance. After all, we do not choose to have a voice; it is given us, and it must be given us for some purpose.

"Those days of singing here, there and everywhere might have ruined my voice, but didn't. It all simply gave me a great vision of the world, of life, and what life did to people. I believe that all those things were for some reason, perhaps to give me a revelation, and to broaden me mentally, not physically," he added, with an Irish twinkle in his eye, "so that I could better interpret the songs that I sing."

Edison to Talk at New York Show

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Opening exercises of the Radio World's Fair, at which Thomas A. Edison will make one of his few radio talks, are to be broadcast by a chain of stations on Monday evening, Sept. 17.

A reception Thursday evening for Donald M. MacMillan, recently returned Arctic explorer, also is to be broadcast.

The Veteran Wireless Operations' Association will present a medal to Guiseppi Biagi, wireless operator of the ill-fated Nobile airship, the Italia, which crashed in the Arctic. The ceremony is to be broadcast between 8 and 9 p. m., Eastern Standard time, Saturday, Sept. 22, and it is to be sent out on short waves in an effort to reach listeners in Italy.

Numerous other features have been arranged during the week's exhibition, including the coronation of Miss Lita Korbe of New York, formerly of Chisholm, Minn., as radio queen.

Besides demonstrations of television and radio photograph apparatus as well as displays of the latest improvements in sound sets and radio novelties, the American Radio Relay League is to have a booth showing short wave equipment. An operator will be on duty to send and receive messages.

Alois Havrilla's Banquet Speech On KSD Tuesday

Alois Havrilla, NGC announcer, who is heard often over KSD on network programs, is to speak at the banquet of the Electrical Board of Trade at Hotel Statler Tuesday noon. He is to discuss program making. KSD will put the banquet program on the air at 12:55 o'clock.

This is the opening meeting of the season for the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade. R. J. Russell, vice president and secretary of the Century Electric Co., will be installed as president; Percy Redmund, general manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., vice president; George Cornao, manager of the Graybar Electric Co., vice president, and Frederic A. Kehl, president of the Federal-Brilliant Co., treasurer.

Members of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association will be guests of the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade.

Banquet Held by Radio Trades Body

Frank Fay, master of ceremonies at the Missouri Theater, Emma Becker, Elaine Russell and several other entertainers of the KWK staff entertained at a dinner dance held Thursday night by the St. Louis Radio Trades Association on the roof of Hotel Chase. The program also was broadcast through KWK. Thomas Patrick and Bob Thomas acting as announcers.

The banquet was held to celebrate completion of arrangements for the St. Louis radio show this week and the opening of National Radio week. Julian E. Sampson, president of the Radio Trades Association, made a brief address.

"This limits clear television transmission to closeups of individuals and correspondingly limits the character of subjects which may be broadcast. It excludes the televising of large outdoor scenes, such as sporting events and crowds. Second, the television transmitter is a bulky device, which must be permanently installed, restricting television to studio subjects.

"The picture broadcasting outfit is a portable device. Any subject which the camera records, not possessed of too great a variety of detail and minute subject areas, can be put on the air. Any picture which is good enough for reproduction by newspapers can be broadcast. Furthermore, the Rayfoto transmitter is portable so that it may be taken to any event where the microphone is installed.

"As we have seen, television transmissions are limited to closeups of faces because objects, such as full figures, possessing any great detail, become unrecognizable. Picture broadcasting, on the other hand, is practically unlimited. For example, with news flashes, we may have photographs of the events referred to, just as they appear in the newspapers. Educational talks may be supplemented by diagrams and illustrations and their value thereby enhanced, just as textbooks are made more valuable by means of illustrations.

"All of this is possible because the art of picture broadcasting has already progressed far beyond the stage in which radio reception found itself when KDKA first went on the air.

"The listener, not desiring to receive pictures may insert an inexpensive filter in his loudspeaker terminals which will make the picture signal quite inaudible. It is only a matter of time before this method of 'silent' picture transmission is adopted. Light, portable transmitters, so compact that they can actually be installed on airplanes are also being developed.

"Another development along transmitting lines, which will greatly improve Rayfoto service, is the perfection of positive cameras. These make a positive picture without requiring the development of a negative so that a picture may be put on the air with a picture broadcasting device within a few seconds after an event takes place.

"In the field of reception a development of the greatest possible interest is that of direct printing. A paper, sensitive to corona, exposed without any other chemical processes as a final photograph, has already been demonstrated in the laboratory and it is only a question of increasing its speed before it is commercially available. At the present time it is necessary to remove the sensitive paper from the receiving drum and dip it in a solution before the picture becomes visible, a process requiring 15 to 30 seconds. With the development of direct printing paper pictures may then feed out of the recorder just as the stock ticker produces quotations ready to read.

"Several of the leading manufacturers in the radio field are now experimenting with Rayfoto reception with a view to building picture receiving attachments into their regular radio receivers.

Against Restriction.

"It is no more proper to regulate picture broadcasting on the broadcast band on the grounds that only a limited number of listeners is served than it is to regulate farm programs which are of interest only to farmers, or lectures if interest only to special groups or musical programs appealing only to limited tastes. Picture broadcasting is a service like any other kind of broadcasting service and there is no ground upon which special limitations, discriminating against the experimental pioneer who, after all, made it all possible by introducing broadcasting to the general public several years ago, may be properly formulated.

"The only avenue to attack is the fact that a picture signal, radiated in areas where there are few picture receiving devices, is not a service in the public interest. None regard public service more jealously than the broadcasting stations and the character of the schedules adopted by the existing picture broadcasters is adequate proof that picture signals are not, and will never be, radiated continuously or in a manner which will become annoying to the audience in general. The regulation, limiting service to a certain type of listener, to certain hours, establishes a dangerous precedent, which is far in excess of the intended jurisdiction of the Federal Radio Commission.

"It may be held that, because a special output device, cor. sponding to the loudspeaker, is required to interpret picture signals at the listener's home, it should be made the subject of special regulation. There are numerous tone programs now being radiated, which can be adequately reproduced only by special audio-frequency reproducers possessed by few listeners. Numerous stations radiate bands of audio signals broader than that which the audio systems of a majority of listeners can reproduce. It would be contrary to progress to require broadcasting stations to transmit a narrower audio-frequency band just because a vast majority of listeners do not have means of reproducing these signals. With the same force, it may be argued that picture signals, which only a small percentage of the audience can today interpret, should not be excluded from theair because the standards of listener equipment are bound to rise as the art progresses."

ENGINEERS PRAISE RADIO RE-ALLOCATIO

Predictions Made at Capital, However, That Politicians Will Upset It.

By THOMAS STEVENSON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The long-awaited reallocation to broadcasting station was adopted by the Federal Radio Commission against terrific pressure to hold it up.

Engineers and experts promise that the plan will bring better reception than the American public has ever known. Listeners with average sets, they say, will be able to reach out across the continent for programs under normal winter conditions.

To Judge Eugene O. Sykes, Orestes H. Caldwell and Harold A. La Fount is due credit for adoption of the plan.

Since last March the commission has been struggling with the broadcasting situation. Congress had passed the Davis-Dill amendment to the law requiring the commission to redistribute broadcasting facilities "equally" between the five radio zones of the country, and "equitably" between the states of each zone, according to population.

A Continual Fight.

Early in April, the commission invited leading engineers to criticise a plan which provided for 50 cleared, 36 semi-cleared and four local channels.

The engineers unanimously indorsed the plan. They declared it would provide the maximum service possible to the entire country, especially benefitting the rural population which must depend on long range reception.

But the plan reduced the number of stations operating simultaneously. So it was opposed by many stations, which were supported by members of Congress.

Each Congressman took the attitude that while it was probably necessary to reduce station to reduce interference, it was by no means necessary to bother the stations in his particular zone.

Within the commission was disagreement. Commissioner I. E. Robinson, the chairman, did not believe it was necessary to take any action. He was fairly well pleased with conditions as they were, he said.

Commissioner Sam Pickard wanted the commission to adopt a plan that would not only improve reception but would prevent his zone —the Fourth—from being too badly hurt. These two factors could not be reconciled, as the law declared that there must be equality.

Pickard believed in the soundness and value of the plan recommended by engineers. But he realized it would impose great hardship on many stations in his zone. He recommended that the commission approach the ideal gradually.

Sykes Tips Balance.

Sykes did little talking and much listening. Until the last minute few knew how he would vote.

Unfortunately for some of the stations and their political supporters, Judge Sykes insisted on placing an old-fashioned interpretation on the law—that the commission was created to protect public interest, instead of the interest of the broadcasters themselves. So he voted for the reallocation which already had the support of Commissioners La Found and Caldwell.

Judge Robinson voted against the plan. He refused to sign the order putting it into effect.

Commissioner Pickard voted for the plan, but qualified his vote by recommending that its adoption be postponed until the public had had a chance to perceive its effect on stations in the Fourth Zone.

Under Terrific Strain.

Judge Sykes is sick in bed, a wreck from the strain. Commissioner La Fount, usually bland and smiling, looks very tired, and his wife is worried about his condition. Commissioner Pickard is a sick man. Commissioner Caldwell wears a tired smile, but it is a smile of victory.

Perhaps the victory will be short-lived. Rumors and predictions are current that the Commissioners will pay with their heads for their rashness in attempting to give preferential treatment to the American listening public. Reports are quite common in Washington that the Commission will be thrown out, the law changed and an entirely new commission appointed to do a job more to the liking of the politicians.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Exports of radio apparatus from the United States during June showed a considerable increase, the gain of $121,596 being substantially greater than the increase shown in May of this year, the Department of Commerce announces. Radio tubes was the only item which registered a decrease.

Argentina was the largest importer of receiving set components, taking equipment valued at $63,168 while Canada offered a good market for receiving sets and accessories. Australia's chief items of import were receiving sets and receving set components and accessories.

Radio Saves Money for U. S.

The radio net of the War Department effected a total saving of $141,579 for governmental departments during the last half of the fiscal year 1928. Departmental figures indicate that if the messages, which were sent by Army radio, were transmitted by commercial wire, the cost would have been $164,195. The cost of sending the same messages by radio was $22,616.

Ziegfeld Number In Eveready Hour

With a musical program made up of the numbers which have proven most popular during its summer broadcasting, the Eveready Hour will present Tuesday evening over KSD the last of its summer programs. On the following Tuesday this "hour," a pioneer among national broadcasters, will enter on its fall and winter season.

Tuesday, for the first time on the air, a musical selection from the Ziegfeld musical comedy success, "Showboat," will be given. "Old Man River," the song hit of the Broadway production, will be played. A banjo solo by John Call also will be featured.

Nathaniel Shilkret will conduct the Eveready Salon Orchestra in a group of 15 numbers, including selections from the "Scandals."

RADIO BOARD PREPARES FOR COURT FIGHTS

One Station May Test Law by Broadcasting Without a License.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Attempts will be made, in the courts and otherwise, to prevent the Radio Commission from enforcing the new reallocation to broadcasting stations which is supposed to become effective Nov. 11.

One station has sought an injunction to restrain the commission. Others are planning to attack the commission over the air. Still others are having their Senators and Representatives tell members of the commission that if the the reallocation is put into effect, they will not be reappointed. One station is considering testing the law by broadcasting without a license.

Despite the protests, the general belief of experts is that the commission has performed a great service and that the new allocations will come nearer to clearing up the air than anything that has yet been done.

Of course, there are numerous stations that think they have been badly treated and probably some of them feel they have a legitimate complaint. Progress could not have been made, however, without upsetting somebody.

The cause of interference has been that too many stations—between 500 and 600—were operating simultaneously on the 90 broadcasting channels.

To reduce the interference, it was necessary to reduce the number of stations operating simultaneously. This was accomplished by requiring stations to divide time instead of eliminating a large number of them. Under the plan adopted by the commission, the number of stations operating simultaneously is reduced to between 300 and 350, of which only 165 are of sufficient power to be serious interference factors.

Naturally, it will result in hardship to many stations. Those that are dissatisfied, however, can appeal to the commission and to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

Discovered Radio Waves.

Rudolph Heinrich Hertz, a German scientist, discovered the radio waves and for that reason they are often called Hertzian waves. In Germany the term "hertz" is now used for a cycle in his honor.

10,000 Japanese Station.

A 10,000-watt broadcasting station is operating in Kumanoto, call letters JOGK and broadcasts on 380 meters.

GRAND OPERA ON AIR WILL BEGIN TOMORROW NIGHT

first half of the NBC schedule include Cadman's "Shanewis" and Harling's "The Light From St. Agnes." Franke Harling himself will conduct the performance of the latter, which scored a triumph for both opera and composer when presented at the Chicago Civic Opera.

Sept. 17, "Aida" (Verdi); Sept. 24, "Rigoletto" (Verdi).

Oct. 1, "Pagliacci" (Leoncavallo); Oct. 8, "Sylvano" (Mascagni); Oct. 15, "Lohengrin" (Wagner); Oct. 22, "Faust" (Gounod); Oct. 29, "Natoma" (Herbert).

Nov. 5, "Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni); Nov. 12, "Romeo et Juliette" (Gounod); Nov. 19, "Le Cid" (Massenet); Nov. 26, "The Light From St. Agness" (Harling).

How Push Pull In Radio Set Works and Why

Push pull amplification, as used, for example, in the eight-tube Day-Fan receiver, does away with certain distortion to which a single tube is liable.

As the resistance in the output circuit of a tube decreases (at low frequencies a loud speaker will have low impedence and tube "feeding" the loud speaker will have low resistance in its output circuit), the increase and decrease in plate surrent due to a given signal become unequal. This represents distortion because it indicates that the positive side of the input or signal voltage produces a relatively greater change in the plate current than does the negative side.

When two tubes are connected in push-pull with an input transformer, the signal voltage delivered to the grid of one tube is positive at the same time that to the other is negative, and vice versa. In the same way, the plate current of one will increase while the other decreases, turn about.

If these plate current changes become unequal at low frequencies, the combination arrangement of the tubes eliminates this cause of distortion by making ineffective the excess of the plate current producing the inequality.

Power for Detector Tube.

The detector tube should be operated by not less than 45 volts. The tube, however, will frequently perform better with 67½ or even 90 volts.

Noted Inventor Coming to Show

E. T. Flewelling, internationally known engineer and inventor, is to attend the St. Louis radio show. He is the inventor of the Flewelling short wave adapter, which makes possible reception of inter-continental short wave stations. United States stations broadcasting on wave lengths of less than 200 meters can be received on an ordinary set with the new device.

Flewelling is now associated with the A-C Dayton Co., Dayton, O., which has acquired sole rights to manufacture in this country the Flewelling short wave adapter, as consultant and development engineer.

Second Thoughts on First Nights

By ALISON SMITH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.

OF ALL the recent openings, the new Arthur Hopkins play has excited most interest, both before and after its opening. Such is the demure reticence of Mr. Hopkins that his forthcoming productions are invariably shrouded in mystery. Not one breath as to their content is ever permitted to sift through the doors of his office; he has even been accused of absentmindedly denying that he would produce a play on the morning after it had opened.

Naturally, therefore, his works are a target for fantastic conjecture shot from the ambush of what they say on Broadway. "They," for instance, said that "Machinal" was a dramatization of the Ruth Snyder case and that it was photographically accurate; some of "them" even knew the details of the Snyder makeup. As a matter of fact, the new play at the Plymouth touches the Queens Village tragedy only as "Justice" might touch Sacco and Vanzetti. There is a wife and a murdered husband and an electrocution—items which are surely not confined to any special criminal court report. And with them, Sophie Tredwell deserts the headlines for a recital of her own—a stabbing, desperate, compassionate recital of one bewildered woman caught and mangled in life's machinery.

Her method follows the pattern that the modernists set and called "expressionistic" — that perilous form of distorted lights and brief vignettes and harsh, staccato utterances. It burst onto our Broadway stage with Kaiser's "From Morn to Midnight" and not since that unforgettable performance has its value been so completely realized. There is even a similarity in theme; the terrified bank clerk is replaced by a bewildered stenographer who marries her fat grub of an employer, who snatches at brief pitiful ecstasy with a lover and who is finally dragged in a ghastly, macabre shuffle down the stone tier that leads to the electric chair. It is a theme shot through with pity and horror and its development gives an intense sense of the chaotic emotional background against which life passes. And its challenge has been met by a deftly assembled cast which is magically equal to the difficulties of its interpretation.

It is a triumph of acting which by no means rests entirely on the extraordinary performance of Zita Johann, a hungry-eyed, vibrant newcomer who gives her role the heart-breaking quality of child-like bewilderment at what life has inexplicably done to her. Nor on the odious, jovial flabby figure which George Stillwell makes of the husband. These are the spotlight characters but the stage is crowded with a variety of minor roles which are masterpieces of casting and direction.

Miss Treadwell has presented her case with disarming sympathy but not without special pleading. Her play has nothing of the detachment in Galsworthy's "Justice" through which the judges of the hunted man are as mercifully muddle-headed as humans well may be and cold vengeance comes only through the grinding wheels of the law. The author of "Machinal" vouchsafes to the women that understanding which forgives all and she makes all the males in the foreground, monsters of brutality and treachery. Such relationships can't be disposed of as simply as all that—not even to explain a murdered spouse. In her feverish anxiety to protect her heroine, Miss Treadwell turned a deaf ear to the husband's story.

For all its limitations, however, the theme is honest and moving and Mr. Hopkins' development of its unusual form has no trace of self-consciousness or affectation. This, after all our trials with those modernists whose startling merits rest on the posing of a cockeyed lamp-post or the printing of the author's name in lowercase letters, seems a very genuine triumph. Mr. Hopkins would be the first to admit that, with this piece, he had a definite advantage over those torchbearers who assume that a distorted tree and a crooked moon are drama enough for one evening. After all it was Miss Treadwell who had something real to say.

PROGNOSTICATIONS of Hollywood writers that the new "talking" pictures would sound the death knell to the careers of foreign players, are apparently premature.

Maria Alba, who was a telephone operator in Barcelona, Spain, a little over a year ago, is a case in point. She has been given the feminine lead in an all-dialogue feature, "The Caballero's Way," now being made on Fox Movietone by Raoul Walsh, who also is playing one of the leading roles.

The part is that of a Spanish-Mexican girl who is none too familiar with the lingo this side of the Rio Grande. Miss Alba proved herself ideal in physical appearance, and her diction in speaking fractured English was just what the producers wanted.

The casting of Miss Alba for this important role indicates that there is a vast field of drama and comedy in "talking" pictures open to players with a foreign accent, providing producers place them in roles suitable to their nationality.

The million-dollar comma of legal fame was relegated to the limbo of forgotten history the other day when a property man's sneeze nearly cost a film studio thousands of dollars.

Too great realism may be dangerous, as William J. Cowen, director of the Pathe feature, "Ned McCobb's Daughter," discovered recently.

This picture, which is based on the Theater Guild play by Sidney Howard, has some bootlegging sequences for which some specially designed trucks with false bottoms were constructed.

Taking of the bootlegging scenes coincided with marked activity of the Federal enforcement officers of the Los Angeles district, and one of the trucks was stopped on the way to location one morning. The driver had to do some tall explaining as to the false bottom of the truck, backed up by the presentation of various credentials and papers showing his connection with the studio. The officers had taken him for a bootlegger on his way to get a shipment.

Douglas Fairbanks is in active production of "The Iron Mask," the sequel to his story of "The Three Musketeers," which he made six years ago. Again Mr. Fairbanks is playing D'Artagnan, Alexander Dumas' swashbuckling hero of the seventeenth century.

New York Day by Day

— By —
O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.

I'M BEGINNING to be just a little resentful when people keep telling me what a wonderful book Thornton Wilder's "Bridge of San Luis Rey" is. For those who genuinely enjoy snatches of pure and beautiful English, it seems to me extremely fine. It has continued to be a best seller. And, of coures, my opinion is a mere personal one and certainly in the minority!

But I doubt half the people get such a kick out of it as they say. The story is not very enthralling, and the Peruvians have already set up a howl about its geographical and historical accuracy.

It was one of those books considered "smart" to read, and this ballooned it into a big sale. Its power really to hold interest has been absurdly exaggerated. A dozen books published around the same time were far more satisfying to many of us.

The book plopped Prof. Wilder out of the dull routine of academic life and gave him an opportunity to roam Europe with Gene Tunney, and that is pleasing, but as fine as it is it isn't the outstanding book of the generation by a long shot. A better book, I should say, is "The Closed Garden."

Gene Tunney, by the way, turned down a small fortune in a refusal to indorse a certain brand of cigarettes. He was not asked to say he smoked them, but merely say: "My friends all smoke ——, so they must be good." Tunney considered that a betrayal of his ideals. He believes tobacco to be injurious.

Recently Douglas Fairbanks received a program of a movie house in Spain playing "The Gaucho." Across it was written: "Congratulations, Douglas. A fine picture." It was signed "Alphonse," and was from none other than the King of Spain.

The sappiest looking faces I have seen lately are those snapped by society news photographers of this and that "smart couple" at a polo game.

New York has gone through its hottest summer in 17 years. The records show a hot summer here is always followed by a severe winter. Yet New York shows less concern over its weather than most any other city. It is the outside world that makes such a first-page fuss about it.

Short Shavings: A big hotel for writing folk to be called the O. Henry is being planned. Helen Hayes is to marry Charles MacArthur, a playwright. One of the biggest moving picture stars has a list of pensioners to the tune of $1800 a week. All relatives. . . . Joseph Hergesheimer is a radio addict. . . . Sam Blythe does not space or punctuate his newspapers or magazine articles. . . . Clara Bow receives the most fan mail. . . . Bob Davis is an expert cook. . . . Dorothy Parker, the poet, is the new dramatic critic on The Evening Telegram. . . . Theodore, the famous head waiter, will never speak to a patron on the street. . . . Walter Catlett is a postage stamp collector. . . . Vina Delmar, the author of "Bad Girl," used to be a Harlem theater usher. . . . The sale of patent cigar lighters is falling off. . . . George S. Kaufman retains his newspaper job despite his enormous success as a playwright.

A banker tells me among professional men he has found dentists to be more honorable in their dealings than all others. And it is recalled that in my own experience I have never known a dentist who was not a good family man and a steady and reliable citizen. The banker further stated that in his bank there was not a dentist depositor who did not have a record of consistent saving.

Many young writers ask older and more experienced writers what they should charge for their wares. It has been my experience and that of all writers I know that there is a long stretch of years during which we take whatever we can get—and are mighty glad to get it.

Jed Harris, the young producer of "Broadway" and "Coquette," was born Jacob Horowitz in Vienna. Al Woods was born in Budapest and Morris Gest in Vilna, Lithuania. Outside of these, nearly all New York producers are American born and most of them came from small towns. George M. Cohan's native home is Providence, R. I. Marc Klaw was born in Paducah, Ky. George C. Tyler in Circleville, O. Brock Pemberton in Emporia, Kan. Winthrop Ames in North Easton, Mass. Anne Nichols in Dales Mills, Ga. Winchell Smith and Charles Dillingham in Hartford. Harry Frezee in Peoria, Ill., and Oliver Morosco in Lokan, Utah.

Those who employ high-salaried executives are insisting more and more upon frequent periods of leisure away from their desks. One $125,000 a year man has a stipulation in his contract—inserted by his employers—that he work only nine months a year and be completely divorced from his job the other three. Stockholders employ high-salaried men chiefly for constructive ideas and realize the dull routine of office confinement will throw the best of them into a rut. The high-salaried executive must be able to have his business geared to such perfection that he can leave it for months at a time with no loss of efficiency.

An incident which to me was packed with drama was related by a visiting English correspondent the other week. Some months ago the Manchester Guardian sent a writer to America on a roaming commission to study phases of life here. He visited the late Amy Lowell, and among other things asked her who in her opinion wrote the purest American. She replied it was a sports writer in Madison, Wis. A few days later he left for Madison and found him in a pool hall with a bunch of cronies. He listened to his conversation for a while, but did not reveal his identity or introduce himself. He decided here was a man who did not know he was great—at least in the eyes of a great poet—and somehow or other he believed he would be happier if he was never told.

A trick in gyp barber shops is to select a clean towel from a stack in front of the customer's eyes, walk around behind the chair and surreptitiously draw it across the sole of a shoe. It is then passed over the customer's hair and the smear is shown to him as an indication of how badly he is in need of a shampoo. It often works, but it failed the other morning when a customer saw the gesture, made the barber wash his hair free and then presented him with a black eye.

Apollo Club Meets.

Arrangements have been made by the Executive Board of the Apollo Club for the first regular meeting of the Club at the Roosevelt Hotel, Delmar and Euclid avenue, tomorrow (Monday) evening at 8 o'clock, to which all active members have been invited as well as the young men who have applied for active membership in the organization. In addition active members have been asked to bring a prospective member, it being the desire of President D. C. Zytowski and the executive board to build a stronger choral body than the club has ever had.

On the screen, "Silks and Saddles," with Marion Nixon and Richard Walling.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—Opening of the 1928-29 season, with a seven-act bill featuring Hadji Ali, Egyptian wonder worker, who drinks 100 glasses of water at every performance. On the screen: "Fleetwing," with Dorothy Janis and Ben Bard.

Toy Theater Begins Season's Rehearsals

The Toy Theater Players have begun rehearsals for the season which will open in October. This little company, organized two years ago, is a group of amateur and professional players, who, with the management and the electrician, have, without recompense, given their services for the movement.

Miss Elizabeth Morse, general manager of the organization, has added another group of younger aspirants, known as the Children's Theater Players.

Norris J. Buechele, who is a professional stage electrician, has made many additions to the electrical equipment, and has thoroughly installed an adequate lighting system in the Toy Theater.

The program for the season is unusual in that it includes the first comedy written in English, "Gammer Gurton's Needle," adapted by Colin C. Clement. "Young Mrs. Winthrop," by Bronson Howard, will be revived. Others to be presented are "The Master Builder," by Ibsen; "Rip Van Winkle," from the story by Washington Irving, and "Jack and the Beanstalk."

The business managers are Hazel Eadie and Ellona Garland. The management will be glad to make appointments at the Toy Theater with those desiring members' in either of the groups of players.

Lowry Establishes Record.

A theatrical record for St. Louis has been established by Ed Lowry, master of ceremonies at the Ambassador Theater, in remaining here for one year and in that period giving a total of 1500 stage performances.

In view of his success Skouras Brothers at the termination of his first contract this year placed him under contract for another year with options extending over a three-year period, with the total salary for the period almost reaching a quarter of a million dollars.

"Desert Song" Opening Its Second Week Here

Will Be Followed by "Greenwich Village Follies" at Shubert Rialto—American Theater Being Redecorated and Will Open Early in October—Gene Greene Thinks Audiences Always Right.

THE management of the Shubert-Rialto Theater was fortunate enough to book a genuine hit for its opening attraction. "The Desert Song" has been playing to near-capacity business most of the week and due to this excellent showing has been held over for a second.

Though the book and music of this operetta is no better than the standard Romberg opus the cast is one of the best that has presented a musical show in St. Louis for the last several years.

The engagement ends next Saturday, Sept. 22.

On the following evening, that of Sunday, Sept. 23, "The Greenwich Village Follies," traveling under the aegis of the Bohemians Incorporated, will begin a week's engagement at the Grand boulevard house. The featured players in this production are Blossom Seely and Doctor Rockwell. It was staged by J. C. Huffman.

The third attraction at the Shubert will be "A Night in Spain," with a cast virtually identical with the New York and Chicago productions. Its roster of players includes such well known performers as Phil Baker, Ted Healy, Aileen Stanley, Helba Huara, Cortez and Peggy, Sid Silvers and the Gertrude Hoffmann girls.

THE American Theater will open for the season of 1928-1929 early in October, Manager Paul Beisman announced yesterday. A complete list of attractions booked for the fall and winter will be made public shortly. According to Mr. Beisman, the American's late start is due to improvement work that is going on at the Market street playhouse. It is being completely redecorated from dome to basement. New carpets and new draperies will be installed throughout the house and modern type electric fixtures will replace those used previously. New equipment will be installed back stage to facilitate the handling of the biggest theatrical productions sent on tour. It is said that when the American reopens it will compare favorably with the finest theaters now devoted to legitimate attractions in America.

As in past seasons, the American will present all productions sponsored by A. L. Erlanger, Florenz Ziegfeld, Charles B. Dillingham, George M. Cohan, George C. Tyler, John Golden, the New York Theater Guild, Vincent Youmans and a score of the younger independent producers. A number of the musical and dramatic hits of last season in New York are on the American's list.

IT is a point of frequent comment that entertainers of the most lowly professional origin have risen to the top and stayed there; that, indeed, today, the real top-notchers have come from the saloon, beer garden and burlesque halls. These people seem to have learned something about the show business that the newer generation of troupers—toe dancers, black-bottomers and jazz musicians—does not. And Gene Greene, who for thirty-odd years has been shouting syncopated ditties at the public, was interviewed in his dressing room at the St. Louis Theater last week in an attempt to find out just what this something is.

It's very simple. "The audience is always right," Gene explained. "If the first song don't wow 'em, sing 'em something else, and if that doesn't go, and they are still there, keep right on fishing until you find out what they do like. A performer has to work his audience."

This is refreshing. The average vaudevillian, if his act doesn't get over, stamps off stage with wrathful eyes. "I guess we're too good for them," says he. Not so Gene Greene. Not so Bob Murphy, master of ceremonies at the St. Louis, who back in the good old, bad old, booze old days, was "Three-Finger" Murphy of the Falstaff here in St. Louis, blatting out "O For the Life of a Fireman" or perhaps "There's a Ring Around the Moon."

"One think saloon singing did for a man," Murphy said. "It certainly knocked the temperament out of him. See that scar! Nobody that worked the saloons ever got the idea that he was good. He had to be good or get out."

Were the audiences of those times any easier to amuse than those of today. A commonly held theory is that they were. Not at all. "Audiences are audiences. They are just the same now—meaning no disrespect to prohibition—as they ever were—and there is absolutely no figuring them until you get out in front of them to work." This according to the Messrs. Greene and Murphy, who ought to know.

ARTHUR EDWIN KROWS in his newly published book, "Play Writing for Profit," stresses the importance of making dialect authentic. Most of it lacks reality he declares, although the average new playwright devotes more attention and care to dialect conversations than he does to plot construction. 'Care is important, of course," he continues, "but the effort is usually spent in polishing degrees of sound and interpolating what are believed to be characteristic phrases, instead of in studying the underlying habits of mind. Out of this essentially superficial method have come in large measure the caricature stage Frenchmen that most of America believes true to life, but that competent testimony declares—and my own personal observation attests—never have been seen on the boulevards of Paris. So also with the "silly ass" stage Englishman, that owes so much to the elder Sothern's 'Lord Dundreary,' together with the strange figure that has avenged it, the stage Yankee, an example of which I viewed not so long ago at a theater in London, where, portrayed by Laddie Cliff, who really knew better, he energetically chewed gum, shambled his loose-jointed way around the stage, spat, and loudly boasted with a hollow twang, that he was a 'hundred per cent American.'

"Mispronunciation of words is not the real secret of dialect at all. It is the choice and arrangement of words dictated by a special viewpoint. As a matter of fact, in the best-written English dialects, the individual words are spelled as correctly as they would be in an essay by Addison. Where here are strange words they are mostly those that do not normally belong to the standard language; they are not perversions. The Irishman who refers to an omadhaun, a shilleleh, a colleen and an acushla machree, a Scotsman who talks of a braw mist, of a laverock, and a fissenless blatherskite—each is using good words that belong to his own people, words that have the same character to the ears of the ordinary theatergoer as the foreign phrases relied on by an immigrant from Athens to New York to carry him across the gaps in a strange tongue.

"It is just that. The immigrant carries himself across the gaps; but the native, to whom these interjected words are literally Greek, has to make other connections. So where the dialect is necessarily very heavy in strange words, the dramatist must make sure that there is enough of the sense in the intelligible parts to convey his meaning. The words of the finely done coster monologues of Albert Chevalier, during his tours in American vaudeville, were largely meaningless to his audiences; but their emotion was unmistakable—notably that of his celebrated offering, "Old Dutch," that always won round after round of hearty applause. Some persons were disappointed in Graham Moffat's richly humorous "Bunty Pulls the Strings," in "A Scrape o' the Pen," and in the older "Bonnie Briar Bush," because they were unable to understand much of the Scotch dialect. Most of those persons no doubt have found definitions by this time and the next Scotch play will offer them no mysterious burrs—but that, I am sorry to admit because I liked them all, does not help those mentioned.

"The reliance is to be placed upon choice of words and construction of sentences. Kipling is a master of this sort of thing—as he is in so many other respects. His collections of tales from all parts of the world are rich in suggestion to the dramatist who wants to learn the real nature of dialect. To be found in his pages are whole stretches of dialogue between Englishmen and natives in India where scarcely a word is mispronounced; and yet both are strictly in character. There is also there, somewhere that I cannot readily recall, a report written by a German, that would be a superb illustration if I could only find it. Not that Kipling does not also rely upon mispronounced words. His soldiers three," for instance, mangle the King's English with a thoroughness to be envied in real life; but underlying in every case, is the infinitely more important individual point of view. Mispronunciations have a large place, of course. The point is just not to exaggerate their importance.

"Montague Glass completely eschewed the broad methods of Jewish comedians in drawing his famous Potash and Perlmutter. The speeches are not mispronounced words—with exceptions of names here and there—but expressions of character plus misplaced words. So one partner will say to the other, for instance, 'No, a thousand dollars I ain't got it, Mawruss.' Harris Dickson's Negro stories offer many other examples of characteristic racial expression without strange misspellings. The Indians of James Fenimore Cooper do not mispronounce their words, and yet there is no difficulty in separating their manner of speech from that of the white men concerned. For those who contend that Cooper's Indians, as he drew them, never really existed, I refer instead to the Indians of Francis Parkman, those being historically true."

OPERA STAR IN REVUE

Says Musical Comedy Gives His Personality a Chance.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—Michael Bohnen, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera of New York and the State Opera of Berlin, has become a musical comedy star. Night after night he impersonates the role of Casanova in a musical revue, not only because he is paid well, but chiefly because he finds the opera too stilted and rigid to permit of unfolding his whole ability as an actor.

"All of us, who are moving within the rigid circle of operatic forms, regulations, and traditions, find ourselves fettered in a manner that we must either go to pieces slowly but surely or else lose our individuality," he confided. "That's why I am now spending my time on a different kind of stage. In the musical revue, everybody tries to give something of his own personality, to widen the possibilities of dramatic expression."

Camels Replace Trains in China.

PEKIN, Sept. 15.—Camels have come into their own again this summer as freight caravans. When the Northern troops withdrew into Manchuria they took with them thousands of freight and passenger cars and hundreds of locomotives. Since then camel dealers have been swamped with camel orders which they have been unable to supply. Camel drivers are rolling in wealth with earnings often touching 75 cents daily. The return of Roy Chapman Andrews' expedition from Central Asia lured a crowd of camel buyers who wanted to bid for the 112 camels used on the trip.

Behind the Screens

young Louis XIV. The story opens with the birth of the heir to the throne of France, and carries through the years of his boyhood to the early period of his rulership. In the second part of the picture D'Artagnan and his three faithful friends, Athos, Porthos and Aramis, grown older but still adventuresome, wield their swords in defense of the young king as loyally as they served his father.

With the addition of Arnold Kent and Arthur Housman the cast of Paramount's Emil Jannings starring vehicle, "Sins of the Fathers" has been completed. This cast composed of Jannings, Ruth Chatterton, Barry Norton, Zasu Pitts, Matthew Betz, Jean Arthur, Jack Luden, Kent and Housman brings together one of the most imposing arrays of talent ever assembled in Hollywood for one picture. Ludwig Berger is directing.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—It appears the American Negro is about to sing and dance his way into a place of importance in the movies.

Heretofore producers have fought shy of descriptions of modern Negro life in this country, preferring to go to the polar regions and film the life of the Eskimo, or make an elephant picture in Siam when they wanted something unusual. But the advent of the talking screen has caused them to reconsider; for where is there a tribe of human beings so beautifully adapted to sound-picture treatment as the American Negro, with his banjo, his "blues," his spirituals and his dialect?

King Vidor, who for three years has been trying to inoculate producers with his enthusiasm for an all-Negro picture, has finally won his point because those who were unable to see anything interesting in the flickering of silent Negroes on a screen could understand at once the popular appeal of the Negro in his musical moments.

Negro Epic?

So the man who made "The Big Parade" will go South soon in search of typical Southern Negroes and typical Southern locations for his new picture, which he says will not be a "Negro problem" picture, nor a picture about wealthy and educated Negroes, nor anything at all about white people. He will go about picturing the interesting and likable qualities of the Negro just as he would go about filming peasant life in France, or the life of villagers in Sweden. And because music means so much in the life of the Negro the picture will be full of song and rhythm.

Progress on Fox Theater.

Bases for the marble columns which will extend around the entire auditorium of the new Fox Theater at Grand and Washington boulevards are now set in place and work has already begun on the erection of these columns. Behind these, the walls, which are being covered with plaster and terra-cotta models in Hindu style, are almost one-third completed and plaster work above the proscenium arch has also started.

The interior of St. Louis' newest picture theater is now a great mass of scaffolding as hundreds of workmen continue operations on the plastering work. Dressing rooms are being completed backstage and the lobby, on the Grand boulevard entrance, is fast assuming its proportions.

New Chain Scheme

Radio Productions, Inc., has been formed for staging of features before the microphone. It plans to put its gala presentations into sound films, so that after first hearing over a chain of stations music and voices of artists will be available for independent broadcasters. The performances also will be filmed.

These statements were made at a luncheon in New York at which the speakers were Adolph F. Linden, president of the American Broadcasting Co., which has a Pacific Coast chain, and Charles A. Coats, president of Radio Productions, Inc.

Linden said that his Pacific Coast stations would get the chain features like those to which the East, Middle West and the South are accustomed, with fine artists participating and on occasions great artists from Chicago and New York. His chain includes KJR, Seattle; KGA, Spokane; KEX, Portland; KYA, San Francisco, and KMTR, Los Angeles.

How to Improve Selectivity.

The most convenient way to obtain greater selectivity in a set is to use a shorter antenna or place a .00025 mfd. fixed condenser in series with the lead-in.

PUBLIX
TO THE PEOPLE OF ST. LOUIS
Week-in and week-out Skouras entertainment has been presented under the policy of the "best in everything!" This year added costs of sound pictures . . . salary increases and additional employes in all union crafts . . . and general overhead advances made it necessary for us either to curtail our programs or to slightly increase our admission price! We felt you would want us to retain our present features rather than to curtail any part of our program. Accordingly, we decided upon the following slight increase—
New Scale of Prices:
AMBASSADOR THEATER
Saturday
50 cents to 1 p. m.
65 cents to 6 p. m.
75 cents after 6 p. m.
Sunday
65 cents to 2 p. m.
75 cents after 2 p. m.
Weekdays
35 cents to 1 p. m.
50 cents to 6 p. m.
75 cents after 6 p. m.
MISSOURI THEATER
Saturday
50 cents to 6 p. m.
75 cents after 6 p. m.
Sunday
65 cents to 3 p. m.
75 cents after 3 p. m.
Weekdays
35 cents to 6:30 p. m.
75 cents after 6:30 p. m.
The price change really amounts to a 10c increase evenings and after a stipulated hour Sundays.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ST. LOUIS!

Skouras entertainment at the Ambassador and Missouri Theatres has been presented under a policy of "the best in everything." Week in and week out, constant effort is directed toward providing shows that consistently are the best to be seen in any theatre in America.

If the Ambassador and Missouri Theatres have achieved their goal of truly superior entertainment, full credit is due the people of St. Louis, because the enthusiastic support of the public has made possible anything that has been accomplished.

This year a serious problem presented itself—the alternative of an increase in prices, or the curtailment of programs! An increase is necessary if the entertainment standards of the past are to be maintained, due to added costs in connection with sound and talking pictures . . . . to salary increases and additional employees in all union crafts . . . . and to general advances in all overhead.

In analyzing the situation, the management asked itself the question—"What would the PUBLIC have us do; what would the PUBLIC do if it were in charge of the theatres?" And, thinking the matter out in this manner, a decision was reached!

We decided upon a slight increase in admission prices, effective Saturday!

We decided to secure and book the greatest lineup of super-film attractions in the history of either theatre!

We decided to retain the stage shows that have made both the Ambassador and Missouri famous!

We decided to retain all the favorites whom you enjoy each week... Ed Lowry, Dave Silverman and Stuart Barrie at the Ambassador; Frank Fay, Leonid Leonardi and Milton Slosser at the Missouri!

We decided to maintain the standards of the past at all costs and to redouble our efforts to constantly improve in every possible way Ambassador and Missouri entertainment.

DUTCH PRINCESS ENJOYS COLLEGE LIFE

She Will Be "Pilloried" by Schoolmates When She Announces Engagement.

By the Associated Press.

LEYDEN, Holland, Sept. 15.—No matter whom Princess Juliana, heiress to the throne of the Netherlands, may decide to marry, she will be "pilloried" upon the announcement of her engagement.

That is, her name and that of her fiance will be stuck up on a post, nicknamed the "Pillar of Dishonor," in the Women Students Club of Leyden University. Juliana will not be spared the "disgrace."

The Dutch Crown Princess probably will look back upon her college days as the happiest of her life. She enjoys more freedom at Leyden than she possibly can indulge in at the royal castle at The Hague, where a rigid court atmosphere prevails. How rigid these restrictions are may be judged from the remark the 19-year-old Princess made when told she could matriculate at Leyden. "Fine, then I can wear high heels."

At Leyden, everything possible is done to permit her to live a carefree life. To be sure, a secret service man shadows her unobtrusively. And at her villa at Kattwyk on the North Sea, about 10 miles from Leyden, the Princess and four girl friends who live with her are more than adequately chaperoned by ladies in waiting. But aside from this Juliana leads the life of an ordinary college girl.

Just Another Freshman.

When the Crown Princess entered Leyden a year ago she stated that she wished to be treated just like any other student. Hence, when she joined the Women Students' Club she did what is customary for all freshmen to do—called on the members of the Executive Committee at their various boarding houses.

"My daughter offered to reverse the process and call on the Princess," the mother of one of them said, "but she would not have it. She came as simply and modestly and, I may add, as bashfully as any new student."

Like any other freshman, she sat on the floor whenever there weren't enough seats during a lecture or some other club function.

The only concession made to her position is the fact that all the classes which she attends are held in the same classroom. It is located on the second floor of the main hall, and can be reached only via an open staircase. "This makes it easy for the secret service to check up on everybody who enters and leaves the lecture hall," the head janitor explained.

Studies Geology and Law.

Princess Juliana's studies comprise international and public law, Dutch history, Dutch literature, French, German and theology. As Holland has a State church, it was felt desirable that the Princess study theological lore, especially church history. One of her professors described her as "standing half way between the Orthodox and the modernist schools of Dutch Protestant theology."

As to the range of her readings, the professor said:

"The Princess reads up on the most varied topics. She is particularly fond of literature, especially of contemporaneous writers, but also studies with interest such works as Trotzky's book on the Russian revolution. Her comment on it was, 'Trotzky is certainly a man of strong views.'"

Each year the freshmen members of the club compete in writing a class song. Juliana entered the contest with 120 girls. Her song was accepted as the best. "We had no idea that the Princess competed," a member of the song jury told the correspondent. "The authors' names were contained in sealed envelopes which were opened only after the award had been made."

A Violinist and Painter.

Like her father, she is musical. She plays the violin and attends the local concerts regularly. From her mother she has inherited a certain talent for painting.

Ice skating is about the only outdoor sport of which Princess Juliana is fond. Her mother tried in vain to interest her in horseback riding. She likes camping, however, and during the summer often spends the weekend at Apeldoorn where she and her friends have a tent. She travels there in the ordinary interurban omnibus.

Lipsticks and rouge are unknown quantities to this healthy, buxom Dutch lass. Whether she would prefer bobbed hair and shorter skirts than her mother permits has not been disclosed.

The four young women who share the villa at Katwyk with her are two daughters of the Rev. Mr. Michelin of The Hague, a French Huguenot preacher, Miss De Brauw, whose father is dean of the Dutch barristers, and Miss Rosenboom, daughter of a former Governor-General of the Dutch East Indies. This quintet is so congenial that all Katwyk speaks of them as the "Jolly Sea Star," with the image of a five-pointed star-fish in mind.

Active in Army at 107.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 15.—One hundred per cent Argentine-Indian and 107 years old, Senor Jose Cruz Gomez is still on active army service or liable to be called up in case of emergency. Gomez is perfectly fit physically and mentally to serve the Argentine colors. He appears to be only 50 years of age, but has served under commanders whose swords have rusted these many years, but he is still sound in limb.

China to Take Census.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 15.—China's unnumbered millions are to be counted. The Nationalist Government has issued orders to the provincial Governments to prepare immediately for the taking of a census of the country. It is hoped to complete the census within a year. Estimates of population range all the way from 400,000,000 to 600,000,000.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

This is a simple method that makes blackheads go as if by magic. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub briskly over the affected parts, and in two minutes, you will find every blackhead dissolved away entirely.

See Freckles Go —Sunburn, Too

Freckles or discoloring to which delicate skins are subject when exposed to wind or sun, may readily be removed by using pure mercolized wax. Get an ounce at any drug store and apply nightly, like a cold cream. Little skin particles come off each day, until the entire surface has been peeled off. Freckles, tan, sunburn, moth patches, blackheads, etc., go in just a few days and skin is purged of all impurities. The under skin then revealed is spotlessly clear, smooth and beautiful, and entire face looks years younger. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and restore facial contour, use as an astringent 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

Large Red Pimples Itched And Burned Cuticura Healed

"My face started itching terribly and pimples broke out in different places. They were large and red, and after a time became hard and festered and scaled over, causing my face to be terribly sore. The pimples itched badly and when I scratched them they would burn. The trouble lasted about three months.

"I used different skin preparations but none of them seemed to do any good. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Mary Gregory, 2407 N. Tremont St., Kansas City, Kans.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for daily toilet purposes. Touch pimples and itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water.

Auto-Intoxication

Is largely the result of stored-up toxic poisons that seep into and pollute the blood caused by constipation. Vital organs and nerve cells, bathed in this tainted stream, fail to function normally. Headaches, Nervousness, Debility, Dull Lethargy, are among the symptoms we recognize so well. Clean out that impacted colon—eliminate the toxic poisons from the system with the easy-to-take, nongriping, candylike pink "LINKS." Especially adapted for children.

Four-Wheel Drive Car Is Planned

Auto Industry Leaders to Attend European Salons.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 15.—Announcement that a four-wheel drive passenger car will soon make its appearance in the American market and the sailing of several leaders in the industry for Europe to survey the export market and observe the trend of foreign design were the week's developments in the automotive world.

Alvan MacAuley, president of the Packard Motor Car Co.; Charles W. Nash, president of Nash Motors, and John N. Willys, of Willys-Overland, are now crossing the Atlantic. Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, and Paul V. Hoffman, vice president in charge of sales of Studebaker Corporation, have announced their intention of going abroad.

The magnet that's drawing American automobile heads to Europe is the foreign automobile shows. The Paris show is to be held from Oct. 4 to 14 and the Olympia display from Oct. 11 to 20.

While in Europe the leaders in America's automobile industry hope to develop better trade relations, establish better European connections and gather data on foreign styles and designs.

That many American automobile manufacturers believe the modern trade problem is to increase total markets rather than to fight over the shares in existing markets is one inference drawn from the sailing of the automobile heads for European shows. This is particularly true in motor transportation which is a young business in most corners of the world.

That automobile exports are increasing is shown in a report issued by the American Automobile (overseas edition). Passenger automobiles and motor trucks to the number of 260,072, valued at $184,467,815, were exported from the United States in the first six months of 1928 the American Automobile says. This is 44,837 more than were exported in the first six months of 1927. Of the 1928 exports, 200,497 were passenger cars and 59,575 were trucks.

More than 1,344,000 tires (pneumatic and solid) were exported in the first six months of 1928. This represents a drop of 225,072 compared with the same period last year.

Three main types of cars are being displayed in Europe at the present time. These are classified as the "baby" four-cylinder car of seven to nine horsepower, the "family" four-cylinder car of 12 to 14 horsepower, and the light six-cylinder car of 15 to 20 horsepower.

Cheapness and low cost of tax and upkeep explains the popularity of the "baby" type. The price ranges from $660 to $975.

The so-called "family" car, a four-cylinder automobile, is popular with men making about $2500 a year. They sell from $975 to $1220.

French manufacturers are just beginning to take up in earnest the making of light six cylinder cars. In many cases the same chassis is used for the four cylinder model and the light six. The prices usually run from $1460 to $2685 for the light six.

British Seek to Set New Air Mark

LONDON, Sept. 15.—What is claimed to be the fastest flying machine ever designed is completing secret tests at Felixstowe. It is the Supermarine S-5, built to beat the 218-mile-an-hour record now held by Italy. It is hoped that the British speed plane will fly 360 miles an hour or six miles a minute.

Flight Lieut. D'Arcy Greig, pilot of the Supermarine S-5, has been in strict training for some weeks, the training including a special diet and constant work on the fastest seaplanes at ever-increasing speeds. An official attempt at a record will be made at Calshot in about a month.

The S-5 is so small she was brought to Felixstowe on a motor truck. She is said to be even more streamlined than Schneider Cup machines.

Air Travel Station Opened in Chicago

An air travel bureau, union station and consolidated ticket office for airplane passengers was established in the Palmer House yesterday as the first of its kind in the United States, the Chicago Air Traffic Association announces.

The bureau offers to airplane passengers the same service as a union station and ticket office does to railway passengers. Air schedules throughout the country will be prepared and ticket arrangements made so an airplane passenger can purchase his ticket here for any destination in the country.

Dates for Auto Shows Announced

New York Opening Set for Jan. 5—Chicago, Jan. 26.

Preliminary work for next winter's national automobile shows was begun the past week when Manager S. A. Miles issued diagrams, rules and application blanks for space to exhibitors and prospective exhibitors of cars, accessories and parts.

Car spaces at the New York and Chicago salons will be much larger than formerly, permitting makers to show their complete lines. An entirely new plan of decorating the shows has been decided upon, outshining any previous attempt in this direction.

Space allotment to exhibitors will take place in New York Oct. 4. Virtually all the successful features of last year's shows will be retained. Monday and Tuesday at both the New York and Chicago shows will be known as Trade Days, on which, from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m., the trade will be admitted as heretofore. The shop equipment section will be continued. To this section the trade only will be admitted up to 5 p. m. daily. Thereafter it will be open to the public.

Dates for the New York show in Grand Central Palace are Jan. 5 to 12, and the Chicago event will be held in the Coliseum Jan. 26 to Feb. 2. Both shows are conducted under the auspices of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and with the co-operation of the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association.

S. A. E. to Study Aircraft Lighting

Adequate and proper lighting equipment on an airplane is an important feature of the design of commercial aircraft that has a direct bearing on their safe operation in flying to avoid collision and in landing to avoid danger of crackups. For this reason a suggestion has been received by the Society of Automotive Engineers that a careful study be made of this subject with a view to establishing standardization of airplane lighting equipment and its arrangement on the plane.

Preliminary tests are in progress by L. E. Lighton, a member of the standards committee, on commercial airplanes that are being built, with the intention of placing the resulting data in the hands of a subdivision that will probably be organized.

It is felt that, with the rapid progress made within the last two or three years in the design and operation of commercial aircraft, the formulation of definite standards for aircraft lighting has now become a necessity. The establishing of definite sound practice in airplane lighting will avoid, in a very large measure at least, an unnecessary variety of systems of lighting arrangement that would be dangerous in the operation of aircraft traffic.

Chicago to Hold Aero Show Dec. 1

Chicago will hold an aeronautical show in the historic Coliseum the week of Dec. 1. The event is timed to precede the international air conference at Washington, Dec. 12, 13 and 14, and the 40 representatives of foreign air ministers have been invited.

Crossed Eyes Taboo.

It is reported that persons with crossed eyes cannot drive automobiles in Spain.

Three Great Lake States Offer Rare Motor Touring

Concrete Highways Through Lake and Forest Resort Country, Are the Boast of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

This touring story was prepared by the American Motorist, and is used through the courtesy of the American Automobile Association, whose official publication it is.

THE big, sprawling North Country fanning out from Chicago to Canada and known as the Great Lakes area, leads all the world in summer acreage. Its ozone scoffs attempts at comparison. Its wild temperament baffles every project of cultivation that would civilize it; yet the loveliness of its vast and shaggy tracts nowhere exacts the labors of Ulysses in exploring it. It comprises the three huge states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. It contains the three inland seas of Superior, Michigan and Huron, whose prodigious girth embraces 80,000 square miles of the purest and most exhilirating water known. Past the virtues of schooling, it knows by heart the three R's—Retreat, Relaxation, Resplendence.

Retreat is assured among 22,000 lakes, scattered from end to end of this rural region, reflecting every imaginable type of summer background from deep, umbrageous elm shade to stiff, majestic resinous walls of conifers. Tall forests curtain every encampment in privacy. The very protection of unpeopled distance makes for complete retirement. Towns are small and widely spaced and themselves often clothed in cloistered sufficiency, some in downright beauty.

Relaxation, born not of rugged, lusty mountains, but of cool dells and mystic tenderness, calls in the language of unfenced hiking. Swathing sandmarges invite siesta under tempered sunshine. Tall reeds cradle a lazy fishing boat. Tonic breathes from pine and balsam. An exciting quarrel with bass or pike discharges the mind of worries. Swimming remakes the blood.

Resplendence rides the hills, studs the brook-filled gullies, gems the southern pastures with daisies and moccasins and iris, banks the rock-ribbed northern stretches in wild rose and blackberries, and carpets it with springy pine needles. Willow and elm and maple and oak disport below the iron range sweeping east and west. Beyond it belong the lady tree, the slender birch, and those giants of the earth, the massive white pine and towering Douglas fir. Rustic patterns typify a majority of the uncountable resort cottages—log houses, to a large extent, with the bark still on them. Beauty blooming in earth and sky never can escape when mirrors catch the picture everywhere. Most gorgeous of all are the rainbow rocks of shore and inland fringing the Great Lakes—scarlet and ruby red and yellow as butter.

Good and safe roads follow those troublous times of early spring when thaws wreak havoc with the best highways here, where frosts are frosts, and April showers are blizzards. By mid-May the natural roads are smiling under the ministrations of the masseur; gravel ways are youthful cheeks redeemed by plastic surgery. Concrete highways are the boast of Michigan, the new dispensation in Wisconsin, the increasing order of Minnesota. Hundreds of miles in the backwoods of Minnesota, where deer and bears stalk unchallenged, sport their concrete and their bitulithic. The welcome of a proud wilderness is in its roads.

The best summer trek of Minnesota starts from the Twin Cities, besides the waters of Minnetonka, heading northwestward over concrete into such an unending concourse of small lakes hidden in verdure that originality in names has long since been abandoned. Yet each silver sheet has its unfailing resort—a cottage or two or six or twelve, with a central dining room usually, with fishing always. But it can not be denied that fishing improves with northward travel full to the international border. By a great arc eastward from Bemidji, plunging through the endless mazes of Superior National Forest—the peer of all the noble pine haunts—one achieves the ridged country of the celebrated "Iron Range," source of America's structural steel and center of a triangular district a hundred and fifty miles on each side, known as the Arrowhead, thrusting to Canada.

One edge of the barb follows along the crags and cliffs of Lake Superior, bridging roaring cascades teeming with trout. The other edge follows a great crooked river fashioned out of a necklace of unmatched lakes emptying at last into that stormy monster of all fresh-water oceans. In all this pri-

Europeans Planning Picture Road Signs

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—An international code of highway signs, in which pictures replace the conventional wording, is being worked out in Europe, according to Pyke Johnson of Washington, representative of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

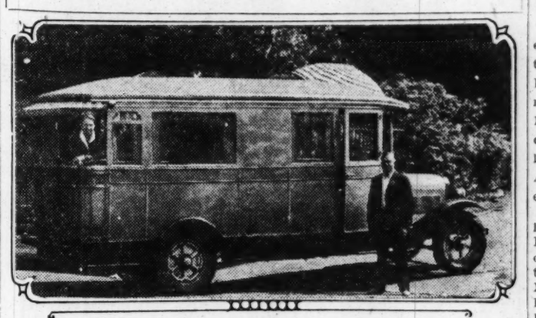
Johnson said that a number of the European nations have already adopted the pictorial road signs instead of symbols to represent curves, hills, railroads crossings and bridges, a picture is painted on the sign board.

The system, he said has been so developed that the information on the sign is intelligible instantly, no matter what language the driver speaks nor what conventional warning signs are in vogue in his native country.

Against Victimizing.

A nation-wide campaign is to be launched by American motor clubs to stamp out the practice of victimizing the motorist involved in an accident resulting in personal injury and the ambulance chaser "taking his cut" of the unfair settlements that he forces on behalf of the injured person in such a mishap. This is a primary step in calling a halt to the illegitimate activities of the "ambulance chaser," who derives his name from the dispatch with which he appears on the accident scene.

PALATIAL HOME ON WHEELS



ALL the comforts of home are available in the portable palace, built on a one-ton Graham Brothers truck chassis. Beds are made from longitudinal seats in the rear. The center part contains food and clothing cabinets, and space is provided behind the driving compartment for a dining table, ice box, stove and sink.

Dealers' Bowling League Playing

The St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Bowling League, with eight teams, has been reorganized, with R. R. Andrews, metropolitan sales manager of the Hudson Frampton Motor Car Co., as treasurer, the only officer so far named. The league will play at the new Vescovo Alleys, 6655 Delmar boulevard, every Tuesday evening.

The following teams compose the league: Willys-Overland, Inc., H. Boyer, captain; Cadillac, J. Law, captain; Auburn, H. Boyer, captain; Weber Implement & Auto, Mike King, captain; Hudson-Frampton, Jack Sorrells, captain; Flint Chevrolet, A. H. Hoffman, captain, and Mississippi Valley, J. Mathers, captain.

Taxis for China.

A plan has been launched to operate a fleet of 100 taxicabs on the crowded streets of Shanghai, China. The promoters say that the motor vehicles will eventually drive the rickshaws from the city streets.

BROCKMAN MAKES PLEA FOR SAFETY

Dealers' Chief Requests Car Firms to Help Combat Accidents.

Startling increases in the number of automobile accidents resulting in fatalities has caused concern in the automobile industry. Steps are being taken not only to bring about more care among automobile dealers, salesmen and mechanics in driving cars, but to induce them to pass on the propaganda of carefulness and safety to the automobile owners whom they contact.

Realizing that members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and their employes owe it to the public to help the safety program and in safety propaganda, Col. Phil. H. Brockman, as president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, has just issued to all automobile dealers in St. Louis the following letter. In addition he has mailed to every one of his own employes, to their homes, a letter requesting their co-operation in urging greater driving care by owners of automobiles:

"All Automobile Dealers:

"You must have read of the large increase in automobile fatalities in St. Louis.

"Every newspaper tells of serious automobile accidents where one or more lives were lost. This condition is very serious and we as automobile dealers should realize that unless this condition is remedied, public sentiment will demand and secure drastic automobile legislation which cannot help but affect our business.

"What are we going to do about it? May I suggest that you immediately take up with your entire organization this serious situation, requesting each and every employe to broadcast, teach and practice safety? Have everyone in your employ who drives an automobile obtain a copy of our city ordinances covering traffic laws, requesting that they read them and follow them and teach them to customers.

"Impress upon your mechanics the importance of doing good work, particularly on brake adjustments, steering assemblies, tie rods, and see that when wheels are removed cotter keys are properly installed.

"This likwise should be taken up with those in charge of your used car department.

"Get the message over to all of them that one of these automobiles on which they do poor mechanical work might kill or injure someone who is close and dear to them.

"We as automobile dealers owe much to the community, particularly in the saving of life, limb and property. May I also suggest that you think out some plan of getting a message over to each and every one of your owners asking their co-operation in driving cautiously and carefully? Remember the old maxim, "united we stand and divided we fall."

The St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association for eight years has been active in financially supporting the St. Louis Safety Council and its members and officers have taken active part in its work. Col. Brockman now is a vice president of the St. Louis Safety Council and Maj. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, recently finished a two-year term as president of the Safety Council.

Dodge Shipments For August Show 43 Per Ceut Gain

August shipments by Dodge Brothers from the plants in the United States and Canada, in both the passenger car and the truck and motor coach divisions, showed an increase of approximately 43 per cent over July. The August shipments were exceeded in only one month in 1928, March. They were greater than any 30-day period during the first eight months of 1927.

Shipments of both passenger cars and trucks are running heavy. Dodge Brothers entered September with large banks of carry-over orders in all divisions and the flow of orders from dealers shows no let up.

August was also a great export month. Shipments for the 30-day period were the heaviest this year. Truck export shipments were the greatest in the entire history of the corporation. August export showed better than 57 per cent increase over the same month last year while export business for the first eight months of 1928 shows a gain of approximately 33 per cent over the same period last year.

Olds Output High

Olds Motor Works is working on the largest September production schedule in its history, factory officials announce. The number of cars produced this month will be nearly as many as were produced during the peak months last spring.

This high September production follows consecutive months during which Oldsmobile has broken all previous records. More Oldsmobiles were shipped in August, 1928, than in any previous August, official report, and on Aug. 31 all past records for a single day's shipment were broken when 670 Oldsmobiles left the factory.

Production, shipment and retail sales from January to date are far in excess of any previous figures for an entire year, the factory announces.

CROSS-NATION BUS-AIRPLANE RELAY NOW

Merger Combines Transport Firms Serving 8000 Miles of Roads.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 15.—New York to Los Angeles via the "covered gas wagon."

Those ponderous motor busses, the closest modern relative of the old fashioned prairie schooner which once formed the sole connecting link between East and West, will join the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards by road under a new trans-continental bus system formed here recently by the presidents of four large independent bus line companies.

Walter A. Nisun, Detroit, president of the Ni-Sun Bus and Air transportation, and by air-rail mergers, are also planning a bus-airplane relay to the coast.

The new system will serve approximately 8000 miles of territory.

It is also expected that out of the present plan will come a gigantic financial merger of the four companies.

Under the agreement a passenger will be able to purchase a ticket in New York for Los Angeles and make the trip without interruption over the successive lines. Stop-over privileges will also be permitted at designated points.

The four lines travel approximately 22,000 miles daily over 4000 miles of roads. By means of existing agreements with connecting lines the network will offer transportation East to Boston, as far South as Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex., and West to the coast. Washington, Philadelphia, Detroit and Baltimore will be served by connecting lines.

The air service to supplement the bus transportation will start within the next few weeks when the Ni-Sun company puts four six-passenger planes into operation between Kansas City and St. Louis. Eventually the air service will be extended.

Purple Swan—New York to Chicago.

Ni-Sun lines—Detroit to Kansas City.

Paradox Lines—Kansas City to Los Angeles.

Rapid Transit Lines—Kansas City to Tulsa.

Approxmately $2,000,000 is invested in the four companies.

Theft Insurance on Stutz Cars Reduced

Automobile theft rates for 1928, recently promulgated by the National Automobile Underwriters' Conference, provides a drastic reduction in the theft rate on Stutz cars. In many cases rates were reduced 70 per cent and now give Stutz owners the lowest theft rate of any car in the country, according to E. R. Parker, general sales manager for Stutz.

In the Eastern states, in the highest rated territories, the 1927 rate was cut from $1.10 to $0.30 per $100. This extraordinary reduction will mean a saving to the Stutz owner in these territories of $28 in theft insurance premium.

"When Stutz adopted the Fedco system of automobile theft prevention and detection, July 1, 1926," says Parker, "it announced to the public that this protection, which it gives gratis to its car owners, would result in greatly reducing the theft hazard on Stutz cars. The experience for the first year and a half has been remarkable and is partly reflected in this unprecedented reduction in theft rates."

Tuthill-Gardner Celebrates First Anniversary Here

The first anniversary of Tuthill-Gardner, Inc., Gardner distributer here, is being celebrated this month with a unique automobile sale during which purchasers of Gardner cars will be permitted to trade-in their old cars at a $500 valuation regardless of make or age.

Joseph Steinger is president of the firm, and George D. Tuthill is trensurer. Both of these men, while having held the Gardner distributor franchise here for the past year only, are experienced automobile men, and in the past 10 years have successfully merchandised several prominent makes of cars.

The Traffic Officer

If every car owner used Champion Spark Plugs there would be fewer traffic jams due to cars stalling.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sillimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

25-Story Garage Planned In Chicago Skyscraper

Series of 20 Hatchways Between Concrete Walls to Extend Height of Building and Will Hold 1080 Cars.

TESTS of a newly devised skyscraper garage, automatically operated, have been completed successfully, and such a garage, 25 stories high, will be built into the world's largest building, the new Chicago Tower, it is announced by Walter W. Alschlager, architect. The garage, invented by B. B. Balkema of Detroit, is designed specifically for parking automobiles in congested districts where building height is available but large floor area is not.

Plans for the garage in the Chicago Tower call for a series of 20 hatchways, extending 25 stories upward. Each hatchway will be formed between concrete walls. In these hatchways steel cages, each capable of holding the largest standard passenger automobile, will be placed on top of each other, between steel guides. Movements of the cages will be on the same principle as a belt conveyor. The tiers of steel cages in each pair of adjacent hatchways will operate simultaneously. The rotation of the cages will be controlled by means of hydraulic mechanism in the basement.

When one tier is raised the adjacent tier will be lowered. As a cage reaches the top of the hatchway of the tier which is being lifted, it will shut automatically and horizontally into the adjacent tier. At the same time, the cage at the bottom of the lowering tier will shunt into the tier which is being raised. The two adjacent tiers, containing some cages which are empty and some with automobiles, automatically rotate to a point where the load of both tiers balances evenly on the machinery in the basement.

No manual labor of any kind above the first floor is necessary or possible in this skyscraper garage. Operation of the tiers of cages up and down is controlled by a key, held by the owner of the parked car. When the key is inserted in the proper switch the series of cages begins to rotate until the cage corresponding with the key reaches the ground floor. The doors then open automatically and the car may be driven out.

An automobile in a cage at the top of the 25-story garage can be brought to the ground floor in 216 seconds.

Stiffelman Opens Main Chain Store At 812 Pine St.

Atlas Stores Co. to Specialize in Radio and Auto Goods.

The Atlas Stores Co., new in the chain store field here, specializing in radio, auto, accessory and electric equipment, opened its main store at 812 Pine street yesterday. The firm will occupy three stories and the basement. Jos. A. Stiffelman, a pioneer in the chain store field in St. Louis, is president and general manager of the concern. Branch stores are to be opened elsewhere in the city from time to time.

13 Firms Make Aero Motors; One Chairs

Thirteen firms in the United States are engaged in the manufacture of engines for airplanes and seaplanes. One concern specializes in wicker furniture for plane use. Propellers are made by 15 plants, radiators by eight, and pontoons by two. Metals are offered by 10 companies and woods and plywoods by another 10. The importance of ignition equipment is attested by the fact that 20 firms make a business of it. Recording devices and instruments of precision are produced by 19 makers.

New Altitude Record

E. K. Campbell of Moline, Ill., recently set a new altitude record for commercial planes, when he piloted a new cabin craft to a height of 24,000 feet. When he reached this altitude, he fainted, and the plane dropped 2000 feet before he recovered sufficiently to bring it under control.

FARGO TRUCK TO BE SOLD BY BROCKMAN

De Soto Distributer to Display 4 and 6 Cylinder Models.

Appointment of the De Luxe Motor Car Co., De Soto distributer here, as distributer of the new line of Fargo trucks was made the past week. Both the Fargo and the De Soto are Chrysler products. Negotiations for Fargo Motor Corp., a Chrysler division manufacturing the truck, were handled by L. F. Jalageas, district representative.

The new truck line will be available in both four and six-cylinder models, the former on a half ton chassis, the latter on a three-quarter ton chassis.

The four-cylinder half-ton model is priced at $545, factory list, while the six-cylinder three-quarter ton model will sell at $725, factory list. The latter model has an overall length of 179 inches, while the four-cyinder chassis is 171 inches long overall. Phil H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Motor Car Co., said yesterday that samples of the new trucks are now in transit from the factory and probably will be on display here this week.

For the first eight months of 1928 Essex Super Six was the choice of far more buyers in Metropolitan St. Louis than any other six-cylinder car sold.

Public acceptance is the true measure of value in automobiles. Month after month Essex Super Six maintains unapproached sales supremacy because for every important construction unit found in Essex, much higher-priced cars must be used for comparison.

In cars in the $3000 class roller tappet bearings are used—these are used in Essex. Likewise you will find in Essex, Timken tapered wheel bearings, worm and gear type steering, hard rubber steering wheel with steel core; five-frame cross members and four-wheel brakes of the same enclosed and protected type found on the costliest cars.

Come see the most important part of your Essex and the way it is built in this special chassis display. It will explain why Essex is the largest selling "Six" in the history of the industry.

The only Essex point in common with cars in its price field—is price. An examination of our Special Chassis Display will give you some astonishing and impressive comparisons that you will not forget. Essex quality, fine appearance and high manufacturing practice rightly classify it with those costly cars which use the best known fine car methods.

OHIO CITIES DEDICATE NEW AIRPORTS

Fifty-Acre Field at Defiance Has Three Runways.

Airport construction in Ohio is proceeding apace, according to reports which relate developments of this character all over the State. Labor day saw the dedication of two Ohio airports, at Youngstown and Defiance.

The affair at Youngstown was a reopening rather than an opening. Lansdowne Field there has been undergoing grading and leveling operations for some time in order to make the field acceptable to Clifford Ball, operator of the Cleveland-Pittsburg air mail line.

This route originally included Youngstown as a stop, but due to the poor condition of the field landings were discontinued there some time ago. This loss, together with several bad crashes at the field, resulted in agitation which finally secured action by the city government in removing some grave hazards and in smoothing the rough surface of the landing area.

The new Defiance airport is a 50-acre tract owned jointly by the city and the Simplex Aircraft Corporation, makers of the Simplex Red Arrow monoplane. The land is very flat and has three runways, one a 2400-foot east and west strip, the others diagonal and each 2000 feet long.

Gallipolis dedicated its new airport last week when a crowd of 10,000 attended ceremonies at the field, which is one mile east of the city, along the Ohio River. East Liverpool was another town to celebrate the acquisition of an airport recently.

Meanwhile, Dayton reports progress at Dayton Airport, a field of 210 acres, to be operated by the Johnson Flying Service of that city. The entire field is drained and will have macadam runways, one of which will be 6000 feet long, to provide for endurance hopoffs. Two large brick hangars, a supply building, power house water tower and a hotel are in course of construction on the prémises.

Marion, through the efforts of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, recently voted a bond issue to acquire 104 acres of land for an airport. One hundred and forty adjacent acres have also been optioned and may later be added to the port, upon which work is to start immediately.

A landing field is to be constructed at Mount Healthy, near Cincinnati, and Van Wert, finding its present field far too small, will take immediate steps to enlarge it.

Suggests Ways for Motorist to Keep Fom Getting Old

THE following hints are prescribed by the American Motorists' Association for motorists who desire to keep from growing old:

Always drive fast out of alleys.

Always race with locomotives to crossings. Engineers like it; it breaks the monotony of their jobs.

Always pass the car ahead on curves or turns. Don't use your horn, it may unnerve the other fellow and cause him to turn out too far.

Demand half the road—the middle half. Insist on your rights.

Never stop, look or listen at a railroad crossing. It consumes time.

Always lock your brakes when skidding. It makes the job more artistic.

Always pass cars on hills. It shows you have more power and you can turn out if you meet a car at the top.

Never look around when you back up. There is never anything behind you.

Drive confidently, just as though there were not 23,000,000 other cars in service.

At St. Louis Air Fields

THE Class B and C entrants in the transcontinental air derby provided a number of "grand stand finishes" at Lambert Field last Sunday morning. Seconds separated several of the racers as they swooped across the marker at the local control point.

A lively duel developed in the Class C race between Capt. C. D. B. Collyer in a Fairchild and Edward J. Brooks in a Fokker. With Bob Cantwell taking the lead in Class C, Collyer and Brooks apparently decided to fight it out for second money all the way across the continent. Brooks beat Collyer here by 30 seconds. During the 30-minute halt, the two contestants "kidded" each other a bit, to the amusement of an admiring group. Collyer got to Kansas City a minute before Brooks, evening the score. The duel continued merrily on to Los Angeles, where Collyer, arriving seven minutes behind Cantwell, crossed the finish line a minute ahead of Brooks.

"Bud" Gurney Gets New Job.

"Bud" Gurney has been promoted to the position of "manager of operations" for the Robertson Aircraft Corporation. The position is a new one and was made necessary by the expansion of Robertson Aircraft activities. In his new job, "Bud" will spend most of his time on the ground supervising the flying end of the mail and passenger service. He will be available for special flying duty, however, and, no doubt, will find a number of excuses for taking time in the air.

To Help in Mapping River.

One of Gurney's first "special assignments" will be piloting a photographer of the Aerial Surveys, Inc., of Cleveland, on aerial survey down the Mississippi River from the mouth of the Missouri above St. Louis to the mouth of the Ohio at Cairo. Bud plans to use one of the Robertson's company's whirlwind jobs, and will fly at an altitude of 14,500 feet while the pictures making the survey are being taken. The survey wil cover about 150 miles and will be completed in two weeks, weather permitting. The survey is on a War Department contract.

Gurney made a similar survey of the Missouri River two years ago. On that trip Bud was forced to slip his plane from an altitude of 5000 feet to the ground when it caught fire. Bud got away with it and, in addition to saving himself and the photographer, they were able to salvage most of the expensive photographic equipment.

Night Classes for Mechanics.

Night classes for airplane mechanics will be started at Parks Airport, Oct. 1. The Parks organization now has more than 70 "day" students in its mechanics school, but has contracted to supply 200 trained workers for local airplane companies, so that it was decided to inaugurate the night classes. The course includes instruction on motors, wings, fuselage construction, welding and metal working.

Parks "Air College" has more than 200 flying students and has sent a number of promising pilots into the commercial field.

Air Survey to Be Made.

The Von Hoffman Aircraft Corporation also received a photo contract last week from the Aerial Surveys Co. It covers certain sections of St. Louis and vicinity, and is being made from a Ryan brougham, piloted by Linton Roberts.

Pilots Forced Out of Race.

Dan Robertson and "Bud" Gilley, test pilots for the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co., returned from the "wars" last week. Both were forced out of the Class A transcontinental race. Dan had a narrow escape over Indiana when the motor of his Curtiss-Robin failed and the ship caught fire. The flames were blown out when Dan slipped the ship to earth, and a new motor is being installed in the plane, which will be in service again this week.

Dan demonstrated that it takes more than a narrow "squeak" to keep him out of the air. He tested a new "Robin" last Sunday and has been on the job since.

Makes Four Planes a Week.

The Curtiss-Robertson Co. now is delivering four planes a week. It was found necessary to establish a double shift at the plant to do this, but with orders piling up and purchasers arriving here daily seeking delivery of planes, something had to be done to get the work out. Last week's "fly-aways" included planes which were called for and flown to Florida, Texas and Ohio.

Group to Visit Airports.

Director of Public Welfare Salisbury, Associate Comptroller Charles Cunningham and George B. Heath, the city's electrical engineer, departed Friday on a tour of inspection of airports in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and New York City. The trip is of interest of the municipal airport here. They are traveling by rail.

Veteran of "Pusher" Plane Days.

Lieut. Richard F. Hardin, in charge of all ground instruction at Parks Air Schools, has had an interesting career in aviation, dating from the time he built a "pusher" biplane, which he flew when still in high school at his home in California. During the war he flew with the French. After the armistice he took a course in engineering at Chicago and was employed by the Douglass Airplane Co. to assist in designing the Army round-the-world planes. Later he was instructor at a Navy air service school at Pensacola, Fla. He came to the Parks organization a month ago.

McMillan in Charge of Field.

J. A. McMillan has been acting manager of Lambert-St. Louis Field during the absence of O. E. Scott, who is attending the field managers' conference at Los Angeles. "Mac" proved a capable substitute, handling large crowds of visitors on several occasions without difficulty.

St. Louis Party Sees Races.

Field Manager Scott, Maj. William B. Robertson, Capt. William M. Robertson, Phil Love and Gentry Shelton, who represented St. Louis at the Los Angeles air races, are expected home this week. Capt. Robertson, accompanied by Mrs. Robertson, flew to the coast in a Curtiss-Robin, as did Gentry Shelton. The ships had been ordered by the California distributor for the Curtiss-Robertson Co., however, an dthe entire party will return by rail. Phil Love started for California in a Klemm-Daimler monoplane, developed from the German glider types, but was forced down in Texas and continued the journey by rail.

Men Eager for Parachute Leaps.

Since the 28-foot training parachute has been received by the 35th Division Air Service, the enlisted men of the outfit have been forming a line to the right for a chance to make a practice jump. Several jumps were made last Sunday and some more are scheduled for this afternoon. There will also be some formations and the usual stunting by pilots of the outfit.

Student Buys Eaglerock Plane.

William Fritchle, an advanced student of the Von Hoffman Flying School, bought an Eaglerock from the company last week. He plans to remain at the field to get in additional time in the air.

$80,000 Hangar Ready for Use.

The Robertson Aircraft Corporation will begin using its new $80,000 hangar at the northwest corner of the field this week. The new two-story office building of the company adjoining also will be ready for occupancy shortly.

Mahoney Plant Near Completion.

The new plant of the Mahoney Aircraft Co., makers of Col. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis," is nearing completion. Office furniture already has been installed, and machinery is being placed in position. Operations will begin early next month.

15 New Students to Begin Work.

Fifteen new students start work today at the Von Hoffmann Flying School under the direction of M. R. Bouse, in charge of activities for the Von Hoffmann Co. at Lambert Field. The school now has 48 students.

20 At Convention Ride in Plane.

Cadillac-La Salle August Output High

"Combined shipments of Cadillac and La Salle cars for August totaled 5142 units. This is 616 cars higher than the biggest previous month and establishes a new record for all time in the entire high-price field. Current shipments are equally divided between Cadillacs and La Salles, factory officials report.

New Tourist Idea.

Tourists in France have adopted a new method of seeing the country. It is the "rent-a-car-and be-your-own-driver" way. Five years ago such a scheme was unheard of in the country. Now there is scarcely a tourist center in Southern France where one or more renting agencies are not running full blast.

CAR OUTPUT AS HEAVY AS PAST SPRING

Third Quarter Promises to Be Heaviest in Industry's History.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 15.—With the third quarter of 1928 drawing to a close, conditions in the automotive industry show little change from those existing in late spring and mid-summer periods. One thing is pretty definitely established. The current period will be one of the greastest, if not the greatest, third quarter that the industry has ever known.

Conditions during August were very favorable. Retail demand was strong and production high, several companies establishing new records, while many more were close to their records. So far there is little indication that conditions will materially change. Tentative schedules for September are close to actual accomplishments during August, while in some individual cases—notably that of Ford—continued steady increases will undoubtedly be shown.

If these comparatively high production levels continue throughout September, as present indications show, they will, there is every reason for believing that any declines later in the year will be of a seasonal aspect only and that the drop-off will not be sharp, with the result that an early peak will be reached in 1929 with but slight fluctuations up to May.

Virtually all automobile manufacturers' earnings to date have been satisfactory. Financial positions have been strengthened, with the result that merchandising programs in the immediate future will undoubtedly be adequate.

Outside of the industry itself are to be found such important factors as stisfactory levels of employment, good purchasing power, public interest in automotive products and a strong export market—all items which should be of considerable value to the automotive industry during the next few months.

CARS OF THE NEW PACKARD EIGHT LINE

New Unit Added To Hupmobile Detroit Plant

Hupp Motor Car Corporation has let contracts for a new unit of its Detroit plant, which, it is stated, will double the shipping capacity of the company.

Operations on the new building are to be pushed rapidly, and the structure will be ready for occupancy by Jan. 1, 1929.

The additional unit of concrete slab construction will be used for storage of new cars awaiting shipment and to house the enlarged engineering division.

The plans provide for an eight-story building, with a 200-foot front and depth of approximately 150 feet.

A Funeral Order.

Motor vehicles in funeral processions in Sioux Falls, S. D., will hereafter have their headlights burning, in order that the drivers of other cars may distinguish them and avoid cutting through.

New Packard Cars On Display Here

The complete line of new Packard eight-cylinder cars, announced in these columns last Sunday, is now on display here by the Berry Motor Car Co., Packard distributer here. Through a transition of cuts last Sunday, the Packard eight-cylinder sedan was illustrated as a car of another make. Elsewhere on this page it is correctly pictured.

Sheik Cars Assembling At Missouri University

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 15.—With only a week or so until the opening of the University of Missouri, a veritable fleet of shambling, battered, loose-fendered, flat-tired, topless, "strip-downs," the vintage of a bygone mechanical era, is assembling for the use and convenience of Missouri's extremely "collegiate" students who demand the extreme in automobiles.

When complete this grotesque mass will represent virtually all the leading junk yards in the hamlets, towns and cities of the borderless area which annually entrusts its young to the Missouri halls of erudition.

This is not the first year that they have come, being here last year, despite President Stratton D. Brooks' letter to every M. U. parent advising against the evils of the student-owned car.

Citizens here may always wonder, but they will probably never learn just how the cars managed to stand the trip. Every turn of their shabbily upholstered wheels bids fair to be the last, but, somehow, like Tennyson's brook, they go on, and on, forever.

Not all of this rolling stock is bought abroad; every motor car dealer in Columbia takes care to gather his stock of tempting looking "old wrecks" before the time for the influx of the collegians. Prices vary. Some of the better cars are priced as high as $75 to $100. Then there are the moderate priced jobs, most of them without the latest devices now known to the motor car world. These come as reasonably as $25 to $60, with, of course, no six-months guarantee.

But while the "old wrecks" may claim the eye for a moment, sooner or later attention centers on the inscriptions painted on the bodies. Here are a few of the latest:

"All Wet With Al."
"This Can't Go On Forever."
"Don't Laugh, Girls. What You Would Look Like Without Paint."
"Four Tired Wheels."
"Don't Call Me Teddy—I'm a Stepin."
"A Symphony in Four Flats."

Relaxed and at Ease!—the new Six-81

FRANKLY this beautiful car was designed to appeal to women. In the ease with which it handles—the effortless way it travels it reveals so clearly its true worth.

You'll delight in its smartness and grace—the low, full, crown fenders—the tarnish-proof chrome nickel radiator and lamps—the rich fixtures, both inside and outside the body.

But it's when you drive the Six-81 that you get your real thrill.

You'll find that the weight of a finger on the wheel turns the car or holds it to its course. Gears shift easily—smoothly—silently, without your having to reach or change position. Clutch, too, is exceptionally easy-acting.

The internal expanding hydraulic 4-wheel brakes answer the slightest pressure of your toe. They are not affected by slush, ice or water—the safest, surest brakes known, and the easiest to operate.

The big, powerful motor is smooth, quiet, responsive. It does all the work—while you sit relaxed and at ease. But the only way you can really know this new 1929 is to try it. Ride in it.

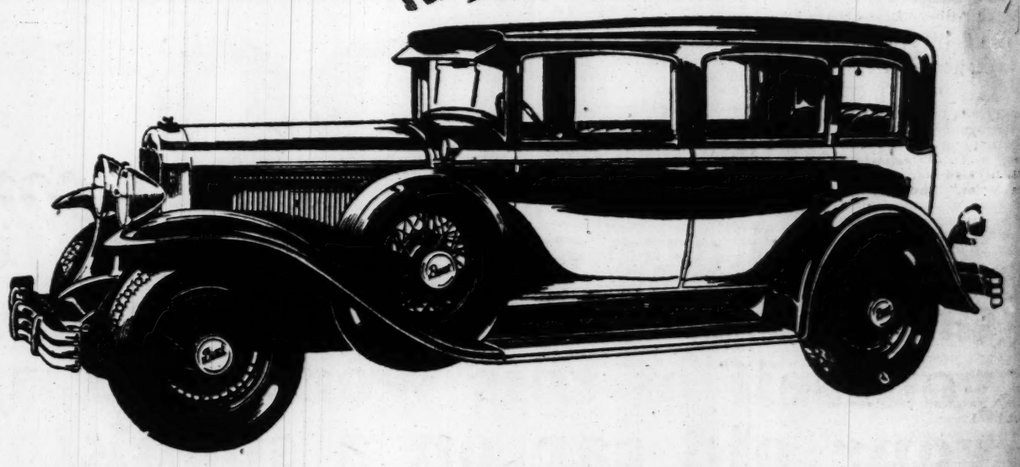
VALVE-IN-HEAD Buick MOTOR CARS

The NEW BUICK is the NEW STYLE



A triumph in individual beauty ... a refreshing and radical departure from the tiresome commonplace ... a new style, a richer style, a more alluring style than the world has ever known!

THE SILVER ANNIVERSARY BUICK
WITH MASTERPIECE BODIES BY FISHER

Only one completely new motor car style in the past twenty-four months—only one truly original and beautiful development in body design—and, as the whole world realizes, it is the Silver Anniversary Buick with Masterpiece Bodies by Fisher!

The two facts of Buick beauty and Buick popularity are closely related. This thrilling new Buick is drawing more people to the showrooms than any other automobile ever drew before. It is rolling up the biggest demand ever won by any new quality car. And it is winning this ovation because motorists in every part of the country are recognizing that the new Buick is the most distinctive and individual, as well as the most beautiful automobile America has produced.

Here are matchless new interiors—new velvet mohair upholstery—new hardware and fitments—new appointments of comfort and convenience unapproached by any other automobile of the day!

Here is true distinction wedded to genuine good taste. Here is a new style—a richer style—a more alluring style—than the motor world has ever known.

And here, too, is tremendous increase in power, in flexibility, in responsiveness—so outstanding as to amaze even those motorists who have long been familiar with Buick's superior performance.

That is why America is according the Silver Anniversary Buick the most enthusiastic reception ever enjoyed by any fine car. That is why this beautiful new Buick has already become a countrywide vogue!

SELLS 14,104 WHIPPET CARS IN 2 WEEKS

W. A. Elliot Does $10,000,000 Business Recontracting Dealers.

Contracts for approximately $10,000,000 in Willys-Knight and Whippet cars were accepted by W. A. Elliot, business manager of Willys-Overland, Inc., here in the first two weeks of the annual recontracting of dealers' period which began with the closing of the firm's fiscal year, Aug. 31.

Elliot reported yesterday that during the period orders were placed for 14,104 cars by 166 dealers in the territory covered by the local branch, which incloses parts of Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Arkansas. This represents only a portion of the orders which will be received, since Elliot still has 77 more dealers to recontract. The volume of business thus far done, however, represents a 300 per cent increase over the total recontract business for 1927, according to Elliot.

Elliot has been recontracting his dealers under a unique plan. At key points in the territory he has been holding meetings which were attended by dealers in the surrounding zone. All recontracting and placing of orders were handled at these meetings, 27 of which were held in the past two weeks. Additional meetings of the sort are to be held in the next several weeks until the entire dealer organization is recontracted.

"Dealers are optimistic over the automobile outlook for 1929," Elliot said yesterday. "Sales have been unusually good the past year. But an even larger volume of sales is anticipated the next 12 months. Crops are exceptionally good in the rural belts and a better employment situation holds forth in the manufacturing area."

"MOTOR" PRAISES PERFORMANCE OF GRAHAM-PAIGE

English Automobile Magazine Calls It an 'Exceptional Car.'

High praise for an American car by a recognized British authority is contained in a recent report of a road test of a six-cylinder Graham-Paige car, conducted by "The Motor," leading automobile publication of Great Britain.

"The Graham-Paige," says 'Motor' in summing up its analysis, "is an exceptionally attractive car, being possessed of a fine performance, and providing the comfort of many vehicles costing nearly double."

"Four-speed cars are popular in Europe, so naturally "Motor" was particularly interested in the improved type of four-speed drive used in the Graham-Paige, utilizing internal gears to provide a quiet third speed.

"The manufacturers of the Graham-Paige," says the British authority, "must be given the credit for being the first American concern to realize that a big six or eight cylinder engine is capable of dealing with its load satisfactorily in a much higher gear than the average 5-to-1 ratio favored by other American concerns.

"The fact that four forward speeds are available is, however, by no means the most interesting point for the outsanding features are the virtually fool-proof gear change and the silence of the transmission when third is employed; so quiet is it, in fact, that an expert would not be able to detect the difference at speeds up to 50 m. p. h.

"The car covered a flying half-mile at Brooklands in 23 4-5 seconds, equivalent to 75.63 m. p. h., which incidentally is the highest speed we have ever attained on a standard American production model submitted to us for test.

"In appearance, the Graham-Paige strikes a new note for American production, inasmuch as the slight V-shape resembles British and Continental design. The lines of the body are particularly good, the roof being domed, and the rear quarters nicely curved. The interior is well furnished and upholstered; there is ample room in the rear for three persons. With a deep well sprung cushion and well raked steering column, the driving position is quite comfortable.

"It did not take long to discover that the car was exceptionally flexible on top gear despite the high ratio (3.64 to 1), for the engine can be throttled down so that 5 or 6 m. p. h. is possible without bucking. Acceleration on both high and third gears is exceptionally good. On the former ratio 70 m. p. h. can be reached in 45 seconds from 10 m. p. h. start. Third also provides acceleration well above the average, from 10 m. p. h. to 60 m. p. h. being reached in 29 seconds.

"With a performance such as this, it is only natural to find that the Graham-Paige is a particularly good performer on hills. High gear suffices for all ordinary main road grades and without any appreciable slacking in speed, although, if necessary, a shift to third is as simple at 50 m. p. h. as when the car is going at a crawl. Box Hill, near Dorking, was, with exception of the acute hair-pin corners, climbed in high, third being employed for the bends, while Pebblecombe Hill, which has a maximum grade of 20 per cent, would have been taken on third but for a break in the road.

a social or business neurasthenia into bounding health by a big swing around the water circuit. But common sense must be his partner, for exercise can kill as well as cure, and this road to wellville is a splendid steeplechase whose hurdles are portages. Travel with a canoe for health's sake demands that man and canoe change positions periodically. Canoeing down the Mississippi River is filled with ardent adventure, but not with arduous exertion. It is Arrowhead days that rebuild.

Yet even here the delights of utter rest are equally attractive. The lodges on Burnside Lake and Vermilion and their dozens of arch neighbors cater to complete loafing under conditions gloriously seductive, and, beyond argument, the drive on this northern shore of Superior between Duluth and Port Arthur is a natural classic. This is the land of the sky-blue water and the cathedral red rocks, when the prophetic Indian voice of Gitchie Manitou booms to the joyous loneliness amid the million seagulls flying like snow. A most satisfying road clings to the shore, now streaming with light, now cut through somber jungle of blue-black trees.

The lure of Wisconsin is even more scattered; for, although the southern part of Minnesota has no fewer lakes than elsewhere—many of them rare emeralds in their grass borders and thickly built with summer homes— the northern show places tend to eclipse the rest. Wisconsin's north country has less individuality, its southern beauty more. Among the southern pictures, Lake Geneva stands out as an aristocrat of tranquil waters; Devils Lake, near Baraboo, has more than serenity in the night-face of its dark evergreens on one shore and its sheer bare forehead, loftily mountainesque, on the other; the Dells of the Wisconsin River drive a deeper scar—an amazing gorge filled with puzzling evidences of the wizardry of now fallen floods—than is seen in the St. Croix, that divides the two states.

These Dells at Kilbourn are canyons in the river and out of it, commemorating devil's work a million years in the doing, masoned with fluted columns and chiseled faces.

That Eden of tumbled greenery and upflung rock, Grant County, nestles in the extreme southwestern corner, artistically assembled of floating hilltops and winding English downs and slumbrous valleys calculated to move an artist's heart to tears. Within itself this smug tobogan land, so outlandish in the quietly rolling midwest, romps dizzily, like a surprising touch of Eastern Kentucky, and outward and downward it looks upon the wide Mississippi Valley as from a high rampart. On these ramparts are the mysterious burial mounds of Indians, out of which are exhumed the bones of a giant race.

Again and always the northern part calls, as at many a bland retreat between Menominee and Solon Springs, whose pine avenues are exquisite; but because the outdoor man requires the talking silence of the forest primeval, he drives on to the inland sea once more. Among the Apostle Islands, coasting on a fishing smack, he finds in large measure what he had in the Arrowhead country of Minnesota: or, swinging eastward, he stops at Eagle River, close to the Michigan boundary, for the savor of resin, the ghost-white infinity of shivering poplar and beckoning birch, and the muskelonge fishing, which is popularly conceived to be unusual. This is likewise remarkable trout river country, and all the eastern shore is equally cut by excellent streams of the same ilk.

The eastern side of Wisconsin, besides, is overlaid with concrete highways which will carry you, with but two short breaks, from Chicago to the tip of the northern peninsula of Michigan.

In this tip is the counterpart of Minnesota's mineral wealth, but this is copper. On this tip, outthrust into the stormy heart of that inland sea, lies all the ruggedness of Maine—its gray, exalted face and wind-torn trees and broken rocks and chanting, fearsome mood. From Hancock and Houghton the drives are austerely grand and compelling. Days are never hot; nights are never warm. This peninsula on a peninsula has uncommonly fine hotels. The greater peninsula, Northern Michigan entire, lies in thick red clover and raspberry acres and woolly tulgy fasnesses harboring herds of antlered deer. The ponderous Lake Superior whitefish is taken anywhere along the inspired shore—inspired especially at Munishing, where rises the bold glory of the Painted Rocks, astonishing natural semblances molded and etched by murderous autumn gales.

The northern peninsula of Michigan draws the hardiest sportsmen to outright roughing. The southern peninsula, called "The Mitt," offers no such sternness of mood. Rather, its soft, low-laid lines, undisturbed by rock and stone, emphasize dreamy peace. Mackinac Island, the stepping stone between them, is a social capital over whose lovely drives above snow-white masonry no automobile is permitted to run. The horses on this island have never seen a car.

Now the Michigan Mitt swarms with vacation resorts on a magnificent scale. On the Lake Michigan side the forested areas reach to Muskegon; the famous sand dunes sweep thence to the Indiana line, literally given over to a summer population imitating in a score of places the English Bath and the French Deauville. With the coming of June more than one lake port springs from utter desertion to myriad colorful life. Tens of thousands of summer cottages are leased in advance.

Petoskey, the most northern center, and Charlevoix, its near neighbor, on Little Traverse Bay, have no other business than caring for the multitudes—and need none. Their situation is ideal. They occupy the terminus of a concrete highway uninterrupted from St. Louis, Mo. Their background is green hills smothered in maples, trout brooks and trout lakes, and a chain of small lakes requiring several days to navigate. Before these peerless ports ride millionaire yachts and sail boats. North of them lie Indian villages bearing reminders of intrepid French explorers of the seventeenth century.

The magnetic charm of the dune country is in the healing power of the sun, the sand and the sea. Yet all Michigan is health-giving, life-breathing, wonder-working. Battle Creek does not depend on sand and water to rival Denver in the medico field. Mount Clemens on the eastern edge of the state, draws its miraculous results from water dumped up out of the subsoil. Cupped in the hollow of the Great Lakes basin, all Michigan gathers and distributes health, to every man according to his kind.

The Lake Huron shore above the St. Clair River holds a much wilder personality, and an older, more adventurous turn of mind, more suggestive of Lake Superior, darker in its woods, lonelier, less gardened and freer of conventions.

Illinois Cities Cannot Restrict Licensed Busses

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 15.—Unless their licenses are restricted to operation over certain routes, motor-bus companies may operate over any of the streets in passing through a city, without permission from the city, Attorney-General Carlstrom has informed the State's Attorney of Bureau County.

Carlstrom cited as authority for this ruling the recent decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois in which the Court held that a city has no jurisdiction over motor carriers which have been licensed by the State.

Quoting this opinion, Carlstrom said: "There is no provision requiring that the bus company shall procure from the city the right to operate. The city possesses only such power with regard to utilities as the State has granted expressedly or by necessary implication."

If the bus company, however, has been granted a certificate to operate between points over a designated State route, its busses may be restricted to that route, Carlstrom added.

New Graham-Paige Dealer Appointed

Appointment of the Goodke-Weber Motor Car Co., 5156 Delmar boulevard, as Graham-Paige dealer for the Western district of St. Louis was made the past week by the Weber Motor Car Co., Graham-Paige distributer here. The company will display a full line of cars and is equipped for service. Parts also are carried in stock.

Elevated Roads Planned.

Elevated highways are now planned for Chicago, Ill. These highways, it is said, will permit automobile traffic to move swiftly and safely through the city without coming in contact with the main downtown traffic arteries or endangering pedestrians. Cars will be able to maintain a speed of 30 or 40 miles an hour from one end of the city to the other.

Larger Bodies Announced for Victory '6' Line

Longer and roomier bodies, affording greater vision in all closed models of the Victory Six line have been announced by Dodge Brothers. The new type bodies now on display here by the Tate Motor Car Co. are: Sedan, sport sedan, coupe and coupe-zrougham. In designing the changes, engineers have retained the Victory Six roadability featured by its low center of gravity and sweeping, graceful appearance.

Mechanical changes of the improved Victory Six models include an engine temperature indicator on the dashboard, grouped under the glass panel with gas gauge, oil pressure indicator, speedometer and ammeter, and the location of the starting button on the dashboard within easy reach of the driver.

Maximum vision for the driver and occupants of the front seat has been effected by an increase of 76 square inches in the area of the windshield. The height and length of the sedan models and coupe-brougham have been increased to the greatest head and leg room for all passengers.

Doors of the sedans have been widened approximately three inches, and are built higher. Glass area of each front door window has been increased by 80 square inches. In each rear door window the glass area has been increased 52 square inches.

Improved interior appointments of all bodies have been matched with additional attractive color combinations and trimmings. No change in prices will be made.

Endurance Tests For New Chandlers

New and unusual speed and endurance tests are employed by the Chandler Motor Car Co. of Cleveland, in testing out all new models of Chandler cars, Henry Rottersman, vice president of the Midstates Motors Co., Chandler distributer here, said yesterday.

According to Rottersman, all Chandler cars prior to being accepted by Chandler officials and put into production, are given an 18 months' test by the engineering department of the factory. The test not only includes laboratory tests of the motors and other parts of the car, but more than 50,000 miles of actual driving over all types of roads under various climatic conditions is given it.

Check Chevrolet Delivered Prices

They include the lowest handling and financing charges available

Week after week and month after month the Bigger and Better Chevrolet has swept on to greater and greater heights of popularity—until today it stands acknowledged everywhere as first choice of the nation for 1928!

Never has any Chevrolet enjoyed such overwhelming public acceptance—for never has any low-priced car provided such an outstanding combination of distinctive beauty, thrilling performance and amazing economy!

Its beautiful bodies by Fisher—long, low and racy, and finished in colors that reveal today's mode for smartness and individuality—are far in advance of accepted standards in the field of low-priced cars. Inside and out they prove anew that Fisher craftsmanship is a thing apart—that by virtue of its Fisher bodies alone, the Bigger and Better Chevrolet would be an outstanding quality leader in the low-price field!

But Chevrolet performance is no less impressive than Chevrolet beauty and style. At every speed up to wide open throttle, the Chevrolet valve-in-head motor delivers its power with a certainty that is a revelation—so smooth and quiet that it is a sheer delight to sit at the wheel and drive. And never before was a low-priced car so easy to handle under every condition of roadway and traffic—for the steering mechanism is fitted with ball bearings throughout . . . the clutch and gear-shift lever respond to the slightest touch . . . and big non-locking 4-wheel brakes give a measure of braking control that is more than equal to every occasion.

And emphasizing the importance of Chevrolet's distinctive beauty and thrilling performance is Chevrolet's amazing over-all economy of ownership and operation. Low gasoline and oil consumption, exceptional freedom from repairs and uniformly high resale value have made it possible for everybody everywhere to enjoy truly luxurious transportation at low cost!

Come in and see the car that has won the approval of more than three-quarters of a million buyers since January 1st. Take it out on the road and drive it. Know its performance—its riding comfort—its handling ease. Learn for yourself why it is scoring the greatest success of this great automotive year!

PAVED ROADS AID FARMER IN MARKETING

By EDGAR L. BROWN,
(Bureau of Public Roads.)

One of the most important things that the farmer obtains from this new system of paved highways is an increased marketing facility by the haulage of various farm commodities into the cities by motor trucks. Since the advent of improved highways the milk transportation methods have been revolutionized. The motor truck at the present time has become the most important means of transportation of milk into our cities. This has all come about since the improvement of the highways started.

In order to determine the extent of motor truck use in the bringing of milk into the various American cities, the Bureau of Public Roads conducted surveys in eight or ten cities, and the investigation covered the cities of Baltimore, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Detroit, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Indianapolis and Chicago.

In all these cities, with the exception of the Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago, the motor truck transported over 90 per cent of all the milk hauled. The larger cities do not receive by truck quite as much milk, due to the fact that so much of the trucking radius of the city is taken up by high-priced land, and there is very little milk produced within what we call the trucking radius of the city. In most of those cities the milk was hauled in from within about 40 and 50 miles. It is a comparatively short-haul commodity movement.

The motor trucks give a market outlet for milk produced in territories which were formerly too far removed from rail shipping points to be reached by wagon. The truck passes the farmer's gate, thereby furnishing a service which cannot be duplicated by the railroads. The farmer cannot produce and transport at the same time. The driver of the truck acts as the producer's agent from the farm to the city dealer and performs a marketing as well as a transportation service.

With respect to the other commodities, the farmer is more apt to have his own truck and from time to time he will bring in his products as they come on the market. Milk being a 365-day proposition, he would rather have it done for him than have to go in every day himself.

The shipment by truck instead of by railroads reduces the number of handlings from six to only two. Heretofore, the farmer had to haul his milk across to the local shipping point, and then it was hauled by railroad to the city, and then the city distributor had to come there to the milk platforms to get it. Now it goes right from his farm into the city distributor's place. There is an estimated savings of five cents per hundredweight effected on all milk trucked, by the elimination of the haul from the railroad milk platform to the city dealer.

Certain economics have been brought about by this new method and in that way it has probably helped keep the price of milk down.

While conducting the survey in Baltimore recently it was found that certain truck rates were out of line with other truck rates in the same zone, and upon investigating there it was found that where the truck rate was higher it was due to poor unimproved roads. Following it up a little closer it was revealed that for five miles along an unimproved highway the farmers on a load of milk were paying an average of $5 a day additional; that the farmers in just one little community were penalized due to the poor condition of the highway.

In other words, the farmers could have afforded to have made an actual outlay on road improvements to the extent of $3600 a mile if no other truck was benefited at all besides the one truck of milk found where the hard reduced the price of transportation to the farmer, and the farmer pays the transportation, so that any saving effected in transportation he would get the benefit of. Now, in this particular case we found out where from Garden Prairie, Ill., to Chicago, a distance of 66 mile over concrete highways, the haulage charge was 35 cents a hundredweight. In the very same territory, over poor roads, for a distance of from three to 12 miles over dirt roads, the haulage charge was from 20 to 25 cents.

Then there was a case of a large Chicago dairy that had a receiving station along a rail line, and this rail line had to be abandoned. They thought for a while they would have to lose this valuable plant, and they had about $150,000 tied up in it. Just about that time Rand road that runs out in a northwesterly direction from Chicago, was completed and they put on trucks, two large tank trucks on that route, and the community retained a profitable place to market its milk. That was one instance of the value of the hard roads to both the producer and the city distributor.

There are many highly productive dairy districts in communities which have inadequate rail service. There will be a productive district but they have no means of transportation, and the truck, after the building of the highway, has been able to get in and collect daily the milk and farm products and haul them to the nearby cities.

The rates compared to railroads are practically the same, only the farmer is saved a certain amount of time each day. He does not have to go to the station to ship his milk. The milk is collected right in front of his door and the rates are nearly the same for equal distances. The saving is merely one of time to the farmer, and not a saving in the particular rates.

That might mean as much to the small producer, or more, than the actual freight charges, the time of going from his home to deliver to the station each day. His man or the farmer himself might spend the greater portion of the morning hauling the milk over to the loading point.

It develops dairy sections and it helps the small farmer as well as the larger farmer. I have figures showing how it not only effects a saving to the farmer but the consumer gets a better price.

Something new has come up recently in connection with the value of the hard-surfaced road to the farmer, and that is the farmer can market his products directly to the passing motorists. This new value lies in his being able to sell his products right at the point of production.

Road Expansion Planned.

The New England states plan to spend well over $65,000,000 for highway construction and maintenance during the present year, and the roads in this area will compare favorably with those of any other section of the United States.

Dietrich, Body Designer, Joins Franklin Staff

Only Americans Ever Awarded French Concours d'Elegance Medal.

Raymond A. Dietrich, one of the foremost automobile body designers, is now associated with the Franklin Automobile Co. as consultant on body design.

The addition of Dietrich brings to the Franklin staff one whose design of custom bodies is as outstanding as the works of the old artists whose masterpieces stand alone in their field.

Although comparatively young in years, Dietrich comes to the Franklin organization with a background of accomplishments in the automobile industry that places him as the outstanding body designer of custom cars both in America and in Europe. Dietrich has the distinction of being the only American automobile body designer who has ever been awarded the first grand prize—a gold medal—by French judges at the Concours d'Elegance, Paris, for outstanding automobile body design. This prize, which is designated as the grand award, was presented to Dietrich in June, 1927, and is the highest tribute that can be paid by the old world for outstanding design.

Expansion of Olds Motor Works Plant Announced

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 15.—Another large expansion program, the third within a year, was announced yesterday by I. J. Reuter, president and general manager of Olds Motor Works. Four new buildings will be added to the Oldsmobile factories as rapidly as they can be constructed.

The new buildings and their equipment will more than double the productive capacity of several of the manufacturing departments. These departments have been working at capacity since the introduction of the news Oldsmobile early this year.

The four new buildings will add a total floor area of 163,150 square feet to the Oldsmobile factories, bringing the total floor area of buildings on the 74-acre plot to 1,887,242 square feet. This includes both the buildings used for the manufacture of Oldsmobile engines, chassis, axles, assembly, etc., and those devoted to the manufacture of Fisher built Oldsmobile bodies.

The largest of the new buildings will be a two-story brick, steel and concrete structure 130 feet in width and 480 feet deep. It will have a floor area of 124,800 feet. This building will be devoted to tool design manufacture as well as other manufacturing processes.

Chevrolet Has Made 5,000,000 Autos

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FLINT, Mich., Sept. 15.—The Chevrolet Motor Co. announced today that the five millionth Chevrolet was produced at its plant here the past week. The four millionth car was built Jan. 11, past.

The early arrival of the 5,000,000th car was in response to a continued demand that has kept Chevrolet plants on a day and night basis since the first of the year and has resulted in the setting of new monthly production records every month this year.

Production for 1928 promises to go well beyond the million mark and will show more than a 1000 per cent increase over 1921, when 77,565 cars were built.

Gardner Exports Show Big Gain

Gardner export orders for August showed one of the largest increases for the summer season in the history of the company, according to T. W. Fowler, director of exports of Gardner Motor Co., Inc.

Orders on hand for foreign distributers for September, show an increase of 244 per cent over the same month in 1927, and the export department now has more orders on hand for September than on any two months this year.

New Chrysler "75" Royal Sedan, $1535 (Wire wheels extra)

"Volume won through value" the story of CHRYSLER success

Why can Chrysler, in the new "75" and "65," give more than others can give?

Why do these cars vie, not with cars in their price group, but with cars costing many hundreds, yes, even a thousand dollars more?

Because—Chrysler begins with quality, wins volume through value, spreads the cost of quality and value over five great cars in five great markets, makes five great operations basically one, and by these savings is able to spend more for you in beautifying and enhancing the new "75" and "65."

The new Chrysler "75" and the Chrysler "65" are much more than two new cars, or even two new Chrysler cars.

With their new slender-profile radiator, arched-window silhouette, "air-wing" fenders, "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine using any gasoline, rubber shock insulators, internal-expanding hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, Lovejoy shock absorbers and scores of other new developments, exclusive to Chrysler, they represent a parting of the ways between the old and the new.

They represent a new significance in style, in performance and in value-giving, an increase in buying power which affects the entire structure of the industry, up to the highest in price.

New Chrysler "75" Prices—Royal Sedan, $1535; 2-passenger Coupe (with rumble seat), $1535; Roadster (with rumble seat), $1555; Town Sedan, $1655. (6-ply full-balloon tires.)

CANADA PUTS AIRPLANE TO MANY USES

Transportation, Aero Photography and Prospecting Cited.

Canada's contribution to the development of the use of aircraft has not been fully appreciated, in the opinion of A. M. Narraway of the Topographical Survey of Canada. It is true, he says in a paper published in the S. A. E. Journal for September, that she has not sent planes to the North Pole or across the Atlantic, yet Canada has attained a leadership in at least one branch of flying—that of aerial survey and air investigation. She points to the record of photographing, in a period of five years, more than 200,000 square miles of hitherto inaccessible country that is richly endowed with natural resources, which is equivalent to eight flights completely around the world, with a photograph of every foot of the way, and to the aerial protection from fire of approximately 200,000,000 acres of forested land each year.

The first purpose to which the airplane was put in Canada, after its use as an agency of transport, was in connection with mapping from aerial photographs. The introduction of aerial surveys made possible the national map of Canada, because theretofore the mapping of the major portion of the country economically by ordinary ground methods was impossible. Approximately 172,000 photographs which form the basis of this map have been taken during the last five years, and 50,000 of these were added in the last year.

But aerial surveys go much farther than mapping, says Narraway, for a type map prepared from the aerial photographs provides a bird's-eye view of the actual country and its topography. Such a map is invaluable to the forester, as from it he is able to obtain increased knowledge of available raw material with a dispatch and a certainty that cannot be had otherwise, and it enables him to direct fire-protection planes to the useful areas. It is of equal value to the water-power engineer in quickly locating terrain suitable for water storage and sites for dams; and also to the mining engineer as an aid to prospecting.

Rains Show Need Of Paved Roads In Southeast

Recent Downpours Flooded Thousands of Miles of Rural Highways.

Thousands of miles of rural roads in North and South Carolina, Virginia and Georgia were entirely useless during the recent rain and flood siege, a widespread investigation reveals.

In times of six-inch rainfalls in 24-hour periods, when swollen streams threaten both human life and livestock, when food supplies and medical attention are needed, then the full value of well paved roads is emphatically pictured, and the lack of them intensifies the trouble ten-fold.

Out of Atlanta there were but two roads which could be traveled during the flood without danger and with any degree of comfort. These were the permanently paved highways leading to Macon and to West Point. These highways served as though nothing unusual had occurred, as though elsewhere hundreds of anxious rural citizens were not to be found at all hours of the day and late into the night prying cars from mudholes, or else deserting them on the theory that one mudhole is no better than another.

No through State highway could be traveled with the exception of the 50-mile stretch of concrete leading south from Savannah on the Coastal Highway.

These anti-travel conditions have been encountered many times by motorists in many States, for even rainfalls of far less disastrous proportions have converted passable dry-weather roads into sloughs of despond.

To calculate the cost of roads susceptible in unusual weather conditions is next to impossible, for so many factors of astounding proportions must be considered. First of all, the routine of everyday business and everyday life is halted. Then there is the actual physical loss of washouts, destroyed and weakened road surfaces and the cost of replacement. The wear and tear on the automobile and the many extra costs of car operation on poor roads when they become usable once again are big items.

A Georgia editor in writing of the situation in his State utters a truism that is applicable to any community:

"There can never be any progress in completing during surfacing so long as the millions of dollars poured annually into the road fund must be used to rebuild shoddy paving, and to maintain thousands of miles of sand-clay and unpaved roads that blow away in dry seasons, and wash away in wet seasons, and are never perfect at any time."

Herein are contained sound reasons for bond issue road building. By seeking readily available the assured road building income of a few years hence, the State passing a bond issue is enabled to go ahead on a wholesale road-purchasing plan, rather than the piecemeal "pay-as-you-go" plan which limits the mileage of upkeep-saving pavements.

Enter Arkansas Via Missouri, Says Auto Club

Check of Highway Conditions Shows Roads West of Mississippi River Preferable to Those Down the East Side.

After checking highway conditions in Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and Missouri, the Automobile Club of Missouri announced the past week that motorists had best use routes through Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas going to Memphis or Little Rock, rather than roads on the east side of the Mississippi. The recommended road saves motorists 70 miles.

All roads on the new route are either of concrete or macadam surfaced or good gravel, according to Matt F. Morse, general manager of the Auto Club.

One of the most noticeable features of the road check in the five states entered, he said, was that highway maintenance was remarkably superior in Missouri to that of any of the others. Marking in Kentucky and Tennessee was inferior, and in Arkansas, although hazards were well marked, other mileage and direction signs were infrequent. Many of the bridges encountered outside Missouri and Illinois also were narrow one-way affairs and not on a par with the Missouri construction.

The west side route is as follows: St. Louis to Patton, Mo., on U. S. No. 61; Patton to Advance, Mo., south on Missouri No. 51; Advance to Dexter, Mo., and thence to Kennett, Mo., south on Missouri No. 25; Kennett to Hayti, Mo., east on Missouri No. 84; Hayti to Memphis, Tenn, south on U. S. 61.

The change in routing from U. S. 61 between Patton and Hayti is caused by a detour south of Sikeston. The detour follows a dirt road about one mile west of Sikeston southward through Matthews and Noxall, where it turns east and rejoins No. 61. This detour will be shortened about four miles within the next 30 days upon the completion of another stretch of concrete slab.

In extremely wet weather there is about a mile on Route 51 between Dongola and Advance that may be impassable and can be avoided by following U. S. 61 from Patton through Cape Girardeau to Sikeston and then turning west on Missouri No. 6 to Dexter, thence south on No. 25 to Kennett.

The east side route goes by way of Cairo, Ill., Wickliffe, Ky., Union City, Dyersburg, and Ripley, Tenn., to Memphis.

The former route recommended to Little Rock, Ark., carried the motorist to West Memphis whence he followed a westerly route to his destination.

Both routes are alike as far as Kennett, Mo. From Kennett, the Little Rock route continues south on Missouri No. 25 to a point near the Arkansas State line and a short distance beyond Cardwell, Mo., where a left turn is made off of No. 25 carrying over the Missouri-Arkansas line and connecting with Arkansas No. 77 which is followed into Leachville, Ark. From Leachville, Ark., No. 18 is followed crossing the St. Francis River and lake over a bridge a mile long into Jonesboro, Ark.

In dry weather the route from Jonesboro follows Arkansas No. 18 to Newport, but in this section is 10 miles of grading in progress that is impassable in wet weather. In bad weather, the route goes from Jonesboro over U. S. 63 to Hoxie, Ark., thence southwest on U. S. 67 to Newport and on U. S. 67 to Little Rock. The short route over Arkansas 18 between Jonesboro and Newport cuts 30 miles less than via Hoxie.

Marmon Exports Show Increase

Returning from a two months' trip to Central and South America, Frank L. Hambly, expert manager of the Marmon Motor Car Co., reports that Marmon dealers in the countries south of the equator, particularly in Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine, are enjoying the greatest sales volume on record, with further increases in sales expected in the coming months.

Marmon sales in South America, Hambly reported, have increased proportionately with the record gain that has been made in the United States so far this year. South American motorists, he said, are close followers of the new trend in American automotive design and almost without exception the makes of cars that are popular in this country are instantly accepted as the leaders in Latin-America.

Marmon export records show that the total cars shipped to South America up to Aug. 31, 1928, was 77 per cent greater than the total for all of 1927.

35 Miles Per Hour.

A legal limit of 35 miles an hour, once regarded as a suicidal city speed, has been established in portions of the Lincoln Park boulevard system in Chicago. This is believed to be the first time such a speed has been legalized within the corporate limits of a large American city. "More speed and less danger" are the objectives the Board of Commissioners hope to attain.

CHEVROLET 72-CAR CLUB HOLDS MEET

The annual meeting of the Chevrolet 72-Car Club was held on board the steamer J. S. during a cruise up the Mississippi River the past week. Two hundred Chevrolet salesmen, who, during the past fiscal year, have sold at least 72 Chevrolet cars at retail, attended the meeting, which was sponsored by the St. Louis factory branch.

The members of the club met at the Statler Hotel and were transported by bus to the river dock, where they boarded the steamer. Immediately after the meeting was called to order by Zone President Victor Bloch, who gave an address of welcome. The meeting was then turned over to O. E. Nonn, factory zone sales manager, who acted as chairman.

Nonn introduced A. W. L. Gilpin, regional director of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co., with offices here, who, in a welcoming address, told how the 72-Car Club had grown from a small organization to a nation-wide club with thousands of members. O. L. Parks, vice president of Parks Air Lines, Inc., and a former national treasurer of the 72-Car Club, also spoke.

The following officers were elected: Victor Bloch, regional president; E. H. Gravel, regional treasurer; H. Miles, zone president; R. J. Whelan, zone vice president; W. Shields, zone secretary, and C. C. Smithson, zone treasurer.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

BOY SCOUTS ADVERTISE VEILED PROPHET FETE

150 Members, From 35 Troops, Distribute Posters in City and Suburbs.

A community good turn, assisting in the annual visit of the Veiled Prophet, was performed by 150 Boy Scouts yesterday, and will be concluded tomorrow, by the distribution to the stores in the downtown district and other business centers of the city and suburbs of 4000 posters announcing the potentate's coming. Thirty-five troops, each furnishing four or five scouts, are participating in the distribtuion, which is one of the yearly civic contributions of the local scout organization.

Most of the workers were concentrated in the downtown area, the plans calling for a visit to every store and shop on the ground-floor in all the territory between Market street and Washington avenue from Fourth to Eighteenth streets. The work must be completed before tomorrow evening.

Smaller groups of scouts, from nearby troops, will cover such transfer centers as Delmar and Hamilton, Union and Easton, and Delmar and Kingshighway, while Grand boulevard will be worked from Gravois avenue to West Florissant.

Suburban troops will distribute the posters in the business centers of Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Maplewood, University City, Wellston, Overland and other suburbs. One troop, of the Freemont School, started neighborhood distribution last Wednesday in order to be able to cover an exceptionally large territory.

The scouts are all working directly out of local headquarters, directed by Carl Laemmli of the headquarters staff, who has had charge of the work for the last four years.

The troops donating their services to the distribution are Troops 2, 3, 5, 11, 12, 15, 18, 19, 21, 26, 31, 33, 38, 42, 43, 49, 51, 59, 64, 71, 85, 88, 101, 102, 103, 112, 122, 144, 155, 180, 214, 224, Maplewood 3, Clayton 2 and Overland 1.

Troop Notes

South District.

Six new patrol leaders, appointed for the coming season, were installed at Troop 77, of the Tyler Presbyterian Church, by Troop Committee Chairman Judge C. O. Pearcy recently. The new leaders are Scouts Bernie Drum, Hollis George, Larry McDougall, James Gamble, Bill Buch and Richard Buch. An inter-patrol contest is being worked up by the new appointees, and will be inaugurated at one of the next meetings.

Troop 141 of the Siegel School, held a watermelon feast at a recent meeting. An overnight hike was taken to a woods in the county. Now that school has opened, the troop has resumed its activxities in full swing.

A week-end camp on the shores of a small lake near Hillsboro, Mo., recently was held by Troop 36 of the Wilkinson School, under the direction of Scoutmaster Thomas and Committeeman Chilton. A scoup program of tracking, swimming, signalling and outdoor games was carried out during the camp, and a council fire was held Saturday evening. The troop hiked to Hillsboro the next day.

A home-coming reception for Scoutmaster Edwin M. Skinner, who has been recuperating from an illness suffered last winter, and has just returned to scouting, was held by Troop 157 at the last meeting of the troop before school started. Welcoming speeches were made by Patrol Leader Walter Gotsch of the Wolf patrol and by the troop advisor, the Rev. Reining. Experiences in the various sections of camp, both at Irondale and on the roving tours, were related by scouts, and motion pictures of the latter tour were shown. Ice cream and cake were served to close the program.

North District.

A membership contest was started by Troop 3 of the Grace Holy Cross Church at the last meeting, the troop being divided into four new patrols of the same number of scouts each. The first patrol to obtain a complete membership of eight boys will win a prize. The new patrols are the Flying Eagle, the Peacock, the Beaver and the Bob White. Committeeman Salade demonstrated various knots.

An overnight hike to a farm in the county was taken a week ago Saturday by Troop 88 of the Salem Church. Many tests were passed in the afternoon of the first day, and in the evening the scouts put on a playlet and stunts around the campfire. Several of the parents visited the camp for the evening program. Some of the scouts went fishing Sunday and caught enough for a meal for the troop.

Twenty-four of the boys and the scoutmaster were guests of Mrs. Kuesel, a member of the church, at the Passion Play at the Municipal Theater Tuesday evening. The drum and bugle corps of the troop played at the opening of Meramec Park last week. Instructor Hebbler, who had charge of the corps last winter, will direct the work again this year.

An overnight hike to the Lions' Den reservation was taken recently by 16 scouts, seven troop committeemen and Scoutmaster Herzog of Troop 206. The evening was spent studying stars. Fifteen members of the Mothers' Club of the troop visited the camp next day.

West District.

The Boy Scout troop recently organized at the Fountain Park received its charter as Troop 128. The membership of the new troop at present consists of eight scouts, Scoutmaster C. H. Lattner and Assistant Scoutmaster Hudson Binnington. Four more recruits are ready to pass their tenderfoot tests. The troop committee is composed of A. L. Tomkins, chairman; B. W. Noel, thrift director; Dr. Spotts, educational director; D. C. Reed, outdoor director, and the Rev. Frank Beardsley, Troop Advisor and Chaplain.

A hike was taken to Cliff Cave Labor day, signaling and firemaking tests being passed on the hike. The boys also played scout games and cooked their own meals. Scout Vickers has been made made troop scribe.

Suburban District.

The September overnight hike of Troop Overland 1, which holds one 2-day camp each month, was taken to the Meramec State Park last Saturday and Sunday. Camp was made under the direction of Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Patterson and Senior Patrol Leader Miller, after which a swim was taken in the Meramec River. The swimmers were in charge of Scout Falconer. A small opening in a bluff into which Scout Joseph Pfeiffer crawled proving to lead into a large cave, 12 scouts followed Pfeiffer's lead and explored four large rooms before coming out. After participating in the dedication ceremonies of the park Sunday morning, the troop took a trip through the Historic Fisher Cave.

Scouts from Troop Clayton 2 carried the flag from the grandstand and attached it to the rope to be raised by the park "queen" at the dedication ceremonies of the new Meramec State Park near Sullivan, Mo., last Sunday. The flag was carried by Scouts Charles Geitz and Kenneth Wilbert. The troop was in the charge of Scoutmaster Al Geitz. A sunrise ceremony also was participated in by this troop and by Troops Overland 1 and Richmond 1. Photographs of the troop at the flag-raising ceremony were taken by the State photographer.

BOY SCOUTS TO BE ON DUTY AT RADIO SHOW THIS WEEK

Ten picked Boy Scouts, five each from Troop 102, of the Flynn Park School, and Troop 155, of the McCausland Presbyterian Church, will act as pages and aids at the fourth annual Southwestern Radio Show, to be held at the Coliseum this week. The scouts from Troop 155 will be on duty Monday to Wednesday, and those from Trop 102 from Thursday to Saturday. All will be under the charge of Senior Patrol Leader Robert Miller of Troop 155.

Although some distance apart, the troops are connected in that Scoutmaster C. S. Pollack is scoutmaster of both. This will be the third year local scouts have acted as pages at the show, and the second time in two years that 155 has furnished boys for this duty.

SNAKE HUNT AT LION'S DEN

Field Trip of Herpetological Society Under Way.

The fall field trip of the St. Louis Herpetological Society, which is composed largely of Boy Scouts, and is headed by Dr. F. S. Staley, scoutmaster of Troop 98, is being held at the Lions' Den reservation, the official week-end camp of the St. Louis Boy Scouts, this week-end. Thirty members of the society left yesterday afternoon in a special bus, and overnight at Camp A1, the largest and best equipped on the reservation. Others are expected to drive down today.

While the snake-hunters are at the camp, all meals will be prepared and served by the Boy Scout members.

The Lions' Den may be reached by following Highway No. 61 to Imperial, Mo., and thence by marked road to the reservation.

Civic Pride About Stamps.

By the Associated Press.

ANDORRA, Sept. 15.—Postage stamps have caused a kind of Boston Tea Party in this somnolent Pyrenean republic. Andorra for centuries has been blissfully ignorant of postage stamps and their recent introduction almost caused a revolution. Spanish postal authorities decided to bring this little country up to date by distributing a complete set of stamps. Andorra, however, wanted stamps of her own or none at all. After public indignation had reached a high pitch a delegation announced the republic's intention of printing its own stamps.

CATCHES WHISTLING LOBSTER

Bermuda Fisherman Finds Most Sea Food in His Haul.

By the Associated Press.

SOMERSET, Bermuda, Sept. 15.—Jimmy Cann, a veteran fisherman, of Bermuda, has discovered a whistling lobster.

Caught in the Cann fish pot the other day, this particular lobster of enormous size whistled like the sough of a West Indian hurricane. This adds one more musical denizen of the deep seas found in Bermuda.

The Island already has the fish that grunts, the squirrel fish that barks like a dog, the cuckoo that meows, the drum fish that drums, the cowfish that moos and a dozen other fish that make musical sounds.

Marvin M. E. Homecoming.

The Marvin Episcopal Church, Twelfth and Sidney streets, will hold an all-day homecoming service next Sunday. A number of former pastors will assist. A roll call of former members will be part of the afternoon service. The Marvin Church, which is the last surviving of three memorials in Missouri to former Bishop Marvin, celebrated its golden jubilee three years ago.

Woman Heads Rome Legion Post.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 15.—For the second time in succession the American Legion Post in Italy has elected a woman, Mrs. Julia Wheelock, as its commander. She was formerly a "yeoman" in the navy and will represent the legion post in conferences of the international federation of former soldiers at Luxemburg and Bucharest.

SCHOOL FOR VOTERS TO BE HELD SEPT. 24

St. Louis Women's League to Give Instruction at Forest Park Hotel.

The League of Women Voters of St. Louis will conduct a Voters' School at the Forest Park Hotel next Monday, Sept. 24, the first day of the four-day registration period for the November election.

Mrs. W. W. Ramsey of Chicago, fifth vice president of the National League of Women Voters, will conduct the morning session, at which will be discussed such subjects as registration laws, absentee voting, "Essentials of Good Government," and "What Every Voter Should Know About Good Government."

Jacob M. Lashly, president of the St. Louis Bar Association, will speak at luncheon on "Our Judges. Their Qualifications and Duties."

At the afternoon session Mrs. Roscoe Anderson will speak on "Ballot Marking," and there will be general discussion of the propositions which provide for police pensions, increased pay for legislators and the road bond issue.

Plans for the erection of a large signboard at the southwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Olive street to show the progress of the quadrennial registration of voters Sept. 24, 25, 26 and 27 have been completed by the league.

Twenty-eight huge thermometers, one for each ward, will be painted on the board, and as the daily registration figures come in, the mercury in each thermometer will go up in proportion to the number registered. A goal of 10 per cent above the number registered for the 1924 presidential election has been set for each ward. The registration at that time was 301,807, so that if the goal is reached, St. Louis will record the largest registration in its history. In 1920, the first year women voted, the number of registrants stood at 315,018.

The signboard, giving the story of the registration, is one of the methods the league is using to stimulate the registration of voters, and particularly women voters. Posters announcing that every voter must register Sept. 24, 25, 26 or 27 in order to vote in November are being placed in downtown buildings, public libraries, the chain groceries, banks and department stores. Women's organizations have been asked to urge their members to register. Ministers are including the registration announcement in their church bulletins, and hundreds of business firms will call the registration to the attention of their employes through announcements sent out by the league.

During the week of registration, inquiries as to places of registration, etc., will be answered over the league's information phones, LIndell 7825 and 7826. Radio broadcasting will also be used by league speakers to encourage registration.

KING ALEXANDER RADIO FAN

Ruler of Jugo-Slavia Spends His Evenings Tuning In.

By the Associated Press.

BELGRADE, Sept. 15.—King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia is an inveterate radio fan. Using a seven-tube Western Electric set, the King spends virtually the whole evening tuning in.

He has already picked up most of the European stations, but complains that reception of Daventry and Paris is poor on his loud speaker. He is now constructing with the help of an engineer, a small, short wave, amateur set, which will enable him to receive stations in the United States.

Tribesmen Hold Flyers Captive.

NICARAGUA WILL PAY FOR U. S. SUPERVISION

Presence of Military Force at Election Will Cost Country $190,000.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Sept. 15.—Supervision of the presidential election in Nicaragua in November by the United States will cost the Nicaraguan Government $190,000.

This amount has been appropriated by the Nicaraguan Government, and Brigadier General Frank R. McCoy, who is here as President Coolidge's personal agent to supervise the voting, says that expenditures ought not to exceed that limit.

The cost to the United States Government will be small, as the army, navy and marine corps officers simply receive the pay of their rank. The transportation of this staff from American ports to Nicaragua has been on Government ships in nearly every case. In addition to their regular pay in the Government service, nine members of Gen. McCoy's staff in Managua, the capital, and the 13 chairmen of the Election Boards in the 13 departments of the country receive a daily allowance of $7 each, which is paid by the Nicaraguan Government.

Gen. McCoy has assembled a staff of 66 Americans, including army, navy, marine corps officers and civilians, to assist him in the registration of voters in September and the election Nov. 4. In addition there will be detailed some 100 non-commissioned officers of the marine corps, now in Nicaragua, to act as chairmen of the local boards where the ballots are cast on election day.

All of the chairmen of the departmental boards have been installed at the capitals of each of the Departments or Provinces, and have assembled their assistants, including army and marine corps officers, and 29 ensigns just graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

In every instance, including the National, departmental and local election boards, the chairman is an American with two Nicaraguan associates, one from the Liberals and one from the Conservative, the two leading political parties of the country.

Bridge Painted to Check Suicides.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—Authorities are trying by psychology to dissuade would-be suicides from jumping into the Thames from Blackfriars Bridge. Alarmed at the increasing number of persons taking their lives at this old Roman river landing, they have painted the former somber, "sad" black bridge in a "happy" combination of light green, trimmed with bright yellow.

Man Who Sank L-55 Drives Taxi.

By the Associated Press.

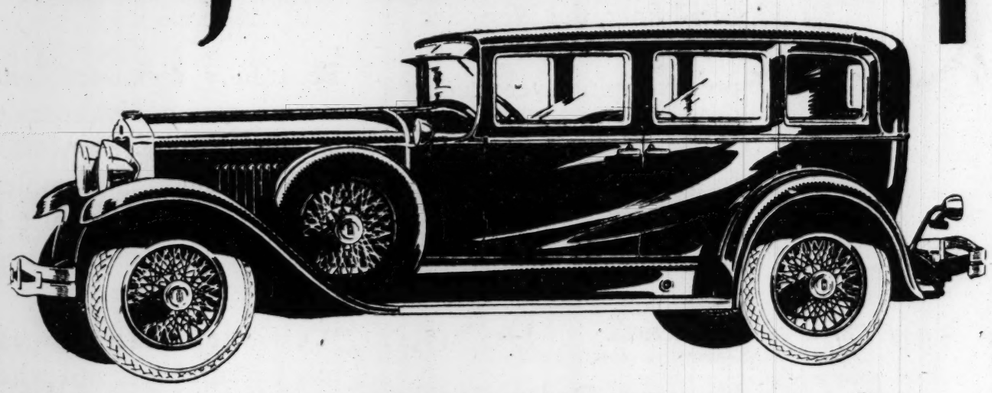
PARIS, Sept. 15.—The man who says he sank the British submarine L-55, with 43 men aboard, off Cronstadt in 1919, is driving a taxi in Paris. He calls himself "Maj. M. N. N." in telling his story to an afternoon newspaper and made himself known only to set history straight, he says. "I was the one who caused the L-55 to be bombarded and sunk, May 29, 1919," he explains. "I was in command of the fortress Krasnaja-Gorka at Cronstadt."

King Drives Car 4000 Miles.

By the Associated Press.

KABUL, Afghanistan, Sept. 15.—King Amanullah has completed a 4000-mile automobile journey from the Caspian Sea to his capital which places him in the very front rank of world travelers. He drove his own car the entire distance. The journey was most hazardous and involved the passage not only of vast mountain ranges, but also of wide tracts of waterless desert. Previously, it had only been accomplished by a Frenchman in caravan time.

THIS BEAUTY... Created a New Style Leadership



All eyes do not see alike in what constitutes beauty in a motor car. But a remarkable unanimity of opinion accords the new 1929 Century Hupmobiles topmost rank for trim, dashing appearance and distinctive lines among all the new season's offerings. And beauty alone is but half the story of Hupmobile's ascendency to leadership in the field of fine cars. Back of public preference for these stunning new Century models, is sustained public confidence in Hupmobile engineering and manufacture—qualities translated into brilliant performance, stability and value. See the new Hupmobiles today and make your own comparisons. ¶ 42 body and equipment combinations, standard and custom, on each line. Six of the Century, $1345 to $1645. Century Eight $1825 to $2125. Fairy Palace to Be Shown As Child Welfare Benefit

Remarkable Miniature Work of Sir Nevile Wilkinson, Valued at $1,000,000 Will Be Exhibited Oct. 1-15.

Queen Titania's Fairy Palace, a remarkable exhibit of miniature are treasures, will be displayed in St. Louis for the two weeks beginning Monday, Oct. 1, for the benefit of the Child Conservation Conference, which furnishes needy St. Louis school children with clothing. The place of exhibition will be a section of the second floor of Nugent's store, and the charge for admission will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

The palace, built on the Lilliputian scale of one inch to the foot, is 27 inches high, covers an area of 63 square feet and has 16 rooms, built around a central courtyard from which, through removable walls, all the rooms and their contents may be seen.

It was first shown in the United States at the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial Exposition of 1926, and it has since been seen in many cities. It is the property, and represents the 20 years' work of Maj. Sir Nevile Wilkinson, art connoisseur, author and long Governor of the National Gallery of Ireland. The whole has an estimated value of $1,000,000.

By the terms imposed by Sir Nevile, a fixed amount from the receipts in each place of exhibition goes to the Crippled Children's Hospital in London, and the remainder goes to local objects, here the Child Conservation Conference.

Since those viewing the palace cannot, like Alice in Wonderland, render themselves tiny by nibbling a magic mushroom, the palace is viewed without entering it. The first apartment to be inspected is the Hall of Guilds, with green Connemara marble walls, containing an Italian seventeenth century cabinet of amber and ivory, and an Indo-Portuguese coffer with statue of St. George and the Dragon. Queen Titania's bodyguard, the Pricker Guards, are stationed in this hall.

The Hall of the Fairy Kiss is one of the most beautiful in the palace. The walls are of gold mosaic with a marble dado; 2000 pieces of inlay make up the floor; silver and gilt-bronze figures are displayed; and a silver wrought Renaissance door leads to the Chapel. The Chapel's altar bears two vases of tiny silken blossoms of seventeenth century Italian work, and a reredos, or altar screen painted by Sir Nevile, besides many French and Irish miniatures of sacred objects.

Other parts of the palace are Queen Titania's boudoir, containing a tea set presented by Queen Mary of England; King Oberon's dressing room; the Princesses' bedroom and the nursery of the royal children, with the crystal cot of the baby prince.

Announcement is to be made of a time, probably on a Saturday morning, when children will be admitted to view the palace at the reduced price of 15 cents.

SEEKS ARK OF THE COVENANT

After 2-Year-Search, California Plans Larger Expedition.

JERUSALEM, Sept. 15.—A. F. Futterer, president of the Edendale Bible Institute of Los Angeles, has ended a fruitless quest of two years for the Ark of the Covenant.

He is now engaged in one final exploration before returning to the United States aboard the Alesia, arriving in New York Nov. 8. He says that he will organize a more complete expedition and return to the Holy Land at a later date.

Meanwhile, he has arranged with a powerful chief of the land of Nebo to continue the search. When not actually engaged in looking for the Ark, the explorer traveled throughout Palestine and into the center of Arabia taking still and motion pictures. He regards these, together with extensive notes and 13 original maps, as the most comprehensive collection of information on the Holy Land yet compiled.

Inventor of Champagne Honored.

By the Associated Press.

EPERNAY, France, Sept. 15.—Dom Perignon, the monk who put the first sparkle in champagne wine 200 years ago, lives in the hearts of his countrymen. Great religious celebrations, under the direction of Msgr. Neveux, auxiliary bishop of Rheims, have been held in his honor. Wine growers from all the countryside around Rheims and Epernay flocked here for the celebrations, and many a bottle of champagne hoarded in dusty cellars was opened in honor of its inventor. Dom Perignon was the cellarist of the wine-cellar of Hautvilliers Abbey.

KEWANEE

Build from the Boiler Up

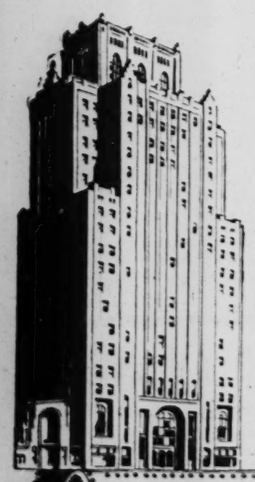
Plant your building on top of a KEWANEE ALL-STEEL (Riveted) HEATING BOILER and you won't have to worry over the future profit-possibilities of the structure.

No good business man invests thousands, or millions, of dollars in a "modern" building and makes the mistake of skimping on the heating boiler. There is no waste quite so definite or ruinous as that.

The heating-boiler is the "heart, lungs, liver and lights," of any modern edifice, and the price is a matter that should never be considered. No matter what the KEWANEE ALL-STEEL (Riveted) Boiler costs it is the key to actual economy. The first cost of a boiler, however great, is nothing compared with the cost of fuel and maintenance over a period of years.

This much you can be sure of—that if your heating boiler isn't right, your tenants won't remain, and if your tenants won't stay, neither will your profits. The safest thing for you to do is to install a KEWANEE ALL-STEEL (Riveted) Boiler, which, like the world's finest steamships, locomotives and bridges is built of steel.

We have no hesitation in saying—because we have proved it—that the Kewanee All-Steel (Riveted) Firebox Boiler is the finest heating boiler in existence—and is able to deliver the goods 365 days in the year for as many years as your building lasts.



BUILD FROM THE BOILER UP—that's the secret of profit in big buildings. Ask the Old Man Behind the Boiler, and, being a boiler-maker for 40 years, he will know just what to say.

DODGE BROTHERS NEW SENIOR SIX

A GREAT CAR MADE GREATER STILL

Bigger, faster and in every detail finer, the New Senior Six represents the most impressive value ever produced by Dodge Brothers.

Its long, sweeping lines, artistic coachwork and luxurious appointments identify it as a car of exceptional style and distinction.

Moreover, Dodge Brothers have built into the New Senior that precision and dependability of construction you invariably associate with their name.

Performance of a new and vivid character is the result. In pick-up, acceleration, ease of operation and masterly utilization of power, the New Senior surpasses even the very high standards set by its brilliant predecessor.

Beautifully appointed interiors, longer bodies, spacious and deeply tufted seats, striking color effects and complete fine car equipment, further emphasize the regal luxury of New Senior design.

We will be proud to show you this beautiful car, and when its remarkable performance, beauty and comfort are brought home to you by a demonstration on the highway, you will want it for your own.

PART EIGHT. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 16, 1928. PAGES 1—6A

New Sunday Feature Over KSD to Begin This Afternoon

Peerless Broadcast Is Scheduled for 11:30 A. M. — McNamee Sings Tonight—Dr. Goodell in Radio Service — Light Opera Last Program.

The first of the new series of Sunday forenoon programs by the "Peerless Reproducers" is to be broadcast over KSD today, from 11:30 a. m. to noon.

The "Peerless Reproducers" is a complete symphonic ensemble, recruited from the Philharmonic, New York and Philadelphia Symphonies. Under the direction of Harry Horlick, they will play for listeners as far west as Omaha, while a similar group performs at the same time over another network on the Pacific Coast and in the Northwest.

A novelty in the first program is a special composition by Albert Chiaferelli, a member of the orchestra, arranged as a duet, introducing "Miss Piccolo and Mr. Bassoon." These two instruments represent the extremes of the musical scale. A vocal soloist in the opening program will be Leon Salathiel, basso.

The orchestra will open with Victor Herbert's "March of the Toys" and will play also the ballad "Yesterday" and a concert version of Tschaikowsky's "Waltz of the Flowers."

The Peerless program includes:

March of the Toys ..... Herbert
Yesterday ..... Willheit
Armourers Song ..... De Koven
Louis Salathiel, bass.
Valse des Fleurs ..... Tschaikowsky
Miss Piccolo and Mr. Bassoon. Chiaferelli
Polly ..... Zamecnik
Noon and Night ..... Hawley
Bass.
Naila ..... Delibes-Lang

Dr. Charles L. Goodell, secretary of the Commission on Life Service and Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches, will act as presiding minister in the Summer Radio Church broadcast over KSD at 12 noon today. The program:

The Spacious Firmament on High
Invocation ..... Dr. Goodell
Fairest Lord Jesus
Men of the Crusaders ..... Liszt
Scripture reading
Response
For All the Saints Who From Their Labor Rest
Prayer
Response: Chorale from the Oratorio "Elijah" ..... Mendelssohn
Appear Thou Light Divine ..... Morrison
O Jesus, Thou Art Standing
Sermon ..... Rev. Dr. Goodell
Dear Lord and Father of Mankind
Behold, Two Blind Men ..... Stainer
Praise the Lord, Ye Heavens Adore Him

The group of "old favorites" in today's Sixty Musical Minutes concert over KSD at 1 o'clock will include "Annie Laurie," as a violin solo; "Sweet Genevieve," by the male quartet; Rubenstein's "Melody in F," by the full orchestra, and "Suwanee River" as a tenor solo. This program includes:

Minuet ..... Friml
Orchestra
Gray Days ..... Johnson
Male Quartet.

ARTISTS WHO WILL BE HEARD IN ATWATER KENT CONCERTS ON KSD

Columbia Chain Schedules Four New Features

Four new features are to begin this week over the Columbia chain, of which KMOX is a link.

A De Forest period will be added at 8 o'clock tonight, other Sunday features being the Symphonic Hour, Cathedral Hour, La Palina Smoker, "Two Black Crows" and Come to the Fair. Commander Richard E. Byrd and Dr. Lee de Forest are to speak in the De Forest broadcast. George Jessel of stage fame will be featured in the La Palina program.

The Ceco Couriers, sponsored by the Ceco Manufacturing Co., will be added at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening. They will bring a large orchestra, male quartet, mixed quartet and soloists, in classical, semi-classical and popular music.

Another new feature tomorrow night will be the Lowney half hour, featuring Ruth Manning, soprano, a salon orchestra and instrumental soloists.

A third new Monday night feature will be a Warner Brothers Vitaphone jubilee hour at 7:30, featuring Al Jolson.

The United Opera Company will conclude tomorrow night's Columbia programs with a performance of "Samson and Delilah."

Tuesday night will bring the Show Boat broadcast and the ra-

Kent Says His Broadcasting Has Amply Repaid Him

"How do you feel as to returns from your broadcasting?" was asked of A. Atwater Kent, the first man to put on the air a weekly series of radio concerts by the best musical artists of the country, who since has extended these to 22 other stations besides KSD, through which they are heard by millions of listeners every Sunday night.

"If you mean returns in personal satisfaction, the result cannot be estimated," replied Kent. "I don't know of anything, aside from the production of radio receiving sets, that has given me such great returns in genuine pleasure as have these concerts.

"At first, of course, these concerts were an experiment because a series had not been done before, and broadcasting was comparatively so new that some were skeptical of presenting grand opera and classic music over the air. I believed in it, however, and believed the people wanted it and would enjoy it, and I felt that they ought to have the opportunity to hear it. It happened to be within my power to provide this class of entertainment. I felt that I had taken so much out of radio that perhaps as a duty I ought to put a good deal back into it, and this seemed to me the best way to do it.

"But what about advertising returns?" Kent was asked.

"Our broadcasting may have, and undoubtedly has, a pure advertising value, but I know no way by which that can be exactly estimated, for we never have tried to commercialize our broadcasting programs. They are as separate, so far as cashing in on them is concerned, as if they were done by another organization. As a matter of fact, our sales organization has nothing to do with our broadcasting, neither have our distributers."

Asked as to the volume of radio fan letters, Kent said it was so large that no one person could read them.

"I wish I could read all of them," he added, "because the letters I see are very interesting. There would be a story in the letters of appreciation of our weekly concerts. Some are pathetic, others are purposely funny, but all are sincere.

"My attitude toward our own broadcasting may seem strange to some. I suppose we do get advertising out of it—institutional advertising, perhaps—the kind of advertising that cannot be checked up; maybe no practical advertising, as we regard newspaper advertising. Of course, you know we don't depend on our broadcasting for advertising—we buy space.

"But because of the satisfaction that comes to me from having afforded opportunity to millions to hear in their own homes the best music that America affords, I regard it not only an opportunity but a privilege to have been able to put our weekly programs on the air. It seems to go hand in hand with the business we are doing in producing receiving sets, over which millions of people can hear all good things on the air today. I have never been sorry that I tried to give the best music there is to American radio listeners."

Radio Boon to Forecaster in Weather Bureau

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Radio has done more to make the work of the United States Weatner Bureau effective than any other one agency, according to Edgar B. Calvert, chief of the Weather Forecast Division.

"Forecasts and warnings are of no value unless they can be distributed immediately and thoroughly," says Calvert. "Time is always of the essence, and sometimes vital. A warning of a disastrous frost, cold wave or storm for tomorrow loses much of its value or is worthless unless those in the threatened districts know about it today.

"How to reach the people directly and immediately is a problem that has confronted the Weather Bureau from its beginning. Every practicable method is employed. The press, telephone, telegraph and various signaling devices have solved the difficulty in large measure in cities and in communities within their reach, but the ships beyond sight of land,

More Stars Than Ever Before Promised for Atwater Kent Series

"Something Better" Is Coming During Fall and Winter, According to Sponsor—KSD and 20 Other Stations to Broadcast New Programs—Formal Announcement Expected About Oct. 1—Names of Some Artists Who Will Take Part Given Out.

A NEW high level for a continuing radio concert series is forecast for the fall and winter programs to be broadcast in the Atwater Kent hour on Sunday evenings through KSD and a National Broadcasting Co. chain of about 20 associated stations.

It is reported that there will be some surprises in the programs now being scheduled, details of which are to be made public about Oct. 1. Music lovers in the St. Louis region who have come to regard the Atwater Kent hour as a national institution, are assured that, as heretofore, the best in music, rendered by the finest artists, will be theirs each Sunday evening merely by tuning in KSD.

The coming series will inaugurate the fourth annual winter season of Atwater Kent programs. Among the artists whom it is understood will be heard during this series are:

Frances Alda, Lea Luboshutz, Jeanne Gordon, Reinald Werrenrath, Giovanni Martinelli, Florence Austral, Lucrezia Bori, Louise Homer, Charles Hackett, Albert Spalding, Margaret Matzenauer, Cecilia Hansen and Tita Ruffo. Josef Hoffman, premier pianist, also is counted on as a featured artist.

Two newcomers as musical headliners—Agnes Davis, of Denver, and Wilbur Evans, of Philadelphia—first prize winners in the 1928 National Radio Audition, also will find places on the program of the new Kent series.

The progress in radio art probably is in no way better illustrated than in the attitude of public and artists toward broadcasting of the sort sponsored by A. Atwater Kent. There was much scepticism on both sides, in the fall of 1925, when Kent announced that he would present each Sunday evening programs featuring the most famous grand opera and concert stars. A large part of the public, unfamiliar with the beauty of the music to be presented by these artists, which it designated by the indefinite terms "classical," expected something "high-brow" which it could neither understand nor appreciate.

THE artists were frankly sceptical of impressing unseen listeners by songs and harmonies poured into the cold and unresponsive diaphram of a microphone. They feared that even to attempt to do so would "cheapen their art." A number of them, in fact, at first flatly refused to consider "going on the air," believing that radio was only for jazz bands and slapstick monologuists.

Kent, however, was convinced that general public appreciation of the best in music only was lacking because the great masses had no opportuntiy to hear musical masterpieces presented by artists of the first rank. He persevered and finally induced enough artists to sign contracts to justify beginning the first Atwater Kent hour series.

The result is now musical history in America. The response of the radio audience was instantaneous and emphatic. From country and village, as well as from town and city, a flood of letters poured in voicing the thanks and the gratitude of music-starved lives. Responses received by the artists themselves soon disabused their minds of the prejudice they had held against radio. They found "over the air" not only a vastly greater audience, numerically, but an audience much more sincerely responsive and appreciative than the sophisticated groups that gather at concerts and recitals. Radio, in fact, had found the way to the real heart of America.

As a result of the nation-wide appreciation of the Atwater Kent series, the whole plane of musical broadcasting has been elevated. The voices of the greatest artists, the harmonies of the most famous masters, are now familiar in millions of homes where they were unknown before. Musical broadcasting, generally, has followed the lead set by Kent, recognizing the fundamental craving and appreciation of the public for the best. As it was a pathfinder, so has the Atwater Kent Hour remained a leader in musical broadcasting. Week after week, month after month, its concerts are awaited each Sunday evening by radio listeners the country over.

DIFFICULTIES in broadcasting and reception, which sometimes marred the pleasure of the hearers a year or two ago, have been largely overcome. The development of the house current set, which makes available greater volume and more even and sustained power than was always possible with battery sets, has added greatly to the pleasure of radio's music lovers. The general simplification of receiving equipment, which makes operation almost automatic, and refinements that have improved clarity and tone, now carry these grand opera and concert programs into the home with a maximum of effectiveness.

As to what is in store for listeners this winter, A. Atwater Kent, in advance of the forthcoming announcement of the 1928-29 series, merely says:

"The public has been kind enough to express its delight and appreciation at the programs we have been able to present for them in our previous series. I believe that really worth-while things have been done. Even greater things will be done.

"Radio has added new sides to our lives. It has passed through some trying stages of development, but has at last achieved a position where the real field of its future can be glimpsed.

"During the past two years broadcast programs have become better and better, until now the millions constituting the great radio audience know that 'the air' has for them real entertainment and information on which they can draw at almost any hour, day or night. Among all these programs, the Atwater Kent hour, on Sunday evenings, has achieved and held a most enviable position.

"That, naturally, is most gratifying. But past successes are

COMMISSION AGAINST USE OF RECORDS

Board Especially Opposes Practice by Stations in the Cities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Use of phonograph records by broadcasting stations located in large cities is frowned upon by the Federal radio commission.

The commission's attitude is set forth in a monograph outlining the basic principles and its interpretations of the "public interest, convenience or necessity" clause of the radio act, some of which were invoked in reaching decisions in recent cases of stations on trial.

"In view of the paucity of channels the commission is of the opinion that the limited facilities for broadcasting should not be shared with stations which give the sort of service which is readily available to the public in another form," the report says.

"For example, the public in large cities can easily purchase and use phonograph records of the ordinary commercial type. A station which devotes the main portion of its hours of operation to broadcasting such phonograph records is not giving the public anything which it can not readily have without such a station.

"The situation is not the same in some of the smaller towns and farming communities where program material is not always available. Without putting the stamp of approval on the use of phonograph records under such circumstances, the commission will not go so far at present as to state that the practice is at all times and under all conditions a violation of the test provided by statute."

and farmers, cattlemen, construction workers and others in regions isolated from telegraph and telephone communication have been handicapped in receiving the benefits of the forecasts and warnings.

"Radio, however, opened the way and has solved nearly all of the difficulties of the problem."

Many and odd are the uses to which radioed weather reports are put. Calvert recently told Atwater Kent representatives who called to discuss methods of extending radio reception facilities. The value of the government's reports, Calvert stated, are of course directly proportionate to the number of receiving sets in a given community. Maximum benefits can only be attained when every community and home is equipped to receive forecasts and warnings.

"Typical of the strange use made of radio warnings," Calvert said, "is that of a case up in Wisconsin last winter. Early one morning we broadcast a warning of a severe drop in temperature, with freezing weather and high winds.

the forecast immediately got busy on the telephone with his neighbors. The weather had been rainy and the country roads were soft and deeply rutted. They got out their teams and drags and worked the roads all that afternoon, getting them smooth and level.

"That night the hard freeze hit. The roads were frozen solid. Real winter then set in, and the roads remained hard and smooth all winter. If it hadn't been for the warning of the freeze, received promptly over the radio, one of the men later wrote to us, they'd have had to ride rutted, rough roads all winter. As it was, thanks to the radio, their roads were as good as city streets."

Dead spots are sometimes due to conflicting carrier waves.

A short-circuited plug will cause a loud speaker to be inoperative.

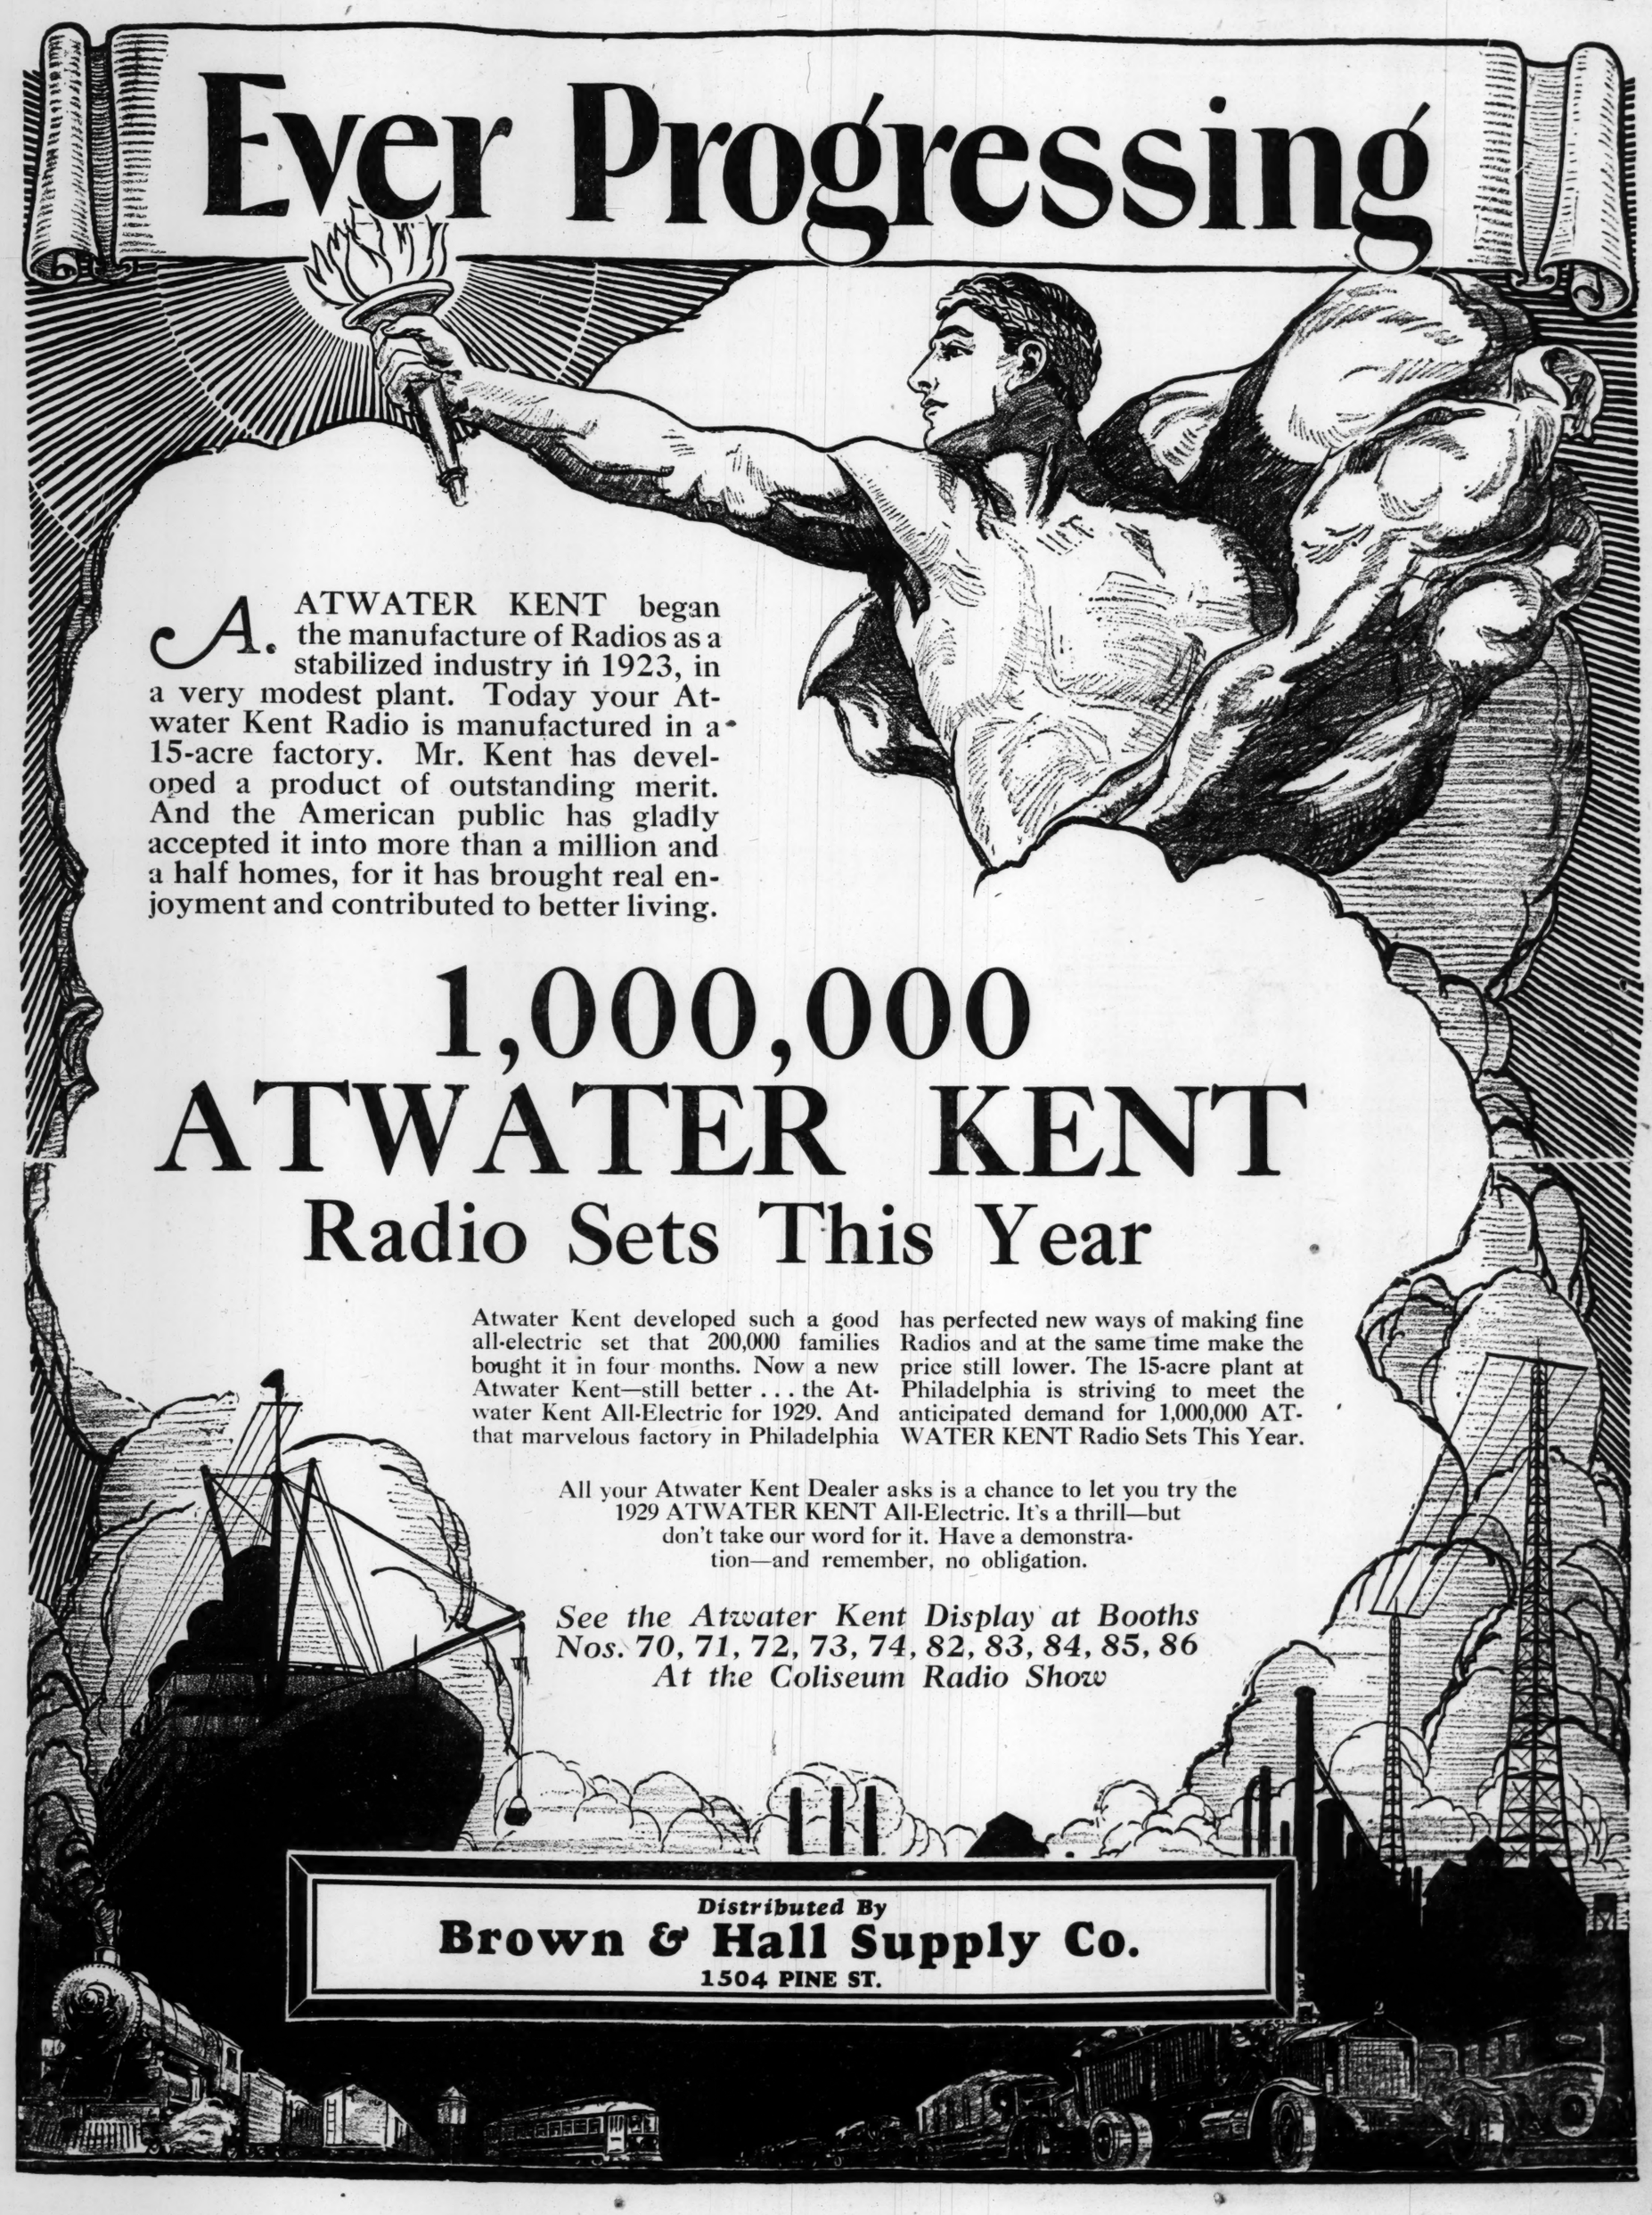
ATWATER KENT

Ever Progressing



A. ATWATER KENT began the manufacture of Radios as a stabilized industry in 1923, in a very modest plant. Today your Atwater Kent Radio is manufactured in a 15-acre factory. Mr. Kent has developed a product of outstanding merit. And the American public has gladly accepted it into more than a million and a half homes, for it has brought real enjoyment and contributed to better living.

1,000,000 ATWATER KENT Radio Sets This Year

Atwater Kent developed such a good all-electric set that 200,000 families bought it in four months. Now a new Atwater Kent—still better . . . the Atwater Kent All-Electric for 1929. And that marvelous factory in Philadelphia has perfected new ways of making fine Radios and at the same time make the price still lower. The 15-acre plant at Philadelphia is striving to meet the anticipated demand for 1,000,000 ATWATER KENT Radio Sets This Year.

All your Atwater Kent Dealer asks is a chance to let you try the 1929 ATWATER KENT All-Electric. It's a thrill—but don't take our word for it. Have a demonstration—and remember, no obligation.

To Stop Vibration of Receiver.

Place the receiver on pieces of sponge rubber if the equipment is located in a place where there is considerable vibration from passing street cars, trains or heavy motor trucks. Continuous vibration sometimes causes the elements of the tubes to become loosened so that they become quite microphonic after a while, and also to loosen certain connections in the set.

STATION UPON MOUNTAIN TOP FOR ALABAMA

Hourly Market Reports to Farmers All Over State Are Planned.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 15.—Because watermelons sold for $35 a carload in 1926, Alabama is to have one of the most powerful radio broadcasting stations in the south, atop Red Mountain, Birmingham.

When Gov. Bibb Graves was stumping the state during the gubernatorial campaign in 1926 he reached a small town in the southern part of the State in time to see several carloads of watermelons going to waste because of the want of a bidder. The highest price offered was $35 a carload, less than the freight charges and expense of hauling.

Since that time Gov. Graves concentrated on a plan whereby farmers could be kept in contact with the larger markets and know what their products would bring. The broadcasting station is the result.

The station, formerly operated as WAPI at Auburn in connection with the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, will be abandoned and a new station, 10 times as powerful, will be erected. In the face of the most adverse weather conditions, it is expected, farmers in all parts of the State will be able to receive hourly market reports.

The market quotations will be received in Montgomery over a direct wire from the Department of Agriculture in Washington and will be broadcast by remote control. Previously the market news was mailed from the State Capitol and would reach the farmers from two to four days late.

In addition to the market reports, the results of experiments conducted at the agricultural station at Auburn will be broadcast.

Atwater Kent To Make Million Sets This Season

Output Has Doubled Each Year Since Company Started Making Receivers.

During the 12 months between June, 1828 and June, 1929, the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. plans to produce at least 1,000,000 receiving sets.

This company, since it adopted radio as one of its products in 1922, has practically doubled its output each year, until today nearly 2,000,000 of its sets are in use throughout this country and abroad, and almost an equal quantity of radio speakers.

The 17 acres of Atwater Kent factories in Philadelphia have undergone considerable changes throughout the various departments during the past few months, preparatory to producing this enormous output and also to insure a continuance of the high quality of accuracy and precision in manufacture. The number of inspection tests has been increased to 222.

New Atwater Kent Models.

The new line of sets and speakers introduced at the Radio Manufacturers' Association show in Chicago is attracting nation-wide attention. It consists of three new all-electric sets, three speakers and two new battery-type sets. Recently a model 52 console also was announced.

Model 40 is a compact, efficient six-tube receiver, entirely self-contained and with but one dial for station selection. Model 42 is equipped with voltage control or regulator, which automatically governs the amount of power input, and is intended for use in localities where there is a decided fluctuation in current. Model 44 is a powerful seven-tube set, similar in general appearance to the Model 42, and is equipped with the voltage regulator.

Greater Selectivity.

All these sets show a decided increase in volume over the previous year's models. The new sets have greater selectivity, improved tone quality and are pleasing in appearance. The general performance of these sets is better than that of previous models, which have satisfied the radio public.

Featured with these new Model sets are three speakers, Models E, E-2 and E-3. They are all of the magnetic type. The largest, Model E, and the medium size, Model E-2, have the free-edge cone. The smallest, Model E-3, has the held-edge cone.

GOW New Chinese Station.

GOW are the call letters of a new broadcasting station to be established in Hongkong, China. Using a wave length of 300 meters, the station plans to broadcast programs relayed by short waves from London.

600 Atwater Kent Dealers Are Under Distributer Here

The value of persistent advertising, and of backing it by handling high-grade merchandise that is heavily advertised, is illustrated by the growth of the Brown-Hall Supply Co., Atwater Kent distributer, in 15 years to a point where it has 600 dealers in the St. Louis trade territory.

The company was organized in 1913 by Norman S. ("Cap") Brown. The story is told by Fred Wiebe, vice president and salesmanager of the firm, in an article in the Electrical Record magazine. "One cold day in that year," Wiebe wrote, "'Cap' Brown returned from a trip, during which he had sold everything from street cars to friction tape. He was tired of selling merchandise for others. If he could make a success of selling for others, why could he not be just as successful selling for himself?

"Cap lost no time in making his idea practical. He organized the company without delay. He rented space in one or two rooms of an office building, sharing them with other business interests. Today the company's business is of such size that it requires, in addition to the main building at 1504 Pine street, another building to the west and warehouse space across the street. The company today occupies space which if it were added to the top of the main building would be equivalent to 11 floors. Today we travel 15 men, in both city and country territories, and throughout the year."

Writing on the firm's selling methods, Wiebe said: "Our salesmen now do not travel farther from headquarters than about 150 miles. Each salesman is given a small territory, so that he can reach any part of it within a few hours. This enables each to give his dealers much selling help. This is particularly true with our radio business.

"We require each of our 15 salesmen to be capable of helping his dealers with constructive business ideas. In other words, our salesmen must be able to show the dealer how to move the goods from his shelves. Those goods are not sold when we sell them to the dealer; they are not sold until they are sold by him to the consumer.

"A professional window trimmer makes regular calls on our dealers. We have even gone so far as to encourage our salesmen to assist the dealers in their window trimming. We have engaged an instructor to teach our salesmen the window decorating art.

"Our advertising helps us in proportion as it helps our dealers by keeping our lines before the public notice. When we publish a large newspaper advertisement announcing the fact that we have just received a carload shipment of Atwater Kent radio receivers and speakers, we are helping our dealers to sell that carload when their share of it reaches them."

In addition to N. S. Brown, president, and Fred Wiebe, vice president, the firm of Brown & Hall Supply Co. includes Gilbert E. Semple, secretary-treasurer; Forest Brewington and Albert Brown.

Deferred Payment Plan Is Popular

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Many people buy radios as they do other things—on the installment plan. Some 4050 of the 5737 radio dealers reporting to the Department of Commerce for the latest quarterly survey of stocks, stated that varying percentages of their total sales of equipment were made on the deferred payment plan.

The remaining 1687 dealers, who returned the general questionnaire, either did not answer the specific question pertaining to deferred payment sales or reported that no business was transacted by them on this basis during the year. Approximately 3000 of the dealers stated deferred payment sales amounted to between 50 and 100 per cent of the total sales for the year. The remaining dealers advised of transacting between 5 and 45 per cent of their business on the deferred payment plan.

Two hundred and eighteen dealers reported that their total business for the year was transacted on the deferred payment plan. Five per cent of the total business on this basis was reported by 125 dealers.

The largest percentage of sales on the installment plan were reported by dealers in the Pacific states — Washington, Oregon and California. The lowest percentage of sales on this basis was reported by dealers in the west north central group of states—Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas.

Uses for Discarded Plates.

The plates of discarded condensers are valuable to the set builder. From them may be made angles, washers, coil supports and other small pieces of hardware. Where the plates are of aluminum they may be worked with an old pair of scissors.

Static Season Nearly Over.

Static is now on the wane and the curve of bad atmospherics is soon to show a downward path. Extreme static conditions prevail in June and July, almost invariably followed by relief toward the end of August, improving with the cool nights which begin to be felt during September and with the very best listening conditions from the middle of October to the middle of March.

The fastest-selling RADIO SET in the world

WHILE the very air trembles with claims and counter-claims, here's one fact you can hold fast—

The radio that most people are actually buying is the all-electric Atwater Kent 40.

It's not just one of a swarm of radio sets clamoring for your favor. It is everywhere accepted as the all-electric radio that almost everybody was waiting for.

Thousands are going into American homes every day. Thousands of messages are coming back: "The best value we have ever seen, regardless of price."

You have only to try this simple and efficient electric set to see why it is so far in the lead.

You have only to talk with any owner to see how completely the confidence with which he made his purchase has been justified.

If that owner happens to be an expert, so much the better. He knows that only in the 15-acre Atwater Kent factory, designed solely for radio, equipped with special machinery more skillful than human hands, could so fine an instrument be made so economically.

Think it over. Doesn't it stand to reason that the greater the experience of the manufacturer the better his product is likely to be?

Doesn't everybody know that Atwater Kent Radio is simpler and finer and more dependable because it is the fruit of twenty-six years' experience?

Wouldn't you expect Atwater Kent pioneering, which gave radio simplicity, compactness, ONE Dial operation and the shielding cabinet—wouldn't you expect it to design and build the best all-electric radio?

Knowing that Atwater Kent Radio is most in demand, knowing that nearly 2,000,000 families have chosen it, knowing that the price of an article depends upon how many can be made and sold—knowing all this, wouldn't you expect the Atwater Kent 40 to set still another record in giving the most radio for your dollar?

Well, your friends have figured out the whole thing, just as you have. What they are buying is this 1929 all-electric radio with "Atwater Kent" on the nameplate.

See the Atwater Kent Display at Booths 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86.

A. Atwater Kent Believes In Keeping Life Simplified

Makes Hobby of His Laboratory Work and Broadcasting—Is Accessible to All His Employes Despite Fact That They Number 6000.

By THOMAS FARNHAM.

The man who, through sponsoring the weekly Atwater Kent broadcast concerts, the annual search of the Atwater Kent Foundation for promising young voices, and the manufacture and sale of more than 2,000,000 receivers bearing his name, has become probably best known to the public of individuals active in radio, remains an active business man, quiet, modest, tremendously interested in his hobbies as in his manufacturing.

One might think that, having achieved the position he holds in the industrial and financial world, Atwater Kent would merely give casual supervision to his factory, and that he might, as he well could do, turn over his laboratories and the machines of his big plant to able assistants, of which he has many. He does no such thing. He is on time at the plant every day, barring some summer and winter vacations, and often of evenings "stays on the job" later than several thousand of the men and women he employs, if he happens to be intent on some experiment or promised development. Even in his home he has a well equipped studio where, at night, he himself tries out his different sets and studies this, that and the other that goes into them. It is common talk at the factory that he could make a radio set himself from start to finish.

Kent seems to have succeeded in simplifying his life. Where many men are burdened with telephone calls, sheafs of letters, constant interruptions, factory reports, office memoranda and what not, Kent's office is like a drawing room. He sits not at a desk, but at a beautifully carved table. Everywhere simplicity prevails. Here and there are fine old ship models, of which he is very proud. Old maps hang on the walls. A vicious-looking machine gun which saw war service hangs in a recess. (Kent made panoramic sights for American machine guns during the war.) His table is almost always cleared for action. Within easy reach is a radio set or two which he turns on now and then. There are easy chairs all about.

Rarely Writes Letters.

Off his drawing-room office is a simple, yet as beautiful, a dining room, where every day he invites members of his staff, or outders with whom he has business, to lunch. One day he may have representatives of his advertising department, another some of his sales managers; many times his chief engineer and laboratory assistants. There is never any hurry about these lunches. Kent seems to have all the time in the world. How he does it even his closest associates seem unable to explain. He simply does things differently.

For instance, he will not receive voluminous written reports. He insists on his associates and assistants telling him about things and, having picked his men, he asks from them decisions and results. He rarely writes letters. Most of the general run of office business is taken care of by a picked staff, which leaves him free for policies, plans and, above all, laboratory work.

The door of his office stands open. He is not hedged about with forbidding secretaries. If anyone in his plant has business with him that one walks in and sees him, but very often Kent walks out into his factory and discusses things with the men themselves, perhaps with a man at a machine or a young woman winding a coil.

Kent was born in Burlington, Vt., the son of Dr. Prentiss J. Kent. When young Kent got out of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, he went into the factory of Kendrick & Davis, makers of electric motors and watch tools, near Lebanon, N. H.

After 10 months, Kent found the little factory in the woods "too lonesome for a young fellow," and took a job as a salesman with an electrical company at Brookline. In the course of his work, he was sent to Philadelphia to sell motors and though it was not entirely to his liking, he stuck to the job for a year. He then decided that having had an electrical education, practical training in a factory and experience in sales on the road, he would strike out for himself. He did so in 1902.

Tells of His Career.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of his business was one of the few occasions when he could be induced to speak of his career. At that time, speaking to a group of his associates gathered in honor of the occasion, he told of his experiences:

"It was on May 18, 1902, that I opened our business in two small rooms on the second floor of an old building on North Seventh street, in Philadelphia. If I remember correctly, the plant at that time measured about two windows wide by three windows deep. There was only a single plank flooring and this was so old and worn that when we swept the floor the debris fell through the chinks to the floor below.

"At first we made electric interior telephones and a battery tester. Within a fairly short time we were compelled to move to larger quarters at 112 North Sixth street, and I recall that we expanded our factory four times there.

"In our very early days, when we were making the telephone and battery testers, I was not yet married and not having to conserve my cash particularly I bought one of the first Rambler automobiles that the Jeffrey Manufacturing Co. turned out.

Idea From His First Auto.

"This was a one-cylinder car with a big spark coil on which the vibrator often stuck. It was bad enough when it didn't miss, hammering you in the back with every explosion of the engine, but when the vibrator stuck it was

"As the result of my experience with this car, I designed the tripper ignition system, which most of you are familiar with. The new business that came in forced us to still larger quarters and we took a whole floor at 46 North Sixth street. We enlarged our quarters five times while there. The ignition system we turned out became standard equipment on such makes of motor cars as the Chalmers, Franklin, Peerless, Maxwell, Hupmobile and others.

"In 1910 I decided to go to the country for light and air and room in which to expand. Our downtown quarters had become too cramped. One day I went out on Stenton avenue, where I secured a tract, and we built a factory which, I recall, I thought we never would be able to fill. The office was so big that I couldn't find my way to the bookkeeper. In two years, however, we had doubled our floor space again.

"The night before we got into the war I again doubled our floor space. I remember an uncle of mine looking over the new plant, wanted to know if I thought we ever would fill it. But we did fill it. During the war the plant was utilized in turning out material for the Government. Then, in 1922, came radio.

Radio—And Expansion.

"Although we expanded once more on Stenton avenue, I saw the need for still more room. I could only double the size of the plant there, and that wasn't enough. So I found a new place—18 acres—and bought that. I thought that would stand us for at least 15 years. I first built the triangular section and then added to it until now our building covers 15½ acres. But that isn't going to be enough, so I have recently purchased more land and now have a tract of 70 acres that ought to provide for our expansion for some time to come.

"The greatest pleasure I have had during these 25 years of growth has been to see the boys out in the factory progressing with me. One boy who started in as an office boy is now our purchasing agent. He is typical of many others who have gone up from a small job to a place of importance and responsibility."

Kent made his first radio set in exactly the same way that many a boy has constructed his own homemade set. When radio began to grow, Kent found one day that his factory had received an order for 10,000 headpieces and other parts of radio in like quantities, so he did not see why he should not make the whole thing himself. He went downtown and bought parts of radio and started to put them together. The attic of the Kent home was the experimental laboratory, where Kent and one of his employes constructed the first radio over which they could hear any sounds. From this instrument, Kent set about the making of everything that was required to go into a radio set and it is said was astonished to find how wonderfully adapted were not only his men but his machinery to making radio.

It was in 1923 before he put out an Atwater Kent radio set. From 125 employes in 1922, 1927 saw Kent with more than 5000, and now he has 6000 at work. His first set—a five-tube set—came out in 1923. Since his first radio set, Kent has devoted himself to the perfection and simplification of radio receiving instruments.

Kent has received several honors for work he has done. The Franklin Institute of Philadelphia bestowed the John Scott medal for ignition work in 1914. The University of Vermont conferred upon him the degree of Electrical Engineer in 1924. In 1926 the Worcester Polytechnic Institute conferred upon him for the first time in the history of the institute the degree of Doctor of Engineering, and he was similarly honored, by Tufts College in 1927.

WILL SELL HIS 2,000,000TH SET BEFORE WINTER

V. W. COLLAMORE.

Sales manager of the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co., who is said to have merchandised more radio sets than any other man. He will pass his 2,000,000 mark this fall.

How Cities Service Cavaliers Started

All four of the quartet of young singers who make up the Cities Service Cavaliers are Americans, although the baritone, John Seagle, was born in Paris. Leo J. O'Rourke, tenor, is from Rutland, Vt.; Robert Stevens, second tenor, comes from Tennessee, and Darrel Woodyard, basso, from Oklahoma. David Buttolph, pianist and arranger, was born in New York City.

All the singers had been pupils at a vocal school at Schroon Lake, N. Y. Three of them decided to form a quartet. Woodyard had left the school and was at his home in Oklahoma. O'Rourke, Seagle and Stevens sent him a telegram outlining their plans and asking if he could risk the chance of the venture going over and come to Schroon Lake.

Woodyard answered their inquiry by showing up in person with great enthusiasm. As a quartet they rehearsed for five weeks, then decided to storm New York with eight songs in their repertoire. On arriving they sang in a New York picture theater and were dismissed after a week. In the next month and a half they did little paid singing, but their courage did not fail. Occasionally they sang at clubs and entertainments.

Finally a friend of the boys, who also was a friend of M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., took them to the latter's office. Aylesworth and George McClelland, general manager of the NBC, gave them an audition and a contract resulted immediately.

SEARS, ROEBUCK CO STIRS UP REALTY NORTH AND SOUTH

Walgreen Drug Co. Takes Quarters at Kingshighway and Page at Unprecedented Rental.

KROGER GETS ROOM IN SAME BUILDING

Activity Also in District of Second New Department Store at Grand and Winnebago.

By Berry Moore.

The Walgreen Drug Co. has acquired, through the Apex Realty Co., a 15-year lease of two stories at the northwest corner of Kingshighway and Page boulevards, which will be remodeled. The Kroger Grocery Co. has acquired a lease of an adjoining store in the same building.

The Walgreen company is obligated to pay a rental which has no precedent in this part of the city, according to the agent. The Kroger store rental is proportionately large.

The new leases reflect a demand for quarters for retail purposes on Kingshighway, precipitated by the advent of the new Sears-Roebuck department store on Kingshighway just south of Easton avenue.

Another Kingshighway lease was that acquired by the United Cigar Stores of the southeast corner of Kingshighway and Delmar boulevard. This lease was negotiated by Henry R. Weisels, Inc., and is for 15 years. It calls for rentals of about $16,000 a year. The store has 20 feet on Kingshighway and 40 feet on Delmar. In addition to its usual comprehensive line of tobaccos, the cigar store will have a luncheonette and a soda fountain service.

Sears-Roebuck Gives Buoyancy.

Activities in realty, especially in the business centers of the city, were on a more aggressive basis last week, manifestly reflecting the stimulus of new factors in the situation, notably the Sears-Roebuck store on Kingshighway near Easton and another which is to be opened this week at Grand boulevard and Winnebago street. Both North Kingshighway and South Grand boulevard displayed new buoyancy in the real estate market. There has been a corresponding increase in real estate values as indicated from the levels at which property is being sold and leased. Speculation in these centers, according to real estate agents, is predicated on new business growth of which the Sears-Roebuck stores will form the nucleus.

More than 37,000 persons attended the opening of the Sears-Roebuck Kingshighway store Thursday. The number was the largest on record in any of the cities where this company has opened retail department stores, except Detroit. The company has 22 stores of this type in operation, and the one on South Grand will make the number 23. The company expects to follow these two St. Louis stores with others, in outlying locations.

The Sears-Roebuck Co. was represented in the purchase of the sites by the Franciscus Realty Co. Several of the parcels of the Grand and Winnebago property were owned by clients of the Roettger-Masek Real Estate Co. and C. R. Miltenberger, agent, who acted for them in the negotiations.

Both locations were chosen because of their accessibility from various parts of the city and suburbs, by automobile, bus and trolley lines, according to James M. Franciscus, president of the Franciscus Realty Co.

The Sears-Roebuck Co. leased warehouse space in both North and South St. Louis, pending the construction of larger warehouses in those parts of the city as sources of supply.

20-Story Apartment Building Planned for Lindell Blvd.

As a site for a 20-story apartment to cost $2,000,000, a syndicate headed by William J. Abbott, real estate agent and operator, has acquired 140 by 213 feet of vacant ground on the south side of Lindell boulevard, 100 feet west of Euclid avenue, through Henry R. Weisels, Inc. Earnest money contracts for the site were executed two months ago, as told in the Post-Dispatch. The price paid was not given out. The warranty deed was filed yesterday from Theodore F. Meyer Jr. to Mae Kunz of Abbott's office, who took title for the syndicate headed by Abbott.

The ground is a short distance east of the main entrance to Forest Park and is in the block with the Chase and St. Regis apartments, with which it will be virtually a group. Jessie L. Bowling and Isidore Shank, architects, drew the plans for the proposed new apartment, which will contain 200 suites of seven to nine rooms, with from two to four baths. Complete details of this project will be announced later.

Plans are being made for a 20-story apartment for the northwest corner of Lindell boulevard and Taylor avenue, as was announced in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch. The site, 100 by 255 feet, was recently purchased by Joseph W. Kopman, contractor, and Meyer Finkelstein, of the House of Finkelstein, ready-to-wear store, through the Mercantile Trust Co., for $95,000.

Kopman is building the new 10-story Traymore Castle apartment, now receiving its finishing touches at 4525 Lindell boulevard. The building loan for this project was underwritten by the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, represented by the Franciscus Realty Co., which has the management of the building.

Designs for Various Types of New Buildings

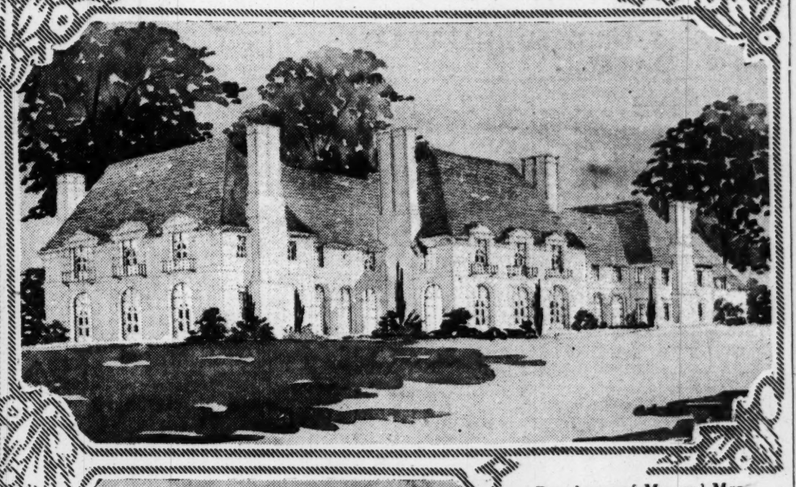
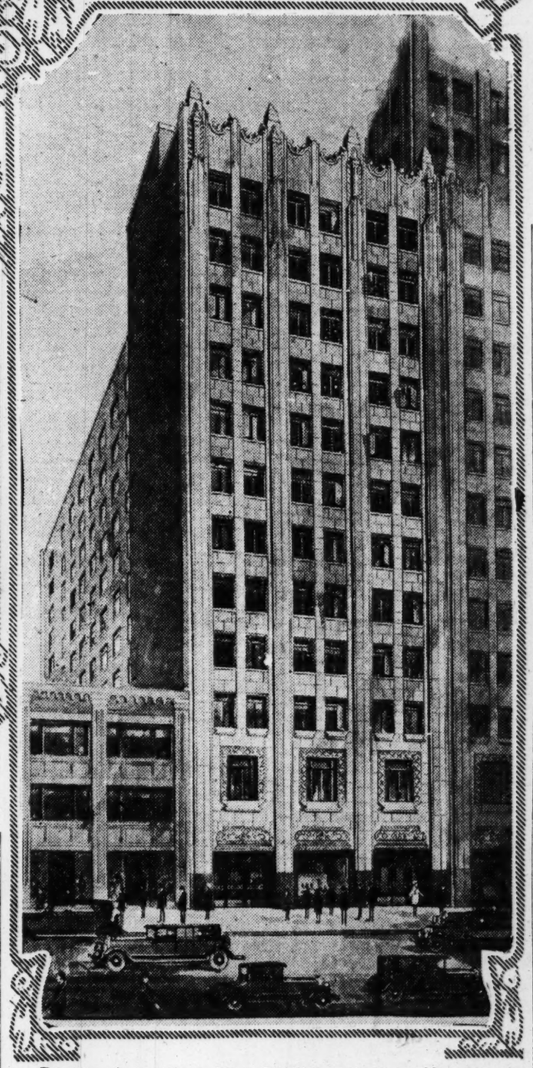
New Sears-Roebuck store at Grand boulevard and Winnebago street, which will be formally opened next Thursday.



Residence of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orthwein, overlooking Bridlespur Country Club district and new Edward L. Bakewell subdivision, on the west side of the Denny road between Manchester and Clayton roads.—Maritz & Young, architects.



Design of new Plaza Olive Building, 12-story office structure, for 1218-20 Olive street, adjoining the new Missouri Pacific Building on the east. It will extend from Olive to Pine.—Preston J. Bradshaw, architect.

PERCY ORTHWEIN TO ERECT RESIDENCE

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orthwein is to be built on a knoll north of the Bridlespur Country Club and west of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hager, and overlooking the country club district; which is being developed by Edward L. Bakewell, on the Denny road between the Manchester and Clayton roads.

The house is reminiscent of the Chateau country of the river Loire and is composed of a central mass containing the main hall, dining room and breakfast room with the living room in a detached pavilion connected to the main part of the house by an enclosed loggia. A similar pavilion and loggia treatment is continued on the other side and contains the study, service and the garage wing.

The second floor contains five master bedrooms, dressing rooms and baths with the service quarters in an isolated part of the second floor.

The building is of reinforced concrete, fireproof construction and has been designed and will be erected under the supervision of Maritz and Young, Inc., architects.

DENVER FIRM LEASES SECOND FLOOR AT 1517 WASHINGTON

The J. B. Byars Co. of Denver a corporation operating 80 department stores throughout the United States, has taken a long term lease on the entire second floor of the building at 1517-19 Washington avenue.

The lease was negotiated by Martin & Breitt for the Acme Realty Co.

CONSTRUCTION STARTED ON PLAZA-OLIVE BUILDING

12-Story Structure Will Adjoin Missouri-Pacific and Is Designed to Conform With It—6780 Feet of Space.

Construction has started on the 12-story office building at 1218-20 Olive street, adjoining on the east the recently completed 27-story Missouri Pacific Building at Olive and Thirteenth streets. The builder is the Plaza-Olive Co., of which A. M. Frumberg is president.

The building and site will represent an investment of approximately $1,300,000. In connection with the financing, Greenebaum Sons Investment Co. has underwritten a first mortgage bond issue for $850,000, in $100, $500 and $1000 denominations, maturing in three to 12 years.

The new building, which will be known as the Plaza-Olive, will occupy a frontage of 50 feet on Olive street and 39 feet on Pine street, with a depth of 193 feet from street to street. On Pine street it will face directly on the new Memorial Plaza. Plans for the structure, the design and finish of which will be identical with that of the Missouri Pacific Building, were drawn by Preston J. Bradshaw, architects. The building will be under the management of Henry R. Weisels Co., Inc., and the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co.

The Plaza-Olive Building will be of reinforced concrete, fire-proof construction. In addition to the store space on the ground floor it will contain approximately 6780 square feet of rentable area on each of the other floors. The main entrance to the building will be on Olive street, close to the main entrance of the Missouri-Pacific Building, with another entrance on Pine street. The main ground floor elevator lobby will be attractively finished with marble floor and stone walls and the elevators will have bronze doors set in ornamental iron frames. The building is so planned that tenants may obtain an entire floor or a single office. Every office will be an outside room. Except for the lobby, floors throughout the building will be of terrazzo, and the walls will have a marble base. Individual offices will have a wood base which will provide for concealed electrical wires and connections.

The building being in close proximity to the new Civil Courts Building, Criminal Courts Building and City Hall makes it attractive to lawyers. Bradshaw is laying out and arranging the suites in conformity with new and modern law offices.

STREET CAR SERVICE TO GREULICH ADDITION

Construction of five bungalows and a brick residence has been started in the Greulich subdivision lying south of McLaren avenue and east of Goodfellow by the John C. Greulich Realty and Investment Co.

Street car service has been extended past the tract on the Broadway and Bellefointaine lines.

During last week contracts for the following houses were signed and work started: Five-room brick bungalow at 8611 Park lane for Walter L. Peiker, six-room bungalow at 8623 Park lane for William J. Burris, five-room bungalow at 8615 Park lane for Joseph Devaney, two-story brick residence at 8628 Drury lane for William Linders, five-room bungalow at 8564 Park lane for R. J. Batcher, and six-room bungalow at 8568 Park lane for A. J. Rakers. The subdivision is in the north end of the city and has newly finished asphalt streets, sidewalks, sewers, water, gas and electricity. All are in use.

During last month the following homes were finished and occupied: 8506 Mora lane bought by Cornelius Naes; 8520 Park lane sold to William Becher; 8522 Park lane to Edward Nitschke; 8538 Park lane to William Dilthey; 8546 Park lane to August Horter; 8550 Park lane to Charles Smith, and 8560 Park lane, to Carl Hangartner.

The company also reports the sale of several lots in the subdivision, which owners have bought for early spring building.

ELDORADO NO. 3 TO GO ON SALE TODAY

Opening Price Is $350 a Lot in Tract Overlooking Mississippi.

Eldorado No. 3, lying between Spanish Lake and the Mississippi River, will be closed out at a grand special sale beginning today. From the interest manifest on the part of prospective home builders as well as speculators and investors, sales in this tract promise to set a new record.

The opening price per lot is $350, free of interest and taxes for 1928, according to the advertisement of W. L. Heckman, developer, who is marketing the new tract, comprising a total of 200 acres.

An advertisement elsewhere fully describes the property, which has a distinct charm, occupying one of the most picturesque sections adjacent to the city.

Eldorado No. 1 was placed on sale in June and No. 2 in August. Both are now entirely sold. Plans have been made for many new homes to be built both by speculative operators and home seekers.

The prime factor in the success of this big subdivision development is ascribed to the relatively low prices at which the lots were available, made possible by the low price at which Heckman acquired the land, comprising several hundred acres in the crude. Resales of lots in this subdivision involving in the majority of instances snug profits, have been a feature of the real estate market in this part of the city.

The tract is on the Larimore and Tramp roads, and overlooks the Mississippi River from a high elevation.

OPENING THREE MORE SECTIONS OF HILL TOP VIEW PROJECT

Rapid sales in the first have occasioned the opening today of second, third and fourth sections of Hill Top View, just south of Shrewsbury at Gratiot and Weil avenues. There will be a general jollification with music by a band of 45 pieces, and ice cream, sandwiches and soda. There will be a baseball game and races and other entertainment.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope.

C. T.—Write the Missouri School of Mines, Rolla, Mo., about having the substance examined.

R. E. B.—In the ninth inning of the last 1926 world series game Babe Ruth walked, and was out, stealing.

W. R. S.—The three doubleheaders between Cardinals and N. Y. Giants played in 1927 were on Sept. 13, 14 and 15.

F. H. BOOSTER.—It is not possible to answer. No records are kept pertaining to how hits are made or errors scored.

P. L. B.—Presidential electors can vote for either presidential nominee, but in 125 years of elections there is only one case on record in which an elector violated the implied party pledge.

DAVE S.—Richard Halliburton finished swimming the Panama Canal after 50 hours, his estimated time. He began Aug. 14. The news item about finishing the swim was Aug. 24, page 2 column 2 of the Post-Dispatch.

S.—There are five continents, Africa, Eurasia (Europe and Asia) North America, South America and Australia. It is customary to call the smaller, western peninsular portion of Eurasia, the continent of Europe, and the rest the continent of Asia, the boundary usually adopted between the two being the caucasus and the Ural River and mountains, but as a matter of fact Eurasia is one continuous land area. If the Antarctic, or South Polar region should be found to be a vast island it will form a sixth continent. The word "continent" is used with even broader meaning, as the land of the eastern and western hemispheres is sometimes spoken of as the two continents of the earth. See any unabridged dictionary.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

LOTUS.—They cannot foreclose for nonpayment of a commission unless the mortgage itself provides for that. Consult a lawyer

S. E.—You could not obtain a copyright of the dress, but might obtain a patent. Consult a patent attorney.

B. V.—We believe you have lost your right to the invention unless your application for patent was filed in Washington.

MRS. H. 'K. G.—Report the facts about the weeds not being cut to the Health Department, Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

X. Y. Z.—Ordinarily the Postmaster would have to deliver any mail then at the postoffice if the addressee called for it as you mention.

JENNIE H.—You can sue for a divorce and your citizenship will be restored when you are divorced

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

H. R.—Please send address for mailing names of specialists to consult about removing tattoo marks. Your initials do not correspond to any envelope held for the purpose.

P.-D. READER.—Hay fever is due to an irritation set up by a special irritant (ordinarily pollen of some plant to which the individual is susceptible), and is not contagious or infectious.

ANXIOUS.—In connection with the kidney condition mentioned, the taking of a five-grain tablet of cystogen dissolved in a tumbler of water three times daily should serve to correct the trouble and ward off further attacks.

WORRIED S. C.—If you decide to use a hair dye, have it applied only by those skilled and experienced in the use of such agents. Their advice as to what to use in any particular case is also probably the best to be had, as this is more in the province of the cosmetician than the medical man.

F. H. W.—The best service this department can give you is to send you the name of a competent specialist if you wish to send stamped addressed envelope for this. Maybe tion the cage of an enlarged joint. Especially is this true since you seem to have exhausted hope of benefit by home treatment.

W. W. W.—The following has been used with benefit for wrinkles, and hollows in cheek and temple: Spermaceti, 10 drachms; pure lard oil, 20 drachms; oil of sweet almonds, 30 drachms; powdered gum benzoin, 10 drachms, vanilla bean, three drachms, mix and melt over a water bath, stirring and beating into a pomade while warm. Rub on with gentle friction night and morning.

JAMES STEAD.—You probably have a certain amount of dandruff, in which case the following should be quite effective: Tincture of cantharides, four drachms; alcohol, eight ounces; castor oil, four drachms, bay rum, one pint; carbonate of ammonia, two drachms, oil of lavender, one drachm, mix, shake, and apply to the scalp with gentle friction night and morning. Shampoo the hair with hot water and pure castile so p every four or five days.

HELP WANTED—MEN, BOYS

Amazing New Glass Cleaner Offers

$15 A DAY COMMISSION

Here's an absolutely new money-maker—Jiffy Glass Cleaner. You can make $59 a week spare time—$100 a week full time—just demonstrating and helping me handle orders in your territory. Nothing else like it. Easily and instantly cleans windows, mirrors, windshields, showcases, etc., without water, soap, or chamois.

Anyone, Anywhere Can Earn Big Money

All you do is demonstrate to housewives, auto owners, storekeepers, garages, etc., and take orders. I don't sell dealers. So you and you alone get the commission on all business from your locality. It's fun to demonstrate. Just moisten a cloth with Jiffy Glass Cleaner, rub over a window and polish with a dry cloth. Instantly removes every trace of dirt, grease and grime without streaking. And windows stay clean twice as long.

Albers Made $47 in One Day!

He says $100 a week is easy for him. Men and women everywhere are earning amazing commissions with Jiffy and my $50 other fast-selling products. Vaughan, Ill., took 5 orders in an hour. Hill, that $100 a week; Mrs. Hodges, N. Y., $18 to $20 every day; H. C. Hanson, N. D., $75 a week in spare time. You can do as well as any of them.

SEND NO MONEY

I'll prove you can make $50 to $100 a week without capital, training or experience. I furnish everything. Tell you just what to do and say in this fascinating work. You don't risk a penny. And you have a chance to double or triple your present earnings. Send the facts without delay. Mail coupon NOW!

The Jiffy Glass Cleaner Co.,
777 Monmouth Av., Cincinnati, Ohio.
Without cost or obligation send full details of your new money-making proposition.

A NEW PAINTING OF ST. LOUIS, COMBINING THE REAL AND THE IDEAL

This canvas, 8x10 feet, has been painted by Frank Nuderscher for installation in the new trans-Atlantic liner St. Louis, recently launched in Germany. Mr. Nuderscher has visualized an improved levee and delineated the Municipal Plaza as it will be when finished. With the license accorded artists in making a composition of this kind, there are slight alterations in the positions of some of the city's buildings.

THE UNITED STATES SIGNS "THE PACT OF PARIS"

How many in your family?

Many people go through the motions of brushing their teeth without thinking what they are trying to accomplish. Of course they are brushing to clean! And to clean, you must use a cleanser. Are you sure your dentifrice cleanses?

Colgate's cleans this safe way . . . keeps teeth bright, white

Colgate's contains the most effective of all cleansing agents—in a mild, pure form . . . combined with calcium carbonate powder and aromatic oils.

As you brush Colgate's upon your teeth, it forms a cleansing foam which penetrates between the teeth, reaches inaccessible surfaces, purifies and stimulates the gums . . . the entire mouth. Carried by the searching foam, the fine calcium carbonate powder polishes tooth enamel to shining smoothness . . . neutralizes acids. The mildly antiseptic aromatic oils complete the refreshing action of this thorough cleanser.

Let us send you the free ten-day tube

Even a short test of Colgate's is certain to convince you that cleaning is the main thing in care of the mouth. If a dentifrice really cleans, medicines and harsh abrasives are all unnecessary.

"I Will Pay $500 If You Lose 25 Lbs."
said my husband to me one day

This is the story a lady told the writer. She accepted the offer, and started that day on Marmola. The cost of losing 25 pounds was $5. The effort was almost nothing. Her profit was $495.

But think what she gained in new beauty, new vitality, new charm! She looked ten years younger, and money can't measure that.

Men and women, for 20 years, have been using Marmola prescription tablets—millions of boxes of them. The results are seen in every circle. Almost everyone has friends who can tell them. Excess fat is far less common than it was.

Marmola aims to correct a common cause of obesity in a scientific way. Its chief factor is now employed by physicians, the world over, in treating excess fat. The complete formula appears in every box. Also the reasons for results.

This is done to ward any fear of harm.

Abnormal exercise diet is neither required nor advised, but moderation helps. Simply four tablets daily of normal gland concentrate bring the weight down. Full details in every box.

With fat reduced comes other benefits which will make you doubly glad.

Learn what Marmola means to you. Every dollar is worth its weight in gold if it does what it does for so many. All results come from correcting a condition that's abnormal. A way which has proved itself for 20 years with such results, such a growing demand, deserves a test.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. Any druggist who is out will order from his jobber.

NEW BEDS BY SIMMONS

recently chosen for two important town apartments

Mrs. HENRY W. TAFT

Mrs. Taft is of the old Ohio family so distinguished for its brilliant attainments in the law and its pre-eminent political service to the country. Her own personal life is devoted to a large group of important charities, to her family, her wide circle of friends and to religious movements.

Mrs. MORGAN BELMONT

Mrs. Belmont was Miss Margaret Andrews before her marriage. She is a popular member of New York's gay and exclusive younger set. Fond of sports she is a familiar figure at the polo grounds and the smart tracks and shows. Dogs and horses are her particular hobbies.

The rose guest room in Mrs. Taft's spacious Park Avenue apartment. Windows framed in deep rose brocade look over New York's picturesque skyline to the East River. The chaise longue, the comfortable chairs are covered with rose-figured brocade. The furniture is inlaid rosewood in the 18th century French manner with parchment finished Simmons Twin Beds No. 1567 in the same style. The suggestion of French provincial, the formal decoration of pink roses makes this a charming bed, for a bedroom formal and stately in its arrangement. Mrs. Taft says, "These new Simmons Beds have caught the French spirit admirably. They are in good form."

THESE two charming bedrooms, both in spacious New York apartments, are interesting examples of successful planning.

The delightful individuality of each room comes from its happy reflection of the personality, tastes and mode of life of the distinguished woman who planned it. Mrs. Morgan Belmont says of her own room, "It is exactly as I want it." Mrs. Henry W. Taft has the rare genius of creating and running a home faultless in the luxurious perfection of its appointments.

Both these gifted women have chosen for their rooms new beds French in design made by Simmons.

Mrs. Belmont has Model No. 1569 finished in stippled green. It is charming against the pale orchid walls with a quaint old screen of painted glass at the head. Mrs. Taft has another new Model No. 1567, an interesting adaptation of the 18th century French showing the provincial influence.

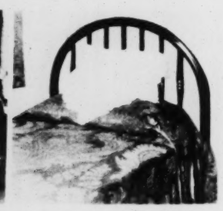
You will find equally successful Simmons Beds to add distinction to the bedrooms in your own home. In a great variety of designs and periods there is one to fit perfectly with every decorative scheme. Being made of metal there is a variety of fine finishes—beautifully grained wood finishes or the choice new colors.

Simmons Beds are made by the world's greatest manufacturer of sleeping equipment. Beautifully constructed for sturdy lasting use, a Simmons Bed equipped with Beautyrest Mattress and AceSpring is perfect for luxurious rest, sound health-giving sleep.

In furniture and department stores Simmons Beds are $10 to $60; No. 1569, $49.75; No. 1567, $53.75. Simmons Beautyrest Mattress $39.50; Simmons Ace Spring $19.75. Look for the name "Simmons." The Simmons Company, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco.

Mrs. Belmont says, "I spend a great deal of time in my bedroom, so I must have it livable and comfortable." The predominating color scheme is orchid, from deep purple satin slipper chairs to the palest mauve walls with touches of green and gold everywhere. The lamps, pictures and casual decorations are rare oriental pieces.

Mrs. Eduard F. Swift has Simmons Beds in different designs equipped with Beautyrest Mattresses and Ace Springs in many of the bedrooms at "Sagamore Hall," her Lake Forest home. Of Model No. 1540 she says: "This Simmons Bed with its trim spindles and gaily printed flower motifs I like especially. It is most attractive in its colorful country-house setting."



Princess Nina of Russia chose this Simmons metal bed, Model No. 1588, for her room in the home of her sister, Mrs. William B. Leeds, at Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island. Princess Nina recently said, "My charming Simmons metal bed is characteristically American, with slender spindles, quite new to me. It typifies your national genius for clean beauty of line, for precision in detail."

Mrs. Belmont's new Simmons Bed, Model No. 1569 in her own bedroom. It is finished in stippled green, charming with the orchid tones of the room.

Mrs. Belmont says, "It has the delicacy, the pure lines of the best modern designs and it is beautifully executed. The lustre and texture of the finish on the metal surfaces are especially successful." The graceful curves of head and footpieces make this design particularly good in a room where there is richness of fabric and color. Mrs. Belmont's bedspread is a fine hand-run net over soft gold silk. The painted glass screen is a quaint heirloom.

BUILT FOR SLEEP

The CREAM THAT Washes away

First apply Pinaud's Cream lightly with the fingertips. You need not rub it in with the strenuous stretching motion used with ordinary creams. Swiftly the cream gathers up the dirt from the pores. Now—instead of just wiping off the surface cream as one ordinarily does—wash both cream and dirt away . . in cool clear water!

Now dry your face with a soft towel. A touch of powder—a whisk of rouge! No astringent is necessary. After this thorough cleansing the pores close naturally. And no powder base either. So exquisitely soft and supple is the skin that powder clings without an additional "base". Truly cleansed, toned and softened, your skin blooms into new beauty.

The most important discovery ever made in the scientific care of the skin

An amazing New Cream . . .

Perfected after fifteen years of research and experiment by the famous French House of Pinaud . .

Cleanses more perfectly, more scientifically than ever before

First—like a magic magnet—Pinaud's cream gathers up the day's dust and powder from the very depths of the pores—"floats" them to the surface.

Then—at the touch of cool water—it "lets go" miraculously—melts quickly away—vanishes like the princess in the fairy tale!

Think what that means—a cream that actually washes away—swiftly, easily, delightfully.

Indeed, you must wash it away—if it is to work for you the miracle it can.

For—as Pinaud's Cream washes away it sweeps with it every bit of dirt and grime it has collected. It does not deposit a single trace of fatty, waxy sediment in the skin—(as dermatologists point out creams usually do)—to coarsen the pores, encourage blackheads, actually age the skin.

No wonder famous skin specialists of two continents enthusiastically declare it the most important discovery ever made in the scientific care of the skin!

With the price, too, you will be astonished—especially when you compare the remarkable spreading quality of Pinaud's Cream with others. When you realize that you actually receive more than four ounces for two dollars—enough for at least one hundred and twenty treatments at less than two cents a treatment!

Fosters Skin Beauty in Nature's Own Way

But the success of Pinaud's Cream is not so amazing when you realize that it actually supplements nature's own method of cleansing the skin. For there is an invisible but constant evaporation of moisture through the pores that tends to wash them clean. But it is not always strong enough to dislodge the close packed accumulations of rouge, powder, grime and waxy sediment that are daily deposited in the skin.

Cleanser—Astringent—Base in One

But Pinaud's Cream does more than cleanse the skin. It stimulates the circulation and tones the tissues! Day by day it causes coarse pores to contract to normal size, as the dirt and fatty accumulations that irritated and enlarged them, are removed. No other astringent is necessary.

And its delicate oils supple the skin delightfully—naturally! They are oils that resemble more closely the fine natural oils of the skin itself than any that have ever been used in a cream before.

Pinaud's Cream washes away leaving no sense of greasiness—leaving your skin so exquisitely softened that powder clings without additional "base".

Develops day by day the beauty Nature intended you to have Indeed, the first few times you use Pinaud's Cream—if your skin is suffering from deep-lying accumulations—you can actually feel its wonderful cleansing power. Feel a faint tingling as the clogging dirt is gently drawn from the pores!

Soft as silk, fresh as a dew drop, smooth as a flower petal grows the cheek that is regularly cleansed and stimulated by this wonderful new cream.

Thousands of women all over the country enthusiastically acclaim its unique effectiveness. Praise, too, its delightful silken texture.

Tomorrow you may discover this astonishing new Cream that is revolutionizing the care of the skin!

And Pinaud's Cream is not only the most remarkable skin preparation made today but it comes in the loveliest jar imaginable. A jar of sea-green crystal—artistically modeled—a delight to possess.

Ask for it at the better drug and department stores in the city. Give Pinaud's Cream a place on your dressing table. Use it regularly and see what Science can mean to your skin. Pinaud, 220 East 21st Street, New York.

Capturing a Floating Gambling Palace Outside the 12-Mile Limit

HOW a Piracy Statute Enacted in 1793 Enabled the Government to Seize the Johanna Smith.

Men and women, some fashionably dressed, leaned over tables where the roulette ball clicked or where the dice spun across the green felt.

By A. L. WOOLDRIDGE

LOS ANGELES.

T WAS a man's-size assignment a Federal Court handed out to Deputy U. S. Marshal Vincent Mangerina here the other day. Briefly, these were his instructions:

"Go out to the S. S. Johanna Smith, anchored off the 12-mile line at Long Beach, take possession of the vessel, seize everything on board in the name of the Government and bring all to dock in San Pedro Harbor. Then report to the head of your department."

Mangerina took the small document handed him and strode slowly from Judge W. B. Sheppard's courtroom. Wow, what a hot one! The Johanna Smith was a full-sized vessel which had carried cargoes all up and down the coast and had made countless voyages to the islands in the sea. She was fully manned and seaworthy. But for weeks she had ridden at anchor just beyond the 12-mile limit and strange carryings-on had been reported aboard. Along in the early hours of each evening, fast-running little motor boats set out from the shore loaded with neatly-dressed men and women who went aboard the Johanna Smith and disappeared like rats in a hole. Trip after trip was made by these put-put runners until hundreds of passengers were transported. Then, when darkness came on, electric lights flashed throughout all the ship and night parties began.

"Gambling!" surmised the Federal agents. "We better look into that."

An investigation was made and the officers found the Johanna Smith off the California coast converted into a floating palace, with roulette wheels, faro tables, dice tables and other paraphernalia, all going full blast. Right under their very noses, as it were! But that wasn't the worst of it: the skipper, or captain (whichever it was), the man in charge, at least, met the officers unperturbed and said:

"Yes, we have some very nice little games going. But what of it? It doesn't disturb you gentlemen, I am sure, because we are beyond the 12-mile limit. We're on the high seas, you know. But won't you come in and look around?"

Would they come in? Certainly! And in they went to see a sight which made them rub their eyes. Men and women, some fashionably dressed, leaned over tables where the roulette ball clicked or where the dice spun across the green felt. Croupiers with small rakes in their hands dealt and pulled in the red, white and blue chips. Bank notes came from pockets, to be exchanged for counters, and money seemed flowing like water. The room was flooded with electric light and chatter and there was none of that furtiveness in the players' faces so often seen when "the joint is likely to be pinched" by the police on land.

Whereupon they departed.

"Chase her away!" cried indignant citizens. "Arrest her—with all on board! Bring 'em in!"

"Yeah!" replied the Deputy United States Marshals and officers in the Coast Guard Service. "You do it! We haven't the authority."

Thus began a fight which has raged all summer and which tended to upset the equanimity of all Federal, State and civic authorities on the coast of Southern California. First, the City of Long Beach sought and caused the arrest of the "taxi" boats plying to and from the parent vessel. They could be convicted of no crime. When feeling against the operators became too intense, they shifted their base down the coast a trifle. When that vicinity became too hot, they moved to another, until it became virtually a game of hide-and-seek. But always the patrons of the gaming tables found the landing places of the boats and managed to make the ship.

The Johanna Smith could be seen by day, basking in the rays of the southern sun, and again by night with brilliant lights ablaze. Stories went the rounds about fortunes won and fortunes lost. It appeared that the authorities were stumped in their efforts to stop the gambling. That is, it appeared that way until Federal Judge Sheppard handed Deputy U. S. Marshal Mangerina that little document, together with the assignment—"Take possession of the vessel, seize everything on board in the name of the Government and bring all to dock in San Pedro Harbor. Then report to the head of your department."

Nevertheless, he boarded a tug and set out in company with Deputy Marshals Morey Tovil and Joseph R. Seaman, together with a battery of newspaper cameramen. Without encountering opposition, the small invading party drew up alongside the steamship and clambered aboard. The crew of the ship looked on disinterestedly as the deputies advanced toward Joe Sweitzer, who was pointed out as the man in charge.

"I have an order from a United States court to seize your ship," said Mangerina.

"Yes? Try and do it! You're not big enough," the skipper replied.

"Thasso? Well, you take your Federal court order and get to h—l out of here," the skipper replied, or words to that effect.

The ship's crew began closing in on the little band. While storm clouds were gathering, Albert Howard, asserted to be sole owner of the vessel, arrived. He, too, refused to recognize the authority of the marshals, and presently the little band was cornered and a nasty row seemed imminent.

From alongside, the men aboard a tug, the Louis Black, heard the disturbance and saw the situation of the trio of marshals. Ralph Lemert crept to his radio instrument and presently the wireless in coast guard headquarters began sputtering.

"My person and life are in jeopardy aboard the S. S. Johanna Smith," the instrument dotted and dashed. The message was signed "Mangerina."

Lemert knew the provision which requires a person to be in jeopardy of life and person before the coast guard may answer a call for help.

Speed boats were coming out from shore with prospective patrons, but when they drew alongside they sensed something was wrong and none clambered aboard.

PRESENTLY the shiny prow of the coast-guard cutter, Arrow, her mountings glistening in the sun, the muzzles of her guns uncapped, rounded the prow of the Johanna Smith. Her propellers spun into reverse and slowly—very slowly, so it seemed to the beleaguered marshals—she swung against the side of the big gambling ship. She grated bellies with her. The next moment 15 "devil dogs," armed with regulation weapons and under command of Boatswain Walter Wilson, clambered atop of the rail.

"Over at this side, all of you!" the bos'n ordered the men of the big ship.

Grumbling but obeying, the crew sullenly moved. When the situation was explained, Boatswain Wilson ordered the engineers' crew to work. Each member refused. The coast guardsmen then set about building fires under the ship's boilers in order to raise steam sufficient to weigh anchor.

"But we are out on the high seas!" the owner of the vessel protested. "You have no right to board us."

"We'll see," replied the officers.

Caked with mud and barnacles, the anchor ropes began rising. The slime of the sea moss and kelp, torn from their moorings, had become entwined about the anchor chains. Eventually they were hoisted, and under escort of Mangerina's tug and two coast-guard cutters the trip to the harbor began. The gambling ship, looking somewhat like a spanked child, was warped into a berth in West Basin. Something like $11,000 in cash was removed from her lockers and a Federal officer placed in command.

"And you think we have no right to seize you?" asked Deputy Mangerina.

"You have not."

"Well," the officer replied, "here's a little act of Congress, passed in February, 1793, exactly 135 years ago, which says:

"Whenever any licensed vessel is • • • employed in any other trade than that for which she is licensed • • • such vessel, with her tackle, apparel, furniture and cargo found on board her shall be forfeited."

Mangerina folded the paper and put it in his pocket.

"The Johanna Smith was licensed for carrying on coastal trade on February 14 of this year, was she not?" he asked.

"Yes!"

"Just what kind of trade is followed with roulette wheels, dice tables and paraphernalia of that sort?"

THE 135-year-old Federal statute had been discovered by Assistant U. S. Attorney Gwyn S. Redwine, after weeks of search for some measure which would eliminate the west coast's "gambling palace." The task seemed hopeless till he stumbled onto the ancient act. Then he at once filed a libel action charging that the Johanna Smith was not carrying on a coastal trade as set forth in her license. The action said that "for a period of more than 60 days preceding the filing of this libel the said vessel has not engaged in the coastal trade in any manner." It charged explicitly that the Johanna Smith "has been anchored upon the high seas within the admiralty and marittme jurisdictions of the United States • • • and has been conducted as a gambling barge and has been devoted exclusively to that use, which constitutes violation of the terms of the ship's license."

Deputy Mangerina, poking around in the dark corners of the ship, found an opium pipe and layout, and narcotic agents from Federal headquarters found traces of dope in the bowl of the pipe. So, it seemed possible, narcotic charges would be added to the libel charges.

In the opinion of California Federal officers, the statute enacted in February, 1793, was intended to apply to cases of piracy or to smuggling on the high seas over which the Government had been unable to assume complete jurisdiction.

It was an act which implied: "So long as you are flying our flag, you've got to be decent. Stick to your licensed trade or in you'll come, and your ship will be sold."

The Johanna Smith is valued at approximately $100,000 by her owners. This includes the vessel, the gaming tables, the mirrors and carpets and cushions and things which made the interior luxuriant. When lighted at night she looked like a little fairyland with a myriad stars twinkling away off in the water.

THE ride to her in the cool of the evening in motor boats seemed a lark to her patrons. But if they drank liquors en route or aboard the ship, it had to be their own. The owners did not purpose running afoul of the prohibition laws. Possibly this was because of the rum ships which ply between Canada and the California coast or the vessels which slide in at night from below the Mexican border.

According to investigation made by officers, the bulk of the Johanna Smith's patrons arrived at the ocean front in automobiles. There were men sometimes in evening clothes—or rather, in dinner jackets. There were gay automobile parties whose members had their names in the Blue Book and who could afford to drop a thousand or two without endangering the winter's supply of coal.

The case of the Johanna Smith likely will run through the courts for a period of months while her owners give bond for the vessel's release, to be followed by a debate before many tribunals to decide her fate. It's a strange case, hinging upon a law enacted more than a century ago.

Effie and Addie Cherry

By M. W. CHILDS
of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa.

THE auditorium of the new Municipal Coliseum here is packed to capacity with Iowa legionnaires. They are a cheering, howling mob, venting their feelings after listening to two hours of speech-making. The curtain goes up and two ladies of obviously gentle birth and uncertain age come forward. A wave of sound billows up over the footlights at them. They bow sweetly.

The Cherry Sisters have come back to the stage in that immortal dramatic offering, "The Gypsy's Warning."

Addie is the Spanish cavalier with something of a wicked reputation. Effie is the gypsy whose daughter lies under the cold, cold ground, a victim of the cavalier's villainy. The gypsy sings a bitter warning to little Buttercup, who persists in loving the cavalier. But now this Spanish gentleman comes forward and proves he is a gentleman of birth. Buttercup is folded to his breast.

Cheers, cries and catcalls persist throughout this tender offering. But the Cherry Sisters give no heed. They accept this tribute to their artistry unblushingly.

This performance, which was given before the State convention of the Legion the other night, was in the nature of an anniversary appearance. It was just 30 years ago that Addie, Effie—and there was Jessie then—started their dramatic career in Cedar Rapids. And as either Addie or Effie will tell you, they have since made their name a byword in every household in which the American theater is respected, all reports that their acting was so bad that they had to play behind a wire netting for protection to the contrary.

BACK in 1898 they were just three merry little schoolgirls out for a lark. They were left orphans while they were still in their teens and they took to running a dairy. Then one day Effie had the idea that they should give a theatrical performance. She could sing in a voice that was almost a baritone, Addie was a soprano, and Jessie could be little Buttercup. The manager of a Cedar Rapids theater agreed to let them have his house for $50 for a night. And thus the Cherry Sisters started.

They were an immense hit. Whether because they were so bad or so good no one seems very certain. Anyway, they played in a number of surrounding towns to packed houses. They worked out some "Original Specialties." Jessie, who was the cleverest of the three, worked out a variation on "Ta Ra Ra, Boom-de-Ay," that went "Cherries ripe, Boom-de-Ay, Cherries red; Boom-de-Ay." All three wore cherry red satin dresses, cherry red hats, and cherry red lace mitts, and Jessie, who was only 12 years old, pounded a big bass drum on the "Boom-de-Ay." That was appreciated, too.

Somehow, word of their success reached Broadway. Oscar Hammerstein, who was then director of Hammerstein's Theater, sent an agent out to see the act. This agent must have been a very shrewd fellow; he foresaw fame for the Cherry Sisters and much money for Mr. Hammerstein. He told them to come down to New York to try out.

IT IS reported that when Oscar Hammerstein first saw the act he was appalled. "Terrible," is said to have been the mildest of many epithets which he applied to it. He summoned his agent, who explained that that was just the point. They were so terrible they were good. A little adroit press agenting was done to spread abroad the nature of the act and soon the Cherry Sisters were on Broadway.

There were calls for their act from everywhere. A half-dozen cities clamored to see "The Gypsy's Warning." It was in Toronto, Canada, that an innovation was added.

A theater manager there hit upon the idea of planting a half-dozen or so men in the audience who fired vegetables and other edibles at the defenseless sisters just as Addie, as the Spanish cavalier, was about to prove her gentlemanly qualities.

Now the Cherry Sisters have an explanation for this. They see a fine piece of villainy behind it. "The manager of that theater asked us out to drink wine with him," Effie says, "and we told him we never went out with managers and we never drank booze. And then he put those plants in the house. Oh, it was the dirtiest trick." Addie appealed to a policeman and he told her that we were good pure women and he wouldn't see us treated so.

But there were other managers, it seems, who were almost equally caddish. One in Spokane, Washington, for example. He invited the sisters out to drink wine, too, Addie says, and when they spurned him he sat in a stage box during their performance and humiliated them. Addie laughs: "They look like three schoolma'ams coming out to lay down the rules," he said. "They're so good they're even pious." And the whole house heard him." Addie and Effie go off into gales of laughter at this reminiscence.

The vegetables had become somewhat of a tradition by this time. They had enlarged their act with other specialties, so that it lasted, including "The Gypsy's Warning," about an hour and a half. They were billed alone and there was scarcely a young blade of the late nineties but boasted he had hurled a cabbage or two at the Cherry Sisters. Boasted quite untruthfully, Effie and Addie now say, for they put all that business down to vile and scheming managers.

Returning to Iowa, they were given a proper acclaim. They played before 5000 people in a park at Keokuk, Iowa. And they got only $200 for the performance. Here again Effie and Addie have a grievance against the managers. The latter took all the money, or most of it, they say, and all they had was the fun.

IT WAS in Iowa, however, that another piece of villainy was perpetrated. It was a newspaper reporter in Osage, Iowa, according to Effie and Addie, who first spread the report that they had to play behind a screen for self-protection.

At mention of this Effie bristles indignantly. "We never had to play behind a screen once, did we, Addie? That all was started by that reporter and we know why he did it, too. He came up on the stage when we were playing in Osage and we thought we detected liquor on his breath, so we ordered him off. He said he'd write us up in the Dubuque papers. And he put in that screen story. And everyone's repeated it since. I always did say that a lie will travel around the world before truth can put on its shoes."

It was in Butte, Montana, that they were really appreciated. The manager there, Dick Sutton, was putting on "Nugget Nell," and playing to very slim houses. Along came the Cherry Sisters, who had no billing for a week. He put them on as an added attraction. "Why, we packed the house every night, didn't we, Addie?" Effie says. They found the Westerners true gentlemen.

Finally their popularity waned. Effie and Jessie contracted typhoid fever on a tour of the South. Jessie died and for a long time afterward Effie was very ill. Later they came back to their old home in Cedar Rapids to live. Concerning this later period, Effie scotched another rumor. "The papers always say we lost a fortune we'd made on the stage through bad investments. We never had a fortune to lose."

They played occasionally in various Iowa cities, but bookings became few and fewer. They made an appearance in St. Louis five years ago and in this connection they maintain they were sadly duped. They got a wire offering a week's engagement.

When they reached St. Louis they found that they were expected to play in a burlesque house. Before that time they maintain they had always played in the best and most respectable houses. But since they had gone all the way to St. Louis they filled the engagement. "Mind you, he sent a wire, and not a letter, that would have had a letterhead telling it was a burlesque house," Addie says.

They feel that burlesque is considerably beneath them. Recently a motion picture portraying a husband wandering from the straight and narrow path in his wife's absence showed him entering a burlesque theater at which, apparently, to add a touch of realism, the Cherry Sisters were billed. This aroused their ire. Effie wrote an indignant letter to the motion picture company.

"Mind you, he wrote back and said he'd never heard of the Cherry Sisters," Addie says. "He must come from the backwoods or somewhere."

Four years ago Effie entered politics. She ran for Mayor on a reform platform and came within a few hundred votes of winning the election. She believes this a pagan and Godless age.

"WHY, you can see on the streets and in the very church itself what would have been considered indecent on the stage in my time," she says. "Why, formerly they didn't show their knees even in the ballet, but now you can see all the knees you want to on any street."

In her campaign Effie stressed the bathing beaches and the scandalous costumes to be seen there. "Why, I don't see why they can't wear what we used to wear out in California," she says. "Nice bloomers of blue Henrietta cloth, and a nice waist with wide sleeves and black stockings and black shoes and a nice little blue cap. I remember a girl in California once asked the matron at the beach if she could go in without her stockings and she told her of course not."

Again in 1926 Effie ran for Mayor, but this time she was disastrously beaten. "They say my votes weren't counted," she explains, "but I didn't count them over again."

Earlier they had tried to run a bakery and had had some success. They specialized in cherry pies. But after a time they gave this up. They now rent a considerable portion of the large house they own here. "We'll have to hang ourselves on the wall, I tell Effie, if we rent much more of it," Addie says.

Effie now has determined on a career as an author. She has written three novels—"The Old Blacksmith's Daughter," "Ellanor," and "The Old Hermit's Daughter." She also has a play, "Nobody's Child," which is very much in the key of "The Gypsy's Warning." She has had several offers for the play, she says, but intends to revise it first.

"I could write all day," Effie tells you. "I just love to write."

In fact, they hope to give up the stage for good and all in a year or two, abandoning even their rare appearances in the larger Iowa towns, where they still draw good houses. They are quite disgusted with the condition of the present-day stage, and they have little tolerance for the movies.

"We wouldn't think of going in the movies," Effie says. "They're good for nothing at all. The way they ruined that sweet play, 'Way Down East.' And they're driving out the better things of the stage. People don't seem to appreciate good things any more."

IT WOULD be wrong to leave an impression, however, that Effie and Addie are embittered. Quite the opposite is true. They are as jolly as two canaries. They're still strong for larking in a nice way. It's "Whoops Addie," and "Whoops Effie." If the world doesn't feel as they do about a number of things, then it's just too bad for the world. There is a strong suspicion, too, that they may not be altogether unaware of the exact character of their vaudeville act, one reason for this belief being the extreme care they take to play "The Gypsy's Warning" in the tradition of thirty years ago.

Marriage?? "Hmmm," Addie exclaims. "With so many other interesting things to think of and do, I can't understand why these modern girls are so crazy to get married right off."

That's the way both Effie and Addie feel about it and it's probable they'll just go right on having fun and doing things they like to do. If any more bookings should come their way, now that they've ventured back for an anniversary appearance, they will take them, and if Effie has a literary success they will welcome that, but nothing like that happens they will still have a house and each other and it is probable that they won't feel very badly about it because they can always look back on the days of their glory.

ANOTHER BOGUS NOBLEMAN and his PICTURESQUE FRAUDS

Mrs. Margaret Van Rensselaer Tyner, who married Harland in the belief that he was "Viscount Beauclerc Duprez."

Francis Harland Is Now in the Tombs but for a While He Was a Social Favorite in Palm Beach and New York.

NEW YORK.

AFTER six dizzy months of high life, during which he posed as an English nobleman and was lionized by society, Francis Willis Harland now sits in Tombs Prison convicted of larceny. For six short months this handsome young English adventurer was the rage in the haute monde of New York and Palm Beach. He dressed expensively, occupied costly suites in hotels and was lavishly entertained by thrilled debutantes and eager widows. Formal tea parties and less formal pajama parties were given in his honor. As Viscount Beauclerc Duprez, son of the Earl of Edgecombe, he married a wealthy widow and society leader of Washington. Then as Sir Francis Norton-Howard, nephew of the British Ambassador, he obtained credit and cash from sober New York business men. But his forgeries and tall talk finally tripped him up, and he is now serving an indeterminate term of from one day to three years in prison for swindling one of his trusting admirers out of $610. When the bogus Viscount finishes his term he will be deported to England, richer by a greater variety of unusual experiences than usually falls to the lot of an alien visitor to these shores.

THIRTY years ago, when he was an infant only a few days old, Harland was abandoned by his parents on the steps of a London foundling asylum. He was raised in the orphanage, and when he was 15 ran away to enlist as a trumpeter in the Nineteenth Royal Hussars. He served through the war with that regiment and with the Black Watch, but when the war was ended he seemed unable to adjust himself to normal life. For a time he worked as a journalist. He married a typist, but he was soon getting into various minor difficulties with the police over questionable financial transactions. He wearied of his marriage, and in order to give his wife grounds for a divorce openly flaunted before her his relations with other women. She left him, but did not seek a divorce. Then Harland swindled a man and was sentenced to a year in Wandsworth Prison in London for obtaining money under false pretenses. His sentence was shortened to 10 months for good behavior.

His next appearance was made as secretary and publicity man for the celebrated Lady Sholto Douglas, whose private fortune of some $40,000,000 makes her one of the wealthiest of English society women. Lady Sholto Douglas was ambitious to become a movie actress in Hollywood, and with this in mind she engaged passage to the United States on board the S. S. Majestic early last January. She took Harland, who gave his full name as Francis Willis Harland-Edgecombe, along as secretary.

ALL his expenses were paid, he was supplied with an extensive wardrobe and was given opportunity to mingle with wealthy and smart people, so that if he had made good use of his chances he might have gained permanent advantages. His chief task was to see that Lady Sholto Douglas obtained the proper amount of publicity, and the reward for his services was to be the paying of his expenses and a percentage of her movie earnings.

At Southampton, England, Lady Sholto Douglas and her handsome secretary boarded the Majestic. The voyage was a picnic for Harland. He met and played with the nicest people on board. He and Lady Douglas had their meals in the exclusive Ritz room on the ship and there they formed part of a fashionable group of notables. Their party soon included Emil Ludwig, the eminent biographer, coming for his triumphal tour of the United States; John McCormack, the tenor; Gloria Fair Vanderbilt and a number of lesser lights.

Perhaps it was McCormack who unwittingly turned Harland's thoughts off in the direction they were later to take, for one afternoon in the lounge the famous singer, turned to Lady Douglas' secretary and asked:

"Well, what are you going to do in America?"

"Why, like most young Englishmen," replied Harland, "I am going to try to make a fortune."

McCormack smiled.

"That should be easy for you, with your personality and appearance. Why, you'll have all the wealthy widows and eligible young heiresses falling all over you when you arrive."

And if McCormack's prophecy was to come true there was good reason for it, for Harland was indeed a personable young man. Sturdily built, with the light hair and blue eyes characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon, he dressed in excellent taste, conducted himself with the easy dignity of a born gentleman and handled his monocle and London accent to perfection. Harland himself later described it perfectly when he remarked in court that, "I crashed into society with a monocle, an extensive wardrobe, an Oxford accent and tolerably good manners."

THROUGH acquaintances met on the boat and through Lady Douglas, he was soon received into the best Park avenue homes. He attended fashionable debuts and tea parties, was overwhelmed with dinner invitations and was soon a cause of contention among ambitious ladies who were rivals for the honor of having him grace their assemblies. Then at one party he was introduced as a "Lord." Harland now denies that he began the deception, saying that he was first introduced in that way at a party by a hostess who was eager to show off a nobleman. At any rate, Harland did not discourage the deception, and he was soon known not only as Francis Harland Edgecombe, but also as Viscount Beauclerc Duprez, son of the Earl of Edgecombe. It was at about this time that Lady Douglas must have learned of his carryings-on, and they soon came to a parting of the ways. One of the reasons for the break may have been her disapproval of his imposture. Another may have been the fact that he forged a check for $500 drawn upon her account. But Lady Douglas did not prosecute him. She wanted publicity, but not the kind such action would have caused, so she therefore picked up and departed for Hollywood, leaving Harland to shift for himself as best he could in New York.

At one of the fashionable parties given shortly after his arrival, Harland met Mrs. Margaret Van Rensselaer Tyner, well known in Washington society and the wealthy widow of Bloomfield Tyner, nephew of a former Postmaster-General of the United States. She was many years his senior and the mother of a married son older than Harland. Nevertheless, the wealthy widow and the handsome young Viscount became intensely interested in one another and were often seen together in New York before Mrs. Tyner left the city in February for the fashionable season at Palm Beach. It was shortly after Mrs. Tyner's departure that Lady Douglas dismissed Harland and started for Hollywood.

WITH the money obtained from his forged check against his erstwhile employer, the Viscount departed for Palm Beach, and there he paid court to the lovely widow and had a perfectly wonderful time mixing with society's elite at the fashionable resort. It seems as though it never entered anyone's mind to look up the young impostor's pedigree in the English Who's Who or in Burke's Peerage. The sharp dames who in a second would have detected a false note in the dress or manners of a nouveau riche aspirant to social standing swallowed Harland's impudent claims hook, line and sinker, or perhaps one should say, monocle, walking stick and accent. They took him at his face value, and since it was far from being an unattractive face, he rated high indeed. It took him less than two months of a whirlwind courtship to win Mrs. Tyner, and on March 7 most of the papers of the country carried the announcement that the Viscount Beauclerc Duprez of Devonshire, England, had been married the previous day to Mrs. Margaret Van Rensselaer Tyner. The wedding took place at the Episcopal Church of Bethesda-by-the-Sea, at West Palm Beach, the Rev. Dr. M. George Thompson officiating.

The newly-acquired wife paid all the expenses of the honeymoon, and the noble couple installed themselves in a luxurious suite at the White Hall, Palm Beach, at a cost of $30 a day, not including the cost of accessories and meals. The bride's son and daughter-in-law came down from Chicago to pay the couple a congratulatory visit. Everyone was happy. But the state of bliss was of short duration. From moving so many weeks in an atmosphere of luxury and wealth, Harland seems to have begun suffering delusions of grandeur.

HIS association with people of wealth began to create in him the delusion of being wealthy himself, and as a wedding present to his wife, he gave her a draft for $5000 on Lloyd's Bank in London. It was a generous but unnecessary gesture in view of the fact that his wife had plenty of money. But it was also a rather foolish gesture in view of the fact that he didn't have a penny at Lloyd's. The draft came back unhonored and with it the disclosure that the Viscount Beauclerc Duprez was a creation of Mr. Francis Willis Harland's ingenious imagination. There was an unpleasant scene, in which tears and accusations flowed freely. The couple separated and Harland's wife promptly had the marriage annulled.

She did not prosecute Harland, however, and he soon returned to New York and registered at the Hotel Roosevelt. Now he was Sir Francis Norton-Howard. He produced a forged letter of introduction from Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador at Washington, to Mayor Walker, and on the strength of this engaged a large suite of rooms. To make his arrival at the hotel impressive he had brought with him a number of pieces of luggage. But one day the hotel management discovered that whereas some of the bags contained excellent clothes, several of them contained nothing but telephone directories. To put their suspicions at rest, the management asked Sir Francis to pay his bill. When this request was made it happened that Harland was having tea with a young society girl who had come to the hotel as his guest. Harland was unable to pay up, and to avoid possible scandal his guest paid the required $119. Sir Francis moved from the Roosevelt.

Then one afternoon shortly thereafter he presented himself to Everett R. Currier, president of a New York publishing house. He showed him the impressive letter of introduction to Mayor Walker and informed Mr. Currier that he had been commissioned by the Essex Fox Hounds Hunt Club of New Jersey to publish a book he had written recently, called "Fifty Years With Horse and Hounds." He informed Mr. Currier that he was going to give the book to Mr. Currier's firm for publication, and the publisher was so delighted at the prospect that he provided "Sir Francis" with office space and advanced him money from time to time while the book was being prepared for the press.

Then one day Harland announced that he was going to Washington to see his uncle, the Ambassador, and that while there he was going to make arrangements for the British Embassy's printing contract to be given to Mr. Currier. On the strength of this promise he obtained $200 and departed. A week later Mr. Currier received a letter from the proprietor of an inn at Bernardsville, New Jersey. The letter stated that a gentleman purporting to be a vice president of Currier's company had cashed a check there for a hundred dollars, and in addition had borrowed $15 in cash. The check had been returned as no good, and the innkeeper wanted to know if Mr. Currier would not be good enough to settle his partner's account.

From this innkeeper's description of his recent guest Mr. Currier immediately realized that the author of the bogus check and "Sir Francis" were one and the same. And then it occurred to Mr. Currier to communicate with the British Consul-General of New York, who verified the publisher's suspicions that he had been imposed upon and fleeced. And Mr. Currier reported the matter to the police.

ONE evening not long after Mr. Currier had complained to the police, Harland, accoutered in immaculate evening dress and equipped with his walking stick, monocle and Oxford accent, was lounging on the mezzanine floor of the Hotel McAlpin. Soon he was accosted by another gentleman, also in evening dress and equipped with monocle and an Oxford accent. The two gentlemen began to exchange reminiscences about dear old London and gay times at Mayfair, when the second gentleman suddenly brought the chat to an unpleasant conclusion by disclosing the fact that he was James Coy, Lieutenant of Detectives. The two gentlemen then left the hotel arm in arm, and the conversation was later continued before Judge Collins in General Sessions Court.

None of the society ladies was vulgar enough to bring charges against the former guest and celebrity, but Mr. Currier, being a hard-headed business man, seemed to be unforgiving, and it was on his charge that Harland pleaded guilty and was sentenced to jail.

The QUEEN of the AIR and Her
BIG-TOP ROMANCE

Lillian Leitzel and her husband, Alfredo Codona.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CHICAGO.

ALMOST everybody has heard of Lillian Leitzel. Even the most ascetic member of the Ladies' Aid Society could tell you right off that she is the circus "Queen of the Air," one of the most celebrated trapeze performers, and has been since early childhood. But in spite of her widespread fame, it is safe to say not one in a million could tell anything about her private life. It is one of the traditions of the circus that the private affairs of the performers belong to themselves and not to the public. Unlike theatrical and movie stars, who keep minute details of their lives on public parade, circus people keep to themselves and go on public view only in the ring. And also, they must lead exemplary private lives. No breath of scandal is permitted to touch them. Even romance which flowers in the sawdust ring is taboo as publicity material. Circus owners seek and get columns of newspaper space devoted to the circus and its wonders, but not publicity that touches the personal affairs of its stars.

So, for that reason, Lillian Leitzel's romance, which was indeed a very pretty one, and which reached the stage of matrimony a few days ago, got by almost unnoticed. When she slipped quietly away one Saturday night after a performance and married Alfredo Codona, a featured gymnast and her childhood sweetheart, the press agents were gently but firmly restrained from dashing off many columns of copy about the "heart-throbbing romance of the big top."

Instead of being swamped with ready-made material and ready-made pictures, newspaper men even found it exceedingly difficult to gather enough information to make a graceful announcement of the event. How unlike the wedding of a movie star! But after diligent research, some of the facts about Lillian Leitzel's trapeze romance began to come to light.

THE love story of Lillian Leitzel and Alfredo Codona began back in European days when the two were "children of the circus." They were children of circus performers who entertained crowds from one end of Europe to the other. As children they became sweethearts.

During school days there were long periods of separation, broken only now and then by fleeting reunions while the two worked together for one circus or another. Eventually they came to America, and landed with Ringling Brothers' circus, where they have since remained. From the time of that reunion the romance has moved smoothly, at last arriving, almost secretly, at the altar a short time ago. After the marriage they went back to their circus duties as quietly as they had left them. The bride continued to be what she had been for several years—the outstanding star of the circus world. The excitement attending upon the business of getting married interfered not one whit with her featured stunt of revolving 200 times from the end of a rope at the topmost part of the big canvas.

And the bridegroom, too, went about his most hazardous and difficult feats without the flutter of an eyelid. Codona is not so well known to the public as his bride, but in circus circles he is recognized as one of the leading gymnasts of the profession. He is the male star of the flying trapeze troupe and is said to be the only performer in the world to do a triple somersault in the air. In performing this, he swings from one trapeze to another, where he is caught by his brother, Lalo Codona, suspended head down from the second swing.

Both the newlyweds come of long-established European circus families.

Lillian's real name, before her marriage, was Lillian Pelekan, and the Pelekans had been circus stars as far back as any of them can remember.

Lillian, though of Bohemian blood, was born in Paris, while her mother's outfit was showing there. The mother, Mme. Zoe Pelekan, was a star gymnast on the trapeze and flying rings.

Codona's father and grandfather were aerial performers, too. He was born in Madrid, while his parents were working in the same organization with Mme. Pelekan. Alfredo and Lillian were playmates and devoted to each other.

Their first separation came when they attained school age. For circus children must go to school, as well as other children. There is a rudimentary school with every circus organization, but educations must be finished at "regular" schools.

Miss Leitzel for a time entertained some idea of deserting the circus for a musical career. She specialized in music at school and became a highly accomplished pianist. Between circus engagements she has appeared in concerts in both Europe and America. But the call of the circus was too strong.

Rejoining her mother's organization in Europe after a brief venture into concert life, Lillian found that, by some strange coincidence, Alfredo Codona also was a performer there, his school days over and his serious life work before him. Alfredo had never dreamed of any other life. For several more years the two traveled throughout Europe, becoming stars and ever growing more attached to each other. Then, some 10 years ago, American circus owners began reaching out for European stars. Huge salaries brought many veteran performers across the Atlantic.

MISS LEITZEL was one of these. She was brought to America by Ringling Brothers, who soon developed her into the world's greatest woman aerialist. Codona played in Europe for several more seasons, then he, too, came to America with the Walter L. Main circus. Later he joined the John Robinson show, where he developed into a star and was then signed by Ringling Brothers.

That move brought the childhood lovers together for the third time, and again they renewed their courtship. In the circus world there are few swift romances, such as characterize motion-picture and stage colonies. Courtship and marriage are regarded as serious affairs. So, before they had even become formally engaged, enough time had elapsed to permit a motion-picture star to be engaged, married and divorced a time or two. And it was some months after the betrothal before the date of marriage was set. Everything like that is regular and conventional beneath the big top. And not because of any pressure on the part of the management, either. The performers themselves will have it that way. They respect traditions.

Miss Leitzel teaching the children of circus employes.

FOUND with some difficulty after the formal notice of their marriage appeared, the newlyweds were shy and reticent. They plainly indicated their marriage was their own affair and they didn't see why it should interest anyone else. Lillian would hardly discuss her romance at all.

"Alfredo and I have been sweethearts since we were 12 years old," she finally explained. "We have been in love with each other and with our work from childhood and we intend to stay under the big top for the rest of our lives."

Alfredo was even briefer, but his sentiments echoed those expressed by Lillian.

"Leave the circus?" he repeated incredulously. "Oh, no! We're going to perform before circus crowds as long as we live."

Aside from her work with the trapeze and the dangling rope, Lillian's chief interest in the circus is the school for children, in which she is an enthusiastic teacher. Daily she gathers about her, in the special tent set aside for the purpose, the future circus performers and instructs them in their A B C's and the mysteries of the multiplication table. Her brother, George Alfred Pelekan, is director of art in the Milwaukee public schools.

When the big show goes into winter quarters, Miss Leitzel, as she will continue to be known, and her husband will go to Europe for their honeymoon, revisiting the cities where they played together as children. After that they will live in New York when not on tour. On the marriage license Miss Leitzel gave her age as 30. Codona is two years older.

REVOLUTIONARY OUTBURSTS IN EUROPE'S MIDGET NATION

VADUZ.

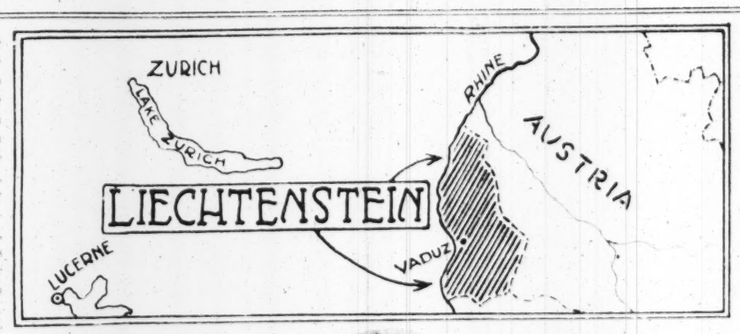
THE above word, Vaduz, is not a new mouth wash or a typographical error; it is a town and more than a town; it is the capital of Liechtenstein. And, though very few, we admit, are aware of it, Liechtenstein is a principality, a free and sovereign state, and it has just gone through a political crisis that has shaken it to its national toes. That may not mean much to anybody else, but it means a lot to the Liechtensteiners.

The cynical may continue to doubt the authenticity of this state, they may believe it a companion piece to Graustark. If they do, they are referred to an atlas; there, after some perusal, they may locate it, tucked in between Switzerland and Austria, a pin-head on the map, a Lilliputian state of some 12,000 inhabitants, a free land of 65 square miles—a nation covering just a little more territory than Staten Island.

But patriotic hearts throb in Liechtenstein with quite as much fervor as they do anywhere else, for to the Liechtensteiner, be the Government ever so rotten, there's no place like Liechtenstein. And rotten the Government was, great threats of revolution arose, and to the aged and benevolent Prince John II, ill in Vienna, came the grim message that internal strife threatened his country. Sick, hardly able to make the journey back to his capital, he nevertheless made ready for departure, then, summoning to his side his nephew, Prince Albert, the ruler bade him speed to the land of his home, and so Prince Albert did. And once there, the young Prince belabored the villains who would have corrupted his country and brought revolution upon it, in such a lusty manner that, within a half-hour of his arrival, he had dismissed the Government, dissolved the Parliament and made himself temporary dictator, proving once again that truth is stranger than George Barr McCutcheon.

The crisis was caused by the situation of the National Bank. It was a nasty situation, and it grew out of the discovery of numerous unpaid checks lying around Europe, and, as we inferred before, the crisis was enhanced by the somber fact that 88-year-old Prince John had lumbago.

In fact, Prince John, fighting lumbago in Vienna, had just about decided to relinquish all interest in matters of Government, when the news of the pretty mess that his country was in reached him by courier.



Map showing location of the principality of Liechtenstein.

Prince John II, monarch of Liechtenstein.

That information seemed to act as a counter irritant to the ruler's ailment; for his courier brought him the news that the bank packed by the Government was in water of an unusually high temperature. Someone, it seemed, had drawn a check for 200,000 Swiss francs ($40,000) on its funds through a prominent Hungarian banker. The check was signed in the name of the bank by its manager. But, alas, the check could not be met.

The Hungarian banker was pardonably annoyed; he not only demanded immediate payment, he also demanded an immediate explanation from the Government.

Whereupon came the exposure, and whereupon come the discovery that scores of checks, never met by the bank, were lying about in other parts of Europe. They, too, were all signed by the manager, who, it was revealed, gave blank, signed checks in wholesale lots to Herr Waltzer, leader of the People's party, and a member of Parliament. Liechtenstein had an "Ohio gang," but Liechtenstein and Prince John, unlike a certain and slightly larger nation in another part of the world, decided to do something about it.

For this Herr Waltzer—so they charge—equipped with the above-mentioned checks as his financial resources, had for more than a year traveled hither and thither about Europe, speculating and waxing plump on the proceeds. More than $400,000, it was discovered, had disappeared and the Government of Liechtenstein was drawn into the scandal when it was shown that as early as last March they had sent to Vienna an official agent to recover checks drawn on the Liechtenstein Bank, but never honored.

Liechtenstein got on its hind legs. The citizenry waited for the Government's resignation, they waited and they waited, but, to the good people's irritation, the Government gave no evidence of resigning at all, at all. Rumble! Plans for a revolution were drawn up by a group of the younger followers of the Opposition party.

Prince Albert kicked the rascals out. An election followed and a new parliament took its seats in the imposing Parliament building. Herr Waltzer, the bank manager and several others had seats in the same building, but the latter gentlemen were in the basement, which portion of the Parliamentary structure serves as one of Liechtenstein's places of incarceration and Prince John—he is a millionaire—contributed $200,000 toward a national fund.

WALL STREET BROKER

Who Became

New York's BEST DETECTIVE

Twice Honored for Distinguished Service, John H. F. Cordes Joined the Force Because It Was His Boyhood Dream.

Detective Sergeant Cordes receiving the Medal of Honor from Mayor Walker as Commissioner Warren looks on.

NEW YORK.

THE best detective in New York City is John H. F. Cordes. Anyway, that is what Police Commissioner Warren thinks and what he said to everybody present the other day when he pinned the department's Medal of Honor on the Detective Sergeant's breast. It was the second time a Medal of Honor had been pinned on that same breast. Many men in the department have received that signal honor either for conspicuous bravery in line of duty or for distinguished service, but Johnny Cordes is the only man in the history of the force who has won it twice.

To look at Cordes one would hardly think he could even answer the physical requirements for membership in the Police Department. He is a medium-sized, slender man of 37, with small hands and feet, sandy hair, mild manner and guileless blue eyes. He looks like anything but a master sleuth, and the average observer would much sooner take him for a clerk or a business man of moderate success.

That last guess wouldn't be so far wrong, because Cordes was a business man before he entered the department, 15 years ago. And he was a successful business man, earning around $10,000 a year, but he gave up his business because of a persistent and irresistible desire to be a detective.

When he was 14 years old he got a job as runner for a brokerage firm on Wall street. At the end of nine years of steady climbing he had a membership in the outside Curb Exchange and was approaching affluence. He was only 23 then and was apparently destined for a brilliant career on the "street."

But making money didn't satisfy Cordes. It was only by chance that he had drifted into a profitable business. What he had wanted to be, ever since he was big enough to read, was a detective. That had been his childhood conception of greatness. Every minute he could spare from business he devoted to reading of the exploits of master criminals and detectives, and spent his leisure in the vicinity of police stations to satisfy his need for hero-worship. He was frankly enthusiastic about police work and he made no effort to conceal his desire to become a member of the force. In certain districts he became the object of much "kidding" by policemen who attempted to disillusion him. Besides, they told him, he wouldn't be hussy enough to pass the necessary examination.

THEN, in 1912, after months of severe physical training, young Cordes presented himself as a candidate for the police force. He passed his examination without difficulty and was graduated from the police school at the top of his class. And from that point on he began to establish a record which is now the pride of the department and the cause of no little amount of chagrin to the older members of the force who tried to "kid" him out of his enthusiasm 15 years ago.

Because of his outstanding record at the police school Cordes was a marked man from the start, and instead of being put on ordinary police duty was immediately assigned to the Detective Bureau. His first assignment convinced his superiors that they had made no mistake. He was sent to gather evidence against gambling joints that were flourishing in the vicinity of Times Square. In 10 weeks Cordes turned in his report. A dozen places were raided, and so accurately had he done his work that the department was able to prosecute every one of the places successfully.

Politics not infrequently causes an upheaval in the Police Department, and in 1921 Commissioner Enright "broke" Cordes from the Detective Bureau and transferred him, "for the good of the service," to uniform patrol duty up in Harlem. But the change wasn't to endure long.

On August 15 a mob stuck up a concessionaire at Brighton Beach. When the robbery victim refused to reveal the combination to his safe, the crooks tortured him by pulling out his moustache, hair by hair, until he talked. They then opened his safe and escaped with $2700. Detectives worked on the case for a week without getting so much as a clew. Cordes, of course, had nothing to do with the unraveling of the mystery. He was out in Harlem, many miles from the scene of the crime, spending his nights pounding the sidewalks and rapping the curbstone with his nightstick. But instead of spending his hours off duty at home resting up, as a good policeman should, he was doing without sleep in order to indulge his love of playing the role of detective.

Then one morning, less than two weeks after the crime had been committed, Cordes walked into Inspector Coughlin's office and calmly made an announcement.

"Want to get back in the bureau, John?" Coughlin asked.

"Sure."

"Well, if you break that case I'll put you back."

THAT afternoon Cordes and four other plainclothes men took their stand in the vicinity of the Strand Theater on Broadway. At 4 o'clock a car approached and a man alighted from the machine. From the crowd nearby another man started toward the car. Cordes gave a signal and both men were seized. The detectives then went to the flat occupied by one of the prisoners and there found masks and a broken jimmy—a piece of which had been left in the safe at Brighton. At the other man's apartment they found the money. In capturing these two bandits Cordes had at the same time prevented a murder, for he had told his companions that one of the men had come to the appointment for the purpose of killing the other for holding out his share of the spoil. On the would-be murderer they found a loaded .45, and he confessed that he had intended to give his erstwhile partner "the works."

How did Cordes do it? Well, he never did say. If you ask him about one of his brilliant coups he usually just shrugs his shoulders and attributes it to luck.

"There's no special trick to it," he says. "I don't carry a magnifying glass in my hip pocket or a textbook on psychology. None of those things. It's just a question of outsmarting the other fellow—and being lucky."

Sometimes it's a telephone tip, he says, and sometimes it's an accident that starts him off on an investigation. And other times it's just plain common sense and hard work. But if you tell him that a detective usually has to pave the way for a telephone tip and that it takes more than luck to be consistently successful, Cordes takes two or three puffs on his cigar, smiles a little disconcertingly and shakes his head.

"I'm telling you, it's the lucky breaks," he insists. "Crooks are smart. You've got to outsmart 'em and be lucky, too. They're all human, and they make mistakes. Take that Scharlin-Taylor kidnaping case, for instance."

And then Cordes begins to tell of his part in solving the kidnaping case which earned him his second Medal of Honor.

On April 28, 1927, Abraham Scharlin, a millionaire real estate dealer, and James Taylor, a business associate, were kidnaped in New York City, and on the next day Scharlin's family was notified that if $400,000 wasn't paid by way of ransom he and Taylor would be killed. His family was frantic. Police were notified and Cordes was put on the case. The Scharlin family continued to receive telephone calls from the abductors. A definite time limit was set for the payment of the ransom. The crooks then made a mistake that Cordes was able to capitalize.

HE NOTICED several of their telephone calls had been made from the Empire Hotel. He stationed himself there and soon discovered one of his fellow guests was Joseph Marcus, a well-known Chicago gangster with a long criminal record, who was wanted in Montreal for a murder in 1923. Trailing him one morning Cordes, in an adjacent booth, heard him tell Scharlin's sister over the telephone that, "We'll bump him off tonight if you don't pay up like I tell you."

To arrest Marcus immediately suggested itself to Cordes at first, but even that would not necessarily reveal the whereabouts of the kidnaped men, and a precipitate arrest might cause other members of the gang to kill the prisoners. Cordes now was forced to keep on Marcus' trail, for that night marked the time limit set by the kidnaper and to lose sight of Marcus now might prove fatal. Cordes followed him around for several hours. Once Marcus stopped at a penny arcade near Fifty-second street to indulge in target practice with a pistol. Cordes busied himself dropping pennies in a slot machine and making believe he was looking at pictures. To the detective's consternation he watched the criminal hit the bull seye 29 out of 30 times! And the worst part of it was that Cordes was unarmed, for it is one of his idiosyncrasies never to carry a revolver.

FINALLY, at Sixty-fifth street, Marcus met another man, later identified as David Berman, wanted for robbery in Wisconsin. The two of them walked over to Central Park. What followed may be told in Cordes' own words.

"In a few minutes I see Marcus and Berman coming out of the park, and I figure that maybe they're going to separate, so I'd better grab them. I go over and tell Motorcycle Patrolman O'Connor what the game is, and for him to come over as soon as I grab them. Then I go on down the street, cross over and meet them coming back. They haven't any idea I'm after them and I get right on top of them before I say: 'Put 'em up, you two!' I haven't a gun, but I have one hand in my pocket and figure I might be able to bluff them. Berman draws a .45, but before he can raise it I grab the gun and his arm and cover Marcus. O'Connor is across the street and I turn my head and call to him to come over quick.

"As I'm looking away just a fraction of a second, Berman manages to shove down the muzzle of the .45 and tells Marcus to give it to me. Marcus draws his gun and he's so close he couldn't miss. I grab Berman and whirl him around in front to kind of shield me, and Marcus is reaching around in front to stick the gun into me and let me have it. Just then O'Connor fires and drops Marcus with a bullet through the heart. In the meantime I've wrested the gun out of Berman's hands and quiet him with a whack on the head."

THE result of all this was that the gang of kidnapers was broken up and the two abducted men released unharmed. O'Connor was given a medal and a raise in pay and Cordes got his second Medal of Honor. Cordes almost got a $25,000 reward from Scharlin's family, but the Police Commissioner decided that Scharlin and Taylor were mixed up in some kind of a queer deal connected with industrial alcohol and that it wouldn't be right for a man on the force to accept that kind of money.

Luck, of course, might account for O'Connor's opportune arrival, but it hardly accounts for Cordes' skillful work in locating the two leaders in the kidnaping plot.

Four years before this event Cordes got mixed up in another shooting affair, and only his quick thinking pulled him out, in spite of very bad luck.

John H. F. Cordes.

Motorcycle Patrolman Richard O'Connor, who saved Cordes' life.

One night in March, 1923, while substituting for a detective friend who had a night off to get married, Cordes, in plain clothes, walked into a cigar store at 943 Lexington avenue. He saw a couple of young fellows in blue shirts standing behind the counter and, although he had never been in the shop before, he immediately suspected that they weren't clerks. Cordes stalled around as if looking for a certain brand of cigars, and then said:

"I don't see it in the case. The clerk usually gives it to me."

Suddenly another fellow got up from the floor behind the counter. It was the real clerk, and he looked scared to death. Not knowing Cordes he didn't recognize him, and the two bandits suddenly got suspicious.

"Let him have it!" one of them said, and before Cordes could draw his own gun one of the youths thrust a pistol across the counter and fired.

CORDES threw his right hand up just in time to have his thumb severed and the bullet deflected from his heart. Cordes then fell over on the floor and rolled around to get his pistol with his left hand. Just then one of the bandits came around the counter to finish him, when Cordes killed him with a shot through the stomach. He then got up and exchanged shots with the other, but was wild because he was shooting left-handed. The bandit fired again and, thinking quickly, Cordes toppled over as if shot and curled up quietly on the floor. The bandit came from around the counter and started to dash past the inert form of the apparently dead detective, when Cordes tackled him from behind. They wrestled and rolled about and Cordes finally got possession of the other man's gun, although he was not in a position to fire.

Just then a uniformed policeman, attracted by the sound of the shooting, came up and, seeing Cordes in plain clothes and with a pistol in his hand, mistook him for the bandit and began to fire away. Cordes was hit in the jaw, the head and the shoulder before he was able to gasp out that the policeman was shooting the wrong man! The three of them then got into a taxicab and went to the hospital. The surviving bandit got 20 years in Sing Sing. Cordes spent eight months in a hospital and came out to find himself the possessor of a medal and a promotion to the rank of Sergeant.

"So you see," said Cordes, when he had finished telling about that unpleasant experience, "I'm not just talking when I say that I owe a lot to getting lucky breaks."

TALES of REAL DOGS

By Albert Payson Terhune

Strongheart, First Canine Movie Star.

THERE is a yarn of a California day laborer who lived for 22 years in his tumble-down mountain shack, half-starved, without knowing that there was a tremendously rich gold mine under his mortgaged front yard.

I used to think of that Californian when, many years ago, I listened to the buzz of pleased excitement which swept through motion-picture audiences whenever a dog was shown on the screen.

The movie magnates were straining their brains to find some new human interest theme for their pictures. Either they did not notice that hum of keen interest which ran through the house when a dog was flashed on the screen or else it meant nothing to them. The gold mine was in their front yard. They did not know it.

There were a few pictures in which dogs did simple or silly tricks or clown stunts. But no manager seemed to realize the gigantic possibilities that lurked in a well-acted and dramatic dog story. I spoke of it to Cecil de Mille and to other directors and managers. They listened politely, but with no interest at all.

Then a reddish-haired and slender chap, Larry Trimble, went actively into the effort of interesting managers in such a picture. He found them as cold to the idea as had I. But he was not content to let it go at that.

He had the picture rights to a great dog story by Hal Evarts. He hunted for a dog to play the star role in it. He knew just what kind of dog he wanted, but it was long before he could find him.

At last he struck a clew which led him to a kennel in White Plains, New York, where lived a young German police dog (German shepherd dog is now the technical name for the breed) which had been trained to police work.

THE dog was Etzel von Oeringen. He is known to fame as Strongheart. He became the first dog to play a star part in a real screen drama and to blaze the way for countless successors. To Trimble belongs all the credit.

Let me say here that Strongheart retired long ago from the movies and that his pictures are no longer in vogue. So I am not advertising him or his owner or his pictures when I tell this story about a dog that helped revolutionize filmdom.

Strongheart had been trained by a German and he knew of no language but German. Also, he had been trained to stiff discipline, rather than to true cleverness. In other words, he had learned to obey orders, not at all to use his own uncannily bright mind.

Trimble changed all that, but it took him a long time to do it; and it called for infinite wisdom and patience. He took Strongheart home with him. He and the dog lived together for more than a year, spending many hours a day together. While Trimble deftly changed the police dog's whole nature and obliterated the stilted early training.

At the end of that time, Strongheart was humanized to an astounding degree. He had learned to understand and to obey Trimble's every wish. It was done through kindness and not through fear. Trimble became the dog's god, and Strongheart delighted to follow out the man's commands.

Then, at last, he was ready to begin his screen work, and to put in practice the lessons of his tediously long course of humanizing and of intensive training. Work on the oft-postponed picture was begun. Trimble directing every move of his dog.

He delighted to follow out commands.

With perhaps 15 other people I was invited to attend a private view of a new motion picture which soon was to be produced. I was told it had a dog hero and I was asked for my opinion of his work in it. I accepted the invitation, but with no great expectation of seeing anything worth while.

I sat beside Trimble at this private advance performance of Strongheart's first screen story.

Before I had watched the screen for five minutes I realized that a new era had dawned in movie art. Strongheart did no tricks. But he acted. He gave a compellingly dramatic performance, vibrant with humor and pathos and rational action.

AT ONE point in the play, when the dog comes back to his lair to find his mate and their babies killed, Strongheart lifted his nose to the sky in a long death howl. Then he lay down, his head between his paws, and in his eyes was the most pitifully heart-broken look I have seen on any human or animal face. It was infinitely touching.

"I have never struck him," Trimble explained to me. "But it made me sore to have to do what I did to get that expression of hopeless grief into his eyes. I did it by calling him close to the camera and making him lie down facing it. Then, quietly, I began to scold him and to tell him he was worthless.

"Perhaps he couldn't understand the actual words, but my voice and my face showed him I was disgusted with him—which I wasn't. Also that he had done something wrong—which he hadn't. That's how we got the grief-stricken and hopeless and bewildered expression. As I say, I hated to do it, and I made it up with him afterward."

Said a director, who sat on the other side of me:

"I've seen this kind of thing done just as well fifty times. But only in scenarios. Never on the actual screen. I wouldn't have believed it. It's a masterpiece. A gold mine!"

It was a gold mine. I have heard that this first picture of Strongheart's, alone, cleared up more than $600,000 net profits for Trimble and his associates. Incidentally, it blazed the way for countless later dog pictures, some good and some wretchedly bad.

To me, Strongheart's too brief career is notable chiefly because it taught managers that a dog is as much an item of human interest as any other powerfully moving theme, and because it taught the picture-going public a love and understanding of dogs which no mere book could possibly have imparted to them.

A DEMNITION BODY

OR

The Embarrassments of Mr. Udderzook

By EDMUND PEARSON

"I shall be a body . . . a demd, moist, unpleasant body" exclaimed Mr. Mantalini. . . . "I shall require no demd allowance. I will be a body"

IF I PUT ten dollars on a horse—a horse who is a complete stranger to me, and is, perhaps, in Havana or New Orleans—or if I risk two dollars upon my guess that the three kings in my hand have more power than all the five cards held by the man who is glaring at me across the table—if I do either of these things, I shall be denounced by some folks as spending my time and money most woefully. And I should be disposed to agree with them, although probably not for the same reasons.

But if I take up with the sporting offer of a life insurance company, and pay in thirty dollars in guarantee of my belief that I shall assuredly perish during the coming year, as against their generous bet of a thousand that I shall survive to the end of it, then I am not a gambler at all, but a wise and prudent citizen. Indeed, it is a matter of custom; the public opinion which once condemned usury as a sin now regards the collectors of interest as especially sacrosanct personages, never recognized in pictures unless shown with glossy silk hats and white mutton-chop whiskers.

WHEN somebody invented that scientific and spotlessly moral form of betting known as insurance, it was instantly apparent that it lacked the chief ingredient of sin: there was no fun in it. Nobody would grow pale, nor sit up all night in a stuffy room to rake in the premiums or pay its indemnities. It might have remained, for ever, as prosaic as any other business, if it had not attracted a number of picturesque and bizarre persons who saw a chance for profit under conditions which struck them as agreeable. I do not refer to the young men who call upon you and explain that the board of directors, in their benevolence, have extended your privileges, and will now permit you to get killed or mangled by some new and fantastic method, and at the same old rate of payment. I refer rather to those who noticed, early in the history of insurance, that a dead body, or a burned building, might have a cash value, and resolved to profit by that fact, even if they imposed slightly upon the poor, innocent company. There is a certain charm about solemn hocus-pocus, and it has never been exhibited to better advantage than by little groups of persons, in all the trappings and the suits of woe, who have followed to the grave a coffin which contained nothing more melancholy than a bag of sand or a certain amount of tanbark. The insurance companies, through sad experience, have learned how to be courteous and skeptical at the same time; how to maintain an air of polite sympathy toward grief-stricken heirs, or toward gentlemen wringing their hands above a smoking ruin—how to do this, and still keep a weather eye open, in case the grief should be a mere bit of acting.

Frauds against insurance companies make up a large chapter in the history of deception—a curious one, with a doleful humor of its own. The practitioners are a quaint assemblage of earnest workers, both high and low in station, rude or cultivated in manner. From them I have selected a man who lived in Maryland and Pennsylvania, more than 50 years ago, where, like Jeshurun, he waxed fat and kicked. I found him between the covers of a book; a lamentable record of human frailty, and at the same time one of the most amusing volumes which I have seen. It was published in 1878, the work of two medical gentlemen, John B. Lewis, M. D., and Charles B. Bonbaugh, M. D., both qualified by their official positions and their acquaintance with the darker paths of the insurance business, to speak from the heart upon the subject.

They called their book "Remarkable Stratagems and Conspiracies: An Authentic Record of Surprising Attempts to Defraud Life Insurance Companies." they bound it in black and red cloth, and issued fifteen hundred copies. Naturally enough, these were soon exhausted, yet eighteen years seem to have elapsed before the second edition appeared, in 1896. This was entitled, with slight variation, "Stratagems and Conspiracies to Defraud Life Insurance Companies;" it had grown in height, in length by more than 200 pages and very greatly in interest. The second edition, as often happens, is far more desirable than the first.

Within the pages of this book dwell an amazing gallery of adventurers; no single volume of the Newgate Calendar can rival it. Indeed, the monotony of style of that more famous work and its endless moral reflections make it, in my opinion, far less sprightly. The Doctors Lewis and Bombaugh set out to write a book of counsel and warning to their fellow officials in the insurance business: what they did was to compile a small encyclopedia of crime in the United States, and incidentally to beat at their own game two or three detectives and police officials who have written books about wrongdoers.

THE Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine herewith begins a series of eight famous true murder stories by that eminent historian of homicide, Mr. Edmund Pearson. These stories, first appearing in Mr. Pearson's recent volumes, "Murder at Smutty Nose" and "Five Murders," have found a place for themselves in contemporary literature, and that despite the unpleasant number of murders-to-date which demand reporting in the news columns, Mr. Pearson, who is an American, in his homicidal anthology has chosen to recount homicides, both in America and England, which for the unusual qualities of the crimes themselves, or of their perpetrators, have reason to demand reiteration.

The reader of it will dwell fondly upon its characters: a highly colored pack of cards in which aces and knaves predominate. Reflect, for example, upon a person calling himself General D. K. Boswell, who shortly after the Civil War appeared at Muncie, Indiana. He pretended to be a former Brigadier-General, but some unsympathetic letter-writer described him thus:

"If the D. K. Boswell who swindled you is the Daniel K. Boswell who in 1845-6 left his wife and children in Galena, Illinois, went to Hannibal or Palmyra, Missouri; ran away with old man Ross' daughter, said he was married on a steamboat; took a free Negress from Indiana to Lexington, Kentucky; sold her after she had a child by him to a Mr. ——— for a slave; was indicted but escaped (about 1848) to Memphis, Tennessee, set up a picture gallery; made obscene pictures, perjured himself in a deposition to blackmail a citizen there; went to Holly Springs, Mississippi, in September, 1848, stopped some time at a hotel, where he said he was robbed by a servant of $800; had the poor slave whipped nearly to death before it was discovered that he had had no money and had not been robbed; got into many difficulties there; shot a man's mules; committed perjury; ran away to West Tennessee; 'got religion'; joined the Campbellite church; again got into difficulties and disappeared, but whether this biographer knows not—if this is your man, he is the most unmitigated scoundrel unhung!"

George Borrow might have admired that breathless description of the General. Borrow complained of those who tried to embellish their tales of crime "by philosophic speculations and reflections. Such writers," said Borrow, "are anxious to shine, and people who are anxious to shine can never tell a plain story." But this anonymous biographer—Boswell's Boswell—had a directness which is nothing less than admirable. It may be added that General Boswell, at a later date, said that he fell off a steamboat into the Missouri River—an accident which did not prevent him from taking part in a game of croquet, about three years later, in the town of Galesburg, Illinois. He was then known, however, as "Judge L. S. Howe."

THERE were also the obscure circumstances surrounding the death of Captain Convocotosses, who, "in the streets of Bridgeport, Connecticut, was either murdered by somebody armed with a large and decrepit horse pistol, or else performed the remarkable feat of committing suicide with that weapon, and afterward throwing it across the street." There appears that alumnus of the University of Vermont with the Dickensian name of Dr. Herman W. Mudgett, best known under his alias of H. H. Holmes, who attracted the attention of such a distinguished writer on criminology as the late H. B. Irving.

First place for determined character and eccentricities might easily go to a lady named Walburga Wackerle. This resolute matron was the wife of a veteran of the Civil War, a citizen of Minnesota, named William Wackerle. By the insistent urging of his wife, Mr. Wackerle was induced to insure his life in her favor for $3000 in the Aetna Company of Hartford, and for $4000 in the Mutual Life of New York. Not once, but twice, did Mr. Wackerle flee from his lady and take refuge in California. The first time, she pursued, and triumphantly brought him back; the second time he had found a secret and secure refuge. These flights, according to her account, were base and unmanly desertions; in the opinion of some friends of the Wackerles, who know Walburga, the only surprise was that the flight had been so long delayed.

Ranging the country in pursuit, Walburga discovered, near Shreveport, Louisiana, the grave of a man whom she decided was her husband. Why she came to this decision is not known, unless it was for the reason that while Mr. Wackerle upon the earth was merely an annoyance, under it he was valued at $7000. As a matter of fact, it was the grave of a Belgian named Ettine. For a number of years Mrs. Walburga Wackerle's lawsuits and pilgrimages up and down the land were a matter of almost national interest. In St. Louis she found a gallant jury, of the kind always willing to vote money out of the treasury of a corporation into the pocket of a tearful lady. Despite the appearance in court of Mr. Wackerle himself, returned a second time from California, they awarded her a considerable sum for his death. The incident of the second return, in the flesh of her husband was a matter of some irritation but no dismay to her; the heroic Walburga coldly stared at him, and intimated that he lacked the finer feelings of a gentleman to intrude at such a time. She lost one suit and was bitterly denounced by the Judge as a fraud, but after her partial victory in the other case, she became quieter. Her husband returned once more to California. He had established his identity among his old neighbors, and somewhat pathetically he remarked in a published statement that he had "always been William Wackerle, and would always remain so, 'even if Walburga Wackerle as a heroine should suffer thereby.' He added that he was going again to his farm in California, which he had acquired by dint of hard labor, and there he proposed to live, until he died for good and ever.

THE charms of these supernumerary characters have caused me to delay, perhaps too long, in coming to the chief subject of this chapter. He first appears among a small group of people standing around a burning cottage on the York Road, four miles outside of Baltimore. The time was the evening of February 2, 1872. The cottage belonged to a gentleman of the highly respectable Maryland name of Lowndes, and Mr. Lowndes himself was an innocent bystander, watching the destruction of his property. There was also present a citizen of Baltimore, Mr. William E. Udderzook, a smith and edge-tool maker, but formerly "a teacher of fine arts." This, it appeared later, meant that before the Civil War he had been engaged in Pennsylvania, in giving instruction in penmanship, and in "fine painting in oil."

After the cottage had been blazing furiously for the greater part of an hour, and was nearly consumed, Mr. Udderzook approached, and remarked:

"I think he is in the house."

Much startled, the owner of the cottage turned to the speaker, who was a stranger to him, and said:

"Who is in the house?"

Still in a portentous manner, Mr. Udderzook replied:

"Mr. Goss."

This name was familiar to Mr. Lowndes. A number of months earlier he had been persuaded, rather against his will, to let his cottage to a Baltimorean named Winfield Scott Goss, said to be an inventor. Mr. Goss had invented what he called a ratchet screwdriver—and usually carried one of them about with him. More especially, however, he was engaged in trying to make an artificial substitute for rubber; samples of this he also carried in his pockets and showed to his friends. They agreed, usually, that it looked very much like rubber; in point of fact, they thought it was rubber. Mr. Goss had taken the cottage as a convenient place for his secret experiments, and now Mr. Lowndes was both distressed and astonished at the suggestion that the inventor had perished in the fire. He asked about his informant, and found that Mr. Udderzook and Mr. Goss were brothers-in-law. He looked at the building, still a mass of flames; the roof had caved in, the sides and chimney had fallen. It was madness to step inside the ruin.

"I think he is in the house," Mr. Udderzook remarked.

of Mr. Goss was no obscure tragedy; the struggling inventor had taken precautions for the benefit of his widow, and four years earlier had insured his life in the sum of $5000 with the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. Some years later, and less than a year before his lamentable death, he secured a policy for the same amount in the Continental Life Insurance Company of New York. After that, the habit grew upon him, like drink, and in the previous October he had taken out accident insurance for $10,000 with the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford. Still unwearied in well-doing, he had, on January 24, only a week before the fatal accident, concluded an agreement with the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company of New York, whereby, in the event of his death, they were to pay to Eliza Waters Goss, his wife, the sum of $5000. These were not the days when gentlemen took out one-hundred-thousand-dollar life insurance policies as casually as some do it today; and the sum of $25,000, now apparently due Mrs. Goss, attracted some attention, at least among the insurance companies.

They, the Coroner, and the police all inquired how Mr. Goss, an active man, thirty-seven years old, should have been trapped in this house and unable to escape. The explanations, so far as they could be so called, came from two authorities: from Campbell Goss, brother of the deceased inventor, and from Mr. Udderzook. The brothers, it seemed, had been together at noon on February 2, until Winfield Goss departed for his laboratory, requesting Campbell to stay in the city and collect some bills for him. This service Campbell performed, and remained at his boarding house in the evening. He first heard of his brother's misfortune the next day.

MR. UDDERZOOK had accompanied Winfield Goss to the cottage on the York Road, for the purpose of inspecting the results of the experiments. With a gallon of kerosene, and a bottle of whisky which they bought on the way, and an ax which they borrowed at the home of the Engels, nearby, they put in the whole afternoon in the cottage. Exactly how they occupied or amused themselves does not appear: there was, of course, the bottle of whisky, while Mr. Udderzook could look at the samples of artificial rubber, and perhaps seek diversion with the newly invented ratchet screwdriver. At dusk, Mr. Goss filled a coal-oil lamp, which held about a quart, from the gallon demijohn of kerosene. Then Mr. Udderzook went back to the Engels' house, to return the ax; he accepted their invitation to share their evening meal, leaving the man of science to his experiments, which were doubtless more engrossing than food. After supper, together with young Gottlieb Engel, he went back to see how everything was going on at the cottage. Mr. Goss received them, and the three spent about an hour together. The inventor left them from time to time, taking the lamp with him, and going into another room, closing the door carefully each time. Finally, there was some trouble with the lamp, and Engel offered to go back to his mother's house, and get another lamp. Mr. Goss proposed, and rather insisted, that Udderzook should accompany the young man on the expedition. They stayed at the Engel house only a short time, but when they started to return, the cottage was on fire. Both of them running, they arrived in a few moments, when, after a considerable delay, there followed the conversation with Mr. Lowndes, and the distressing discovery, which has already been described.

THE Coroner found that the explosion of the lamp had been the cause of death, but the insurance companies adopted a manner highly distasteful to the Goss and Udderzook families. Not only did they show no haste in paying over the money, but they persisted in carrying on certain investigations, which were unfeeling, and which actually reflected, in some sense, upon the character of the late husband and brother. His funeral ceremonies had been celebrated with every mark of sorrow and respect, and only the stony-hearted attitude of the insurance men prevented the whole matter from becoming a closed incident. Their agents, or rather their hirelings and minions, as the Goss family preferred to regard them, had discovered that Mr. Campbell Goss, instead of remaining at home on the night of the fire, had driven into the country with a horse and carriage from a livery stable. These agents, full of unworthy suspicions, suggested that he had met his brother, somewhere near the cottage, and conveyed him to a railroad station. They also pointed out that it was odd that, although the ruins of the cottage had been searched without result by a Mr. J. C. Smith, a highly competent junk-dealer, well skilled in finding lost or hidden articles of value, Mr. Campbell Goss had returned to the cottage more than a week later and promptly discovered the brother's watch, chain and keys at the place where the body had been found. Moreover, Mr. Goss had become liable for $500 or $600 annually for his premiums, and out of an income of $1200—an excessive enthusiasm which even insurance agents did not approve. It was also a coincidence, they thought, that Mr. Winfield Goss, on the day before the fire, had withdrawn his entire bank deposit and closed his account.

The year passed, and Mrs. Goss, through her attorneys, entered suit against all the companies. Lawyers for the insurance companies wondered if an exhumation and a further autopsy might not discover something which should either identify the body as that of Mr. Goss, or prove what they were inclined to suspect. The skull was remembered to be intact; counsel suggested that the teeth of the missing inventor were an interesting subject for investigation. Mrs. Goss was addressed, through her clergyman, the Reverend Doctor Fuller, as to whether she would furnish a more exact description of her husband, especially in regard to his teeth, and if she would permit an exhumation. She answered, through Doctor Fuller, that she had already testified as to all that she knew; that she had been shocked by the suspicions in the case, and the aspersions on the memory of her husband, and that she would say no more, but would, instead, commit the matter to the God of the widows and the afflicted.

Counsel for the companies, glad as they might have been to seek a decision before the Tribunal which Mrs. Goss named, were still aware that she had also taken the practical step of entering suit before the Court of Common Pleas at Baltimore, and that a trial was pending. The lawyers exchanged some courteous letters, and finally the written description of her husband was furnished by Mrs. Goss, while permission was given for an exhumation and autopsy. Mr. Goss, said she, had no artificial teeth; had never complained of pain or inconveniences from his teeth; and his front teeth were quite regular. But the autopsy, conducted by three physicians and a dentist, selected jointly by the parties to the suits, discovered that the man buried as Mr. Goss had only two teeth in his upper and seven in his lower jaw. Moreover, it was plain to the examiners that the dead man, whoever he was, had had far from a happy career, so far as his teeth were concerned; dentally, his life had been somewhat of a burden.

THE companies, therefore, elected to defend the suits, which had been transferred to the United States Circuit Court. Here, in May, 1873, the action began against the Mutual Life Insurance Company. It was regarded as the test case. Mr. Campbell Goss, Mr. Lowndes and his son, young Mr. Engel, Mr. Udderzook, Mrs. Goss, and many other witnesses were heard for both plaintiff and defendants. There was much medical testimony, and the weight of it seems sufficient to have raised strong doubts of the identity of the dead man with Mr. Goss. Yet, after five hours' deliberation, the jury found for Mrs. Goss in the full amount of the insurance, with interest. I must explain as best I can how it was that these jurymen made notable fools of themselves. The only reason that can be given is that when there is a conflict of expert evidence in a case for damages, many juries are apt to think it no harm to mulct a corporation. When the beneficiary of their generosity is a woman, arrayed in widow's weeds, they doubtless feel especially complacent. Pathetic, even painful, stories were related in court of the recognition of the body by Mrs. Goss. These may have convinced the men in the jury box against all common sense. Thousands of persons in England once harbored the notion that a slender, well-bred gentleman could vanish for fourteen years and be transformed into a gross and half-illiterate butcher. This was partly on the theory that "a mother must know her own child," although the mother, who thought that Arthur Orton was her son, Roger Tichborne, was the easiest-duped woman in Christendom. She wished, in fact, to be duped.

THE first round had gone triumphantly for the Goss family and for Mr. Udderzook. The insurance companies persisted, however, in their course, and moved for a new trial. Mr. Udderzook had received a hint that the companies might institute a more thorough search for the missing man—as they deemed him to be. This gave cause for thought. On June 30, about three weeks after the close of the trial, Mr. Udderzook appeared in the village of Jennerville, Chester County, Pennsylvania, his boyhood home. Motorists may have seen this village, on the road between Baltimore and West Chester. He had with him a middle-aged, bewhiskered, heavy-set man, whose name was not given to the proprietor of the hotel. He was described as an invalid, and was unable to come down next morning to breakfast. Mr. Udderzook kindly took up some breakfast for his companion. In the evening, the bill being settled, they drove away together in a carriage from a livery stable. At midnight, Udderzook came back alone to the stable, and returned the horse and carriage. He then departed. An examination of the carriage next morning showed it to be in a bad condition. Dashboard and bow-irons were broken; an oilcloth was missing from the floor, and so were two blankets. There appeared to be stains of blood in the bottom of the carriage; and between the cushions was found a large seal ring, set with a bloodstone.

A WEEK later, a farmer, passing by a road in a region called Baer's Woods, noticed a large number of buzzards in the road, on the fence and in the woods. He remarked the unusual fact, but did not stop. Later, coming back by the same road, the buzzards were still there. He now made an exploration, and in the woods near by found the body of a man, partly covered with earth, leaves, and a few tree branches. Other men were called, and it was discovered that only the trunk and head were buried in this grave. The four limbs were buried apart, in a trench about twenty yards distant. A Coroner's jury were impaneled upon the spot, and as the body was recognized as that of the stranger who had gone away in the carriage, a verdict of murder was promptly returned against Mr. Udderzook.

He was arrested on July 25 and put in jail at West Chester, Pennsylvania. In the meanwhile, the insurance companies satisfied themselves that the missing Winfield Scott Goss was at last found—and at last really dead. A number of Baltimoreans identified this body, while one of the Engels testified that the seal ring, left in the carriage, was well known to him as the property of Goss.

Mr. Campbell Goss, and others of the clan, promptly interested themselves in a most energetic fashion to clear Udderzook of the charge of murder. Able counsel were retained for his defense, including the Hon. Wayne McVeagh, afterward Attorney-General of the United States.

The difficulty with Mr. Winfield Goss was that, like Mr. Mantalini, he had determined to be a body, but also like Mr. Mantalini, he lacked the resolution to carry out the plan. Discretion and a consistent retirement from society are essential to success for him who is cast for the part of a dead man. Whoever the person may have been who was found in the burning cottage—it is suggested that his body came into Mr. Udderzook's possession via the source of supply for a medical college—he had at least the good judgment to remain in the grave.

MR. GOSS had certain disabilities: one of his wife's attorneys, when decorating with the flowers of his rhetoric all the Goss-Udderzook connection, admitted that the departed Goss "might deal in conviviality to too great an extent with his companions." This was a tactful manner of referring to the fact that Mr. Goss had had one or two attacks of delirium tremens. When, therefore, he retired from the world, by way of his brother's hired carriage, on the night of the fire, and modestly took the name of A. C. Wilson, all went well, for a time. All went well until again he began to deal in conviviality. And then he acted as no gentleman who has been decently buried in a Baltimore cemetery, with the blessing of the Reverend Doctor Fuller, ought to behave. He broke out from all restraint, and was a source of much anxiety to his brother-in-law, Mr. Udderzook.

This capable man, having given Winfield Goss an opportunity to pretend to be a body, to the profit of both families, now decided to end the masquerade, and to transform his brother-in-law into such a semblance of death that even the most critical insurance company could take no exception. Unfortunately, it was too late to profit him at all. While the companies probably paid out, in one way or another, more than the original $25,000, it is not likely that any of this came into the hands of the Udderzook-Goss partnership. That combination had furnished two dead men, at one time or another, but the companies and, indeed, the law, had cause for annoyance and probably held that no payment was due. They could not be blamed.

Udderzook went upon his trial at West Chester in the following October. The State announced their intention to show what had been the career of Mr. Goss, alias Wilson, from the night of the fire until his death more than a year later. This included residence in Philadelphia, in Cooperstown (Pennsylvania), in Athensville, with visits to Bryn Mawr. In Newark, New Jersey, he lived for some time, until his departure for the final trip with his brother-in-law.

The case was remarkable for the large number of witnesses examined, and for the many kinds of proof adduced. It was endeavored to show that the body found in the woods was that of Goss; to trace his career from the night of the fire; to identify Goss with the man calling himself Wilson; to show a motive for Udderzook to commit the crime. The whole story of the insurance fraud was offered as part of the case for the State, and after opposition by the defense, was admitted by the Court, and related to the jury. Witnesses appeared from all the places in which the dead man had lived, under his own name or under the false one. Medical testimony and testimony as to handwriting were both heard; "A. C. Wilson" had signed hotel registers and in the handwriting of Goss. A photograph of Goss was identified as a portrait of Wilson. Moreover, Wilson had a tendency to "deal in conviviality"; he wore a remarkable ring which was recognized as the property of Goss; he carried with him and exhibited a "patent screwdriver," and he addressed Udderzook as "Doctor," as Goss was used to do.

TESTIMONY of the gravest nature was given by a brother-in-law of Udderzook, a man named Samuel Rhodes. The prisoner had not only written him a letter to enlist him in some dubious enterprise, hinting at crime, but had come to him on the day of the murder, and asked for his help in taking a man into the woods, giving him some laudanum, and then robbing him of his money.

The strength of the case for the prosecution came as a surprise and shock to the attorneys who had acted for the family in the suits against the insurance companies. Feeling that they had been deceived by the Gosses, they refused to continue in the defense of Udderzook in the murder trial, and withdrew before the State closed their case.

The defense made what appears to be a despairing effort. All the witnesses for the State were impeached, and the theme of the wicked insurance companies was again introduced. It was suggested that the trial was an effort to dispose of Udderzook as a dangerous witness in the civil suits of Mrs. Goss.

THE jury, it is surprising to note, were out for nearly two days and nights. At the end of that time, they found the prisoner guilty as charged. Further efforts to interpose legal obstacles proved of no avail; Udderzook was condemned to death, and the sentence was executed on November 12, 1874. He made no allusion to guilt or innocence while he was on the scaffold, nor did he appear especially disconcerted. So far as can be discovered, he continued to assert his innocence to the end. His predicament, he suggested, was the result of a plot by the insurance companies, and he solemnly warned his countrymen of the dangers in which they all stood from these wicked organizations.

In a letter made public a few weeks before his execution, he wrote:

"It is my desire that my remains will rest in Baltimore, if not in the same lot, at least in the same cemetery with those of Mr. W. S. Goss, a friend ever dear to me, that our bodies may return to the mother earth, and our spirits may mingle together on the bright sunny banks of deliverance, where pleasures never end." . . .

It does not appear which of the two bodies of Mr. W. S. Goss this had reference to; but as he apparently maintained to the end that the man in Baer's Woods was a spurious discovery of the insurance officials, he probably meant to choose the company of the Old Pretender of the burned cottage. He naturally felt an abiding interest in this one since, as the testimony showed, he had conveyed it thither in a box, with the aid of Mr. Goss himself, and an express wagon, on the very morning of the fire.

NEXT week's tale will be, "America's Classic Murder; or, The Disappearance of Doctor Parkman."

Amazing Beauty Test

To prove that this new kind of face powder is better for your skin than any other, just make this simple test: Use any face powder on your entire face, except on your chin, at least three times a day. Put only La-May Face Powder on your chin. Your chin will quickly be free of any excess oil, enlarged pores or eruptions, almost as if by magic. The rest of your face will not improve in beauty. Then powder all your face with La-May. The more often the quicker the result. You will be delighted—amazed at the new beauty of your skin. And it goes on smoother, looks better and stays on longer than any other. It does not show like make-up, cake on or flake the skin.

TEST IT ON YOUR CHIN

All dealers have La-May in white, flesh, brunette and tan at fifty cents and one dollar. The brunette shade gives an unusually lovely effect.

Yes!-Whiten Your Skin 4 or 5 Shades Almost OVERNIGHT

Erase Every Freckle Like Magic

Costs you nothing if it fails

THERE is now a way to bleach the skin, that acts in many cases almost overnight.

It brings ivory allurement to the skin. Brings it quickly, often almost unbelievably. A way that not only bleaches the skin, free of freckles, sallowness, imperfections, but that acts definitely as a skin tonic as well.

You apply it like a cold cream tonight in 3 minutes. Tomorrow a marked difference is noted. In two or three days, your skin is wonderful . . . Soft as a child's; 4 or 5 shades lighter. Free of freckles, blotches, blackheads. Women are flocking to its use. Beauty experts widely urge it.

It is called Golden Peacock Bleach Creme . . . the discovery of a world-famed laboratory devoted exclusively to skin whitening research. Some 30 eminent doctors, scientists and skin specialists worked in its development. 10 years were spent perfecting it. Over 1,000 formulae were tried and discarded before the right one was found.

Thus it marks a new era in modern beauty culture. And supplants entirely old-time methods. Its bleaching agent is one of the most potent healing agents known. One that virtually every doctor uses.

It makes a dark skin a needless folly for any woman to suffer—even for another day. Some 500,000 women now employ it. It is sold at all drug and department stores.

Golden Peacock Bleach Creme

Pay Nothing If It Fails

Results of Golden Peacock Bleach Creme are unqualifiedly guaranteed. Get it today at any store. If it fails, take it back and get your money back. It is folly not to try it. You risk nothing.

First Waterfowl Census Just Completed

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

WASHINGTON.

THREE thousand persons embarked on what amounts, literally, to a wild-goose chase a little over a year ago, and the results are just now becoming known.

They are being published through the announcement by the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey that the first year of its census activities among the waterfowl of North America has just been completed.

As a result, Uncle Sam is now in a much better position to estimate how many wildfowl there are throughout the 48 states, how many there are in Canada, how they are distributed and what movements they are likely to make from one place to another.

The ability to discern the movements of the waterfowl from one place to another is, however, predicated on a continuation of the census activities of the Biological Survey, but through the announcement by officials it is definitely known that the survey is counting on the continued co-operation of its 3000 voluntary operatives and possibly on the observation of several hundred more.

The decision to estimate the nation's waterfowl was reached more than a year ago, according to officials of the Biological Survey, and the completion of a single year's work has shown the practicable value of a complete enumeration of the waterfowl of North America. Officials of the bureau consider themselves lucky in their ability to interest so many voluntary operatives and hope the interest will continue.

In the number of enumerators necessary the waterfowl survey entails a somewhat similar problem to that of the general census which is taken once every 10 years. But the fact that the enumerator has to deal only with waterfowl presupposes that he knows something of ornithology, the science of birds.

EACH co-operating observer selects an area that can be covered by a waterfowl census in a single day. Usually this area is the one in his vicinity which is frequented by the largest number of waterfowl and one that is extensive enough to give a good idea of typical local conditions.

The area is so defined that it can be readily identified for future work. This is essential, since, if the surveys are to have any value, they must make provision for local comparisons, year by year. The observer is aided in this respect by sketch maps which furnish accurate means of recording and of identifying areas on which the census is taken.

Wherever possible, he is encouraged by the Biological Survey to make an actual count of the waterfowl present. The survey recognizes, however, that this is sometimes impracticable and hence makes provision for estimates.

When it is impossible to take an actual count, the observer is instructed to estimate by blocks of 100 or 1000, depending on the number in the flock. In estimating the number in a large flock, the survey has found it best to count a certain portion of it, and then, using this as a unit of measure, to estimate the remainder.

Where the birds are resting on the water, the observer is told that he may estimate the number in a square yard and then multiply this number by the estimated number of square yards covered by the flock. Where birds are scattered in mixed flocks of several species over a large area, the observer estimates each separate species.

To make the results obtained dependable, officials of the survey point out to observers how necessary it is to take care in making and recording all observations.

THE observer is urged to leave nothing to memory, but to make a careful record of all birds at the time they are observed, and to avoid counting the same birds twice. The accuracy of these waterfowl censuses, and therefore their value, the bureau is keen to point out, depends directly upon the speed and completeness with which they can be organized and conducted.

These factors in turn, the bureau frankly admits, depend almost wholly upon the personnel and other assistance that can be obtained. For this reason the bureau deems itself fortunate in possessing so many capable volunteer workers.

The observer who works at a concentration area somewhere in the United States, Alaska or Mexico makes his report monthly to the Biological Survey. The observer who works in Canada reports to the Office of National Parks in Canada. He is aided further by a supply of uniform report cards for this purpose.

Commenting on the work thus far and the importance of continued observation, the bureau says:

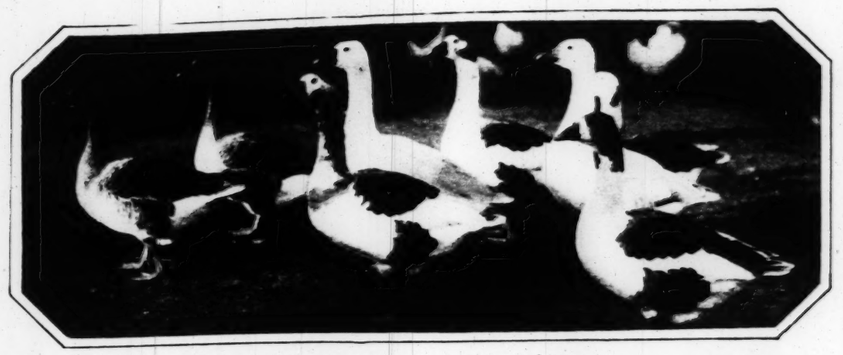
"It will, of course, be necessary to have the second year's observations as a basis for computations of increase or decrease of species or of waterfowl as a whole, but several very interesting facts have already been brought out by the census up to the present time.

"Owing to the surprising response given to the requests for co-operation, the vast store of information gathered in the first year of the work has been far in excess of any reasonable expectation. The data obtained have been filed and indexed for ready reference.

"These results show particularly the winter concentration areas in the United States during the past year and the striking fact is brought out, more clearly than ever before, that the birds that breed in Canada and migrate over the United States withdraw into surprisingly small areas for the winter.

"These areas lie chiefly along the Atlantic coast from Long Island southward; along the gulf coast; up the lower Mississippi Valley and along the Pacific coast, with a comparatively few, scattered, relatively small areas throughout the middle and western United States.

"In addition to this, the waterfowl, chiefly ducks that winter in Mexico, are gathered into about six important areas, from which, unfortunately, little information was received during the past year, and which must needs be covered adequately in order to supplement the information now available."



Some of the fowl which were counted in New England.

Among the most important of other facts brought out by these waterfowl censuses are the m... ments of the bulk of waterf... east and west, as well as n... and south, particularly dur... migrations, the location of ... bulk of the birds during dif... ent months, and monthly fluc... ations in these movements, t... bureau points out.

"To show these facts," its r... port continues, "a series of p... liminary maps has been prepar... indicating conditions and loc... tions of the bulk of waterfowl o... each of the waterfowl censu... dates in the United States and ... Southern Canada, from which ... areas the most satisfactory in... formation has hitherto been re... ceived."

Adds Much to the Joy of Motoring
...but not one cent to the cost

To get away instantly—to accelerate smoothly—to weave through traffic without shifting—to sweep along the open road, hour after hour—to breeze up the steepest hills without effort—that's motoring with 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline.

Because Shell Gasoline is refined by a modern process which takes only the most volatile elements from the crude oil, it is EXTRA DRY—free from heavy, greasy particles. In action it burns cleanly, vaporizes completely and every atom is converted into power. Since nothing is wasted, you are assured of full mileage from every gallon.

Drive to a Shell yellow-red service station today and fill up with 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline. Discover how much it adds to the joy of motoring—and marvel that it costs not one cent extra.

THE NEBBS -:- "And He Learned About Women From Her" -:- By SOL HESS

JUNIOR, ARE YOU GETTING UP? - I DON'T WANT TO CALL YOU AGAIN!

YES, I'M UP, MOTHER DEAR, READY TO DRESS.

MOTHER DEAR, CAN I WEAR MY GOOD SUIT TODAY?

WHAT'S THE IDEA? YOU WEAR YOUR BEST SUIT TO SCHOOL AND RUIN IT?

THERE IS SOMETHING KINDA EXTRA SPECIAL GOING ON IN SCHOOL TODAY - I WON'T RUIN MY SUIT - I'LL TAKE GOOD CARE OF IT

I'LL LET YOU WEAR IT JUST FOR TODAY, BUT IF YOU GET THE LEAST SPECK ON IT YOU'LL GET A GOOD WHIPPING.

YOU BETTER HURRY, JUNIOR, WHAT IN THE WORLD KEEPS YOU SO LONG?

OH I'M ALMOST FINISHED, MOTHER.

DRUGS

OH NO, THIS AIN'T NOTHING - I GOT PLENTY CLOTHES.

4+2+3=9

I'M GOING HOME YOUR WAY, MURIEL, - DO YOU WANT TO WALK WITH ME?

OH, LOOK WHAT MICKEY GUGGENHEIM IS DOING - ISN'T THAT WONDERFUL?

ISN'T THAT MARVELOUS-? HE'S SO SMART!

I CAN WALK ON MY HANDS JUST AS GOOD AS MY FEET - IF I BROKE A LEG, I WOULDN'T BE LAID UP A MINUTE.

FRED ALEN'S GOWN SHOPPE

Ella Cinders

By Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb

Ella's working in a gown shop now—and working overtime—

THE MADAME JUST GOT THESE NEW WAX MODELS FROM PARIS—THEY'RE THE LAST WORD—THEY DO EVERYTHING BUT SAY: "BUY ME THAT, DADDY!"

BREATHES THERE A GIRL WITH SOUL SO DEAD WHO NEVER TO HERSELF HAS SAID: "WONDER HOW I'D LOOK IN THAT?"

HOW ABOUT IT, MISS MODEL—DOES THIS LOOK GOOD ON ME?

OGEEGOSH—IT'S SHAKING ITS HEAD "NO!" THAT DUMMY IS NO DUMMY!

WELL, THEN WHAT ABOUT THIS CREATION? WOULDN'T IT MAKE ME BEAUTIFUL?

YOU'RE HARDER TO PLEASE THAN OUR CUSTOMERS! I'LL TRY YOUR JUDGMENT AGAIN!

NOW THINK CAREFULLY—THIS IS THE MOST EXPENSIVE GOWN IN THE SHOP! IT WOULD MAKE AN OLD MAID LOOK LIKE A NEW GRASS WIDOW—ISN'T IT SWELL ON ME?

IT ISN'T, EH? I SUPPOSE I'M TOO PLAIN TO LOOK GOOD IN ANYTHING! I SUPPOSE THE OUTFIT I'M WEARING IS JUST MY SPEED, EH?

CAN YOU BEAT IT? IT'S NODDING ITS HEAD "YES!"

I'LL TEACH YOU TO GET FRESH WITH ME YOU WAXEN-FACED EMPTY-HEAD!

MEOW!

OF ALL THINGS—A CAT WAS INSIDE THE MODEL—THAT'S WHAT MOVED THE HEAD!

MANY AN ALLEY-CAT CAN LOOK AT AN ERMINE COAT AND SAY, "THERE GOES PAPA!" BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO SHOW BETTER JUDGMENT IF YOU WANT TO STAY AROUND HERE!
